THE WRECK OF THE LABRADOR.

More Particulars of the Disaster.

PASSENGERS HAD A VERY NARROW ESCAPE FROM DEATH.

The Ship Struck a Rock in a Black Fog.

[SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER.]

OBAN, Scotland, Mar. 3.—A number of the rescued passengers of the Labrador have arrived. They speak of the suddenness and completeness of the disaster.

One lady was obliged to leave jewelry worth £600 behind her and another passenger, a man, left £300 in cash.

The light-house steamer left Oban yesterday to try to take off the passengers imprisoned in the Skerry Vore light house and to salvage the mails.

TOBENINY, Scotland, March 3.—Further details regarding the wreck of the Labrador show that Captain Erskine had not left her deck since two o'clock on the afternoon of Tuesday. The second officer was sick, but the third officer was with the captain. When the steamer crashed on the rock it was seen that her position was perilous as she was filling rapidly and might slide off or break in two at any moment.

The heavy swell and the rocking of the ship made the launching of the lifeboats difficult, but there was no panic.

The cooler passengers calmed the women and children, and the crew preserved the utmost discipline.

The women and children were lowered into the first boat by ropes, and while the other boats were loading the steamer Viking appeared and took on board all the passengers and crew except a boat containing twelve passengers, including Agoncille, the agent of Aguinaldo, the Philippine leader, which went to the light-house, where they will be prisoners for some time as the wind has freshened and landing at the lighthouse is only possible in calm weather.

The Viking landed all the passengers she had rescued at this place, where they were afforded every possible comfort.

Most of them had saved only what they were wearing, but a few managed to secure some of their effects which they placed in bundles and brought ashore.

Had the Labrador struck on the rock in a gale, or at night, there would have been in all probability great loss of life. As it was, Captain Erskine went slowly all night long, and only signalled full speed ahead just before the accident, when he thought he recognized Inistrahull light-house.

RETURN OF THE COON QUARTETTE.

Under this heading the Montreal Star publishes a cut illustrating the return from Washington of the Canadian Commissioners—Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Sir Richard Cartwright, Sir Louis Davies and Hon. John Charlton. They are out in a blizzard and are apparently having a bad time generally. Laurier and Cartwright lead the procession, the former having under his arm a violin and the latter a banjo. Charlton comes third, having his musical instrument thrown across his back. In his right hand he holds a chicken, which seems to be struggling for its liberty, and his movements are accelerated by a crutch. Our own Sir Louis brings up the rear, and is evidently falling further behind. That portion of his anatomy which the artist has permitted the public to gaze upon is covered by an old-time son's vester which has evidently seen better days. Taken for all in all the group is one of the most dismal-appearing that has been placed before Star readers for some time. Below the illustration is the following:—

Linger Longer, Lou—"Say fellies. Take it easy. This ain't no pedestrian competition."
Sawdust Johnny—"And what about the brass band and fireworks aw aittin' for us in By-town?"
Weary Wilfy—"Tain't no use practisin' cake walk paces when it is cold enough to freeze the sunny smile out of a feller."
Dismal Dick—"Yah! This ain't nothin' to the frost we struck at Washington."
Linger Longer, Lou—"And that weren't nothing to the frost we are goin' to strike when we get home."
Silent meditation follows.

RAPID TRANSIT.

SIR.—It is time somebody kicked about the way freight is handled on the I. C. R. and S. S. Stanley and the P. E. I. Railway. There is great mismanagement somewhere. Goods shipped at St. John on Feb. 14th, are not here yet. Goods that reached Georgetown on Monday morning about 9 or 10 o'clock did not come forward till Wednesday morning about noon. Why were they not loaded to come in by Tuesday's train? Surely the four cars of freight could be loaded in that length of time.
