Against Sanctions

PARIS, April 13—(A. P.)—The French press reflected the opinion today that any tightening of sanctions against Italy in the present crisis would likely lead to war.

Officials refused to forecast French policy at Geneva but Foreign Minister Flandin is expected to oppose strongly any suggestion that force be used to halt the Italian drive in Ethiopia.

Vittorio Cerutti, the Italian ambassador, conferred today with Premier Sarraut. The French government is most anxious for Premier Mussolini's assurance of Italy's aid against Germany in the Locarno impasse.

French foreign policy, especially on the Rhineland situation, will be mapped at a conference Wednesday between Sarrault, Flandin and Joseph Paul-Boncour, minister without portfolio.

Charge Britain Backing Turkey

ROME, April 13—(C. P.-Havas)—Great Britain is encouraging Turkey to take an anti-Italian stand in the Mediterranean, the government-controlled press charged tonight after the Turkish charge d'affaires had left at the foreign office a copy of Turkey's request for permission to fortify the Dardanelles.

La Tribuna said: "The question of the straits is a matter of general interest in the Mediterranean and it cannot concern only two governments. Now we find Great Britain, one of the instigators of collective security, does not hesitate to exploit this question for the benefit of a collaboration in the Mediterranean against Italy and in the interests of Turkey."

Giornale D'Italia said the recent negotiations at Geneva at least had disclosed that the real conflict was not between Italy and the League of Nations but between Italy and Great Britain.

"Italy, who threatens no one, and who, on the contrary, respects the legitimate interests of the British Empire, is not alarmed," the paper continues. "Italy is decided to resist, with violence if necessary, not only in defence of its justly acquired rights and . . misunderstood aims, but also in the interests of clarity in the European situation, already weighted with too much equivocation and too many unsolved problems."

PURVIS TO HEAD EMPLOYMENT COMMISSION?

Montrealer May Be Government's Choice For Chairman of National Board.

(C. P. By Guardian's Special Wire)

OTTAWA, April 13—Unemployment relief and means of getting the idle back to work will be paramount considerations of the government during the next few weeks, involving plans for the expenditure of some $75,000,000 by the Dominion alone.

Establishment of the national employment commission, plans for highways, public works and other forms of activity, farm labor assistance and agricultural rehabilitation and direct relief all enter into the picture.

Relief Carried On

Meanwhile immediate necessities in the way of direct relief are being carried on but without statutory authority. The relief bill was not among measures given royal assent before Parliament rose for the Easter recess, and since last March 31 when the old act expired, the government has had no power to spend money for relief purposes.

This is not a new circumstance, however, and will not interfere with the working of relief machinery. Since the depression set in the relief act has been renewed from year to year. Frequently there has been a hiatus of weeks, if not months, between expiration of the old statute and final enactment of the new.

Cabinet Will Meet

It is expected cabinet councils to be held later this week will be devoted mainly to deciding on personnel of the national employment commission so that body may be ready to give the government the benefit of its advice in renewing relief agreements with the provinces.

Considerable work has already been accomplished in this direction but no intimation has come from official circles as to those who will serve on the commission and its advisory committee. Rumor has been in persistent circulation that Arthur B. Purvis of Montreal will be chairman.

To Close Camps

Labor Minister Rogers, who hopes to have the camps for transient unemployed closed by mid-summer, will endeavor to initiate at once a general movement to government-aided work on railways, highways and farms involving about 10,000 men.

The labor minister announced plans for this program some months ago and the movement from the relief camps to gainful employment is expected to take on momentum as soon as the season advances sufficiently to permit a start on proposed works.

History Of Moose River Gold Mine

(C. P. By Guardian's Special Wire)

MOOSE RIVER, N.S., April 13.—The Moose River gold mine which held three Toronto men trapped tonight is situated in the center of the "Goldenville Formation," one of the two gold-bearing geological divisions of Nova Scotia.

The Goldenville formation is a wide zone of interbedded slates and quartzites. The quartzite strata contain gold.

Loosening of the weaker slate strata by water seepage is believed by Foreman F. D. Henderson of the mine to have caused the fall of rock last night which made a natural dungeon of a 141-foot deep level for the three men.

Removal of the quartzite in recently renewed mining activities there did not affect the structure of the area, Mr. Henderson thought.

This district, lying 20 miles inland and 75 miles east of the Nova Scotia Capital in Halifax County, was first prospected in 1876 and mining operations began the following year when several shafts were sunk.

Lumbermen are believed to have first discovered gold at Moose River in 1866 when rock was being blasted from the stream to clear a way for logging operations.

The Moose River Gold Mining Company was organized in 1881 and began concentrated operations the following year. Several shafts were operated for a time by the Company and then it leased various leads on the property to individuals.

With varying degrees of intensity and several periods of inactivity, the district has been mined by individuals and subsidiary companies until several months ago Dr. D. E. Robertson and Herman R. Magill, two of the Toronto men trapped, bought the entire property.

Operations were renewed two months ago and the two owners were inspecting the property when the cave-in occurred.

BELGRADE, April 13—For killing his sister-in-law, Draugtin Vesich, a peasant was sentenced to serve but three months in prison. He explained in court that the victim was a "vampire" who had caused the divorce of his son, the death of the son's child, and the disappearance of another child.

TORONTO MEN

the job, directing the rescuers, until the men have been brought up—dead or alive.

More than 100 men from this locality, working in reliefs, had been forced to stop clearing out the old Archibald shaft 80 feet from the surface about five o'clock this afternoon and attempt to reach the level where the men were trapped from another abandoned shaft.

Henderson said they could not be expected to get to the men "for some hours."

INSPECTING PROPERTY

Dr. Robertson and Mr. Magill had bought the Moose River Gold Mines Company about two months ago and were inspecting their property last night when the land slipped and blocked all means of exit from the level they were on.

The surface above the spot where the men were imprisoned was sunken land and, in some spots, the ground appeared to have dropped 10 or 15 feet. Fissures were apparent over the area as if it had been affected by an earthquake.

Henderson attributed the case of the cave-in to a gradual undermining of the diggings by water which weakened the natural rock structure of the area. For 30 years, since operations were begun, water had been seeping through from the surface and eroding away the foundations until the men paid their visit last night.

NO WARNING

A man of 42 years experience in mining, the foreman said he had never heard of the earth giving away as it had done here without warnings. He said a rumbling easily heard usually preceded the disturbance.

ONLY HOPE

The men would have been safe if they were able to reach the tunnel-like level before being trapped by stone falling down the shaft through which they were about to be lifted when the area gave away.

There was little danger of suffocation. The level was large and there appeared to be sufficent seepage of air to the surface because the smoke had been able to escape.

A lift had just been set in motion to bring the men to the surface in response to a three-bell signal when a crash was heard. Nine bells was a pre-arranged signal meaning danger and a fourth ring was sounded just before the crash.

Apparently the trapped men were warned a second or so before the cave-in and were making the danger signal before their escape was cut off. The cable of the lift was snapped by the fall.

DIRECT RESCUE WORK

Henderson and J. P. Messervey, chief inspector of mines in Nova Scotia, have been working without rest since the cave-in occurred last night directing the rescue work.

A bleak scene was presented by the grim men frantically digging out the abandoned mine shafts while a damp, sleety snow fell and a chill breeze blew in from the Atlantic 20 miles away. The mine is about 75 miles east of Halifax in a wild, sparsely settled part of Halifax County.

Nearby, directly over the spot where the men have been trapped, six workers are making a new shaft. It will be days before that reaches the level and it is through this new shaft the bodies will be taken if rescuers are unable to reach the natural dungeon from an abandoned shaft.

Disappointment was experienced late this afternoon when it was found impossible to reach the level down the old Archibald shaft. It had been blocked so tightly by the cave-in the men were unable to advance swiftly enough after getting down 80 feet.

A new approach was begun at five o'clock this afternoon down the old Meagher shaft which also touches the 141-foot level. It will be some time tomorrow before the rescuers reach the trapped men by that shaft.

LEAVE FOR SCENE

TORONTO, April 13. — (C.P.) — Mrs. D. E. Robertson and Mrs. R. E. Magill, wives of two of the three Toronto men entombed in a mine at Moose River, N.S., left together today by train for the scene of the accident. They were accompanied by Mrs. W. E. Gallie, a friend of Dr. and Mrs. Robertson. Mrs. Alfred Scadding, wife of the third man trapped in the mine, is unable to make the trip due to poor health.

The men have been caught in the mine since early morning due to a cave-in. Robertson and Magill are part owners of the mine and were making a tour of inspection with Scadding, the timekeeper, when the accident occurred. They were the only men in the mine at the time.

FRANCE BETWEEN TWO FIRES

Must Choose Between Italy And The League of Nations.

(By Robert B. Harker)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)
(A.P. By Guardian's Special Wire)

PARIS, April 13—Both Italy and Great Britain, diplomatic sources said tonight, have called on France to choose between them in Italy's conflict with Ethiopia and the League of Nations.

Ambassador Vittorio Cerruti of Italy brought Premier Mussolini's demand to French Premier Albert Sarraut, diplomats said. Britain's declaration, the newspaper Le Matin asserted, was delivered by Anthony Eden, British Foreign Secretary, at Geneva.

"Either you must be with us or with the Italians," the newspaper quoted Eden as telling French Foreign Minister Flandin.

The French press meantime reflected the opinion here that any tightening of the sanctions screws on Italy would be likely to lead to war.

(Informed London sources said the British cabinet at a session tomorrow probably would recommend stronger sanctions if Italy does not enter League peace negotiations sincerely.)

Faced with demands from both sides, the only possible way out for France, diplomats stated, would be for Italy and Ethiopia to agree to peace talks when the committee of 13 meets Thursday at Geneva. They said, however, that the French government holds little hope for such an accord.

The reported British and Italian demands put France squarely face to face with two possibilities:

1. To choose Great Britain, with the obligation to back her in sanctions against Italy. Such action, diplomats declared, would open the way for a German-Italian accord. Thus two blocs of nations would be formed.

2. To choose Italy, with the obligation of immediately lifting sanctions—thus weakening the League of Nations and losing Britain's aid against Germany.

Officials refused to forecast French policy at Geneva, but it was expected Flandin would oppose any suggestion that force be used to halt the Italian drive in Ethiopia.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Major General Johnson Hagood, restored to active duty by President Roosevelt, left tonight to take command of the sixth army corps area at Chicago for what friends termed "a brief interlude" before retirement to enter private business.

General Hagood, whose description of WPA funds as "stage money" cost him his previous command and more than a month's military exile at home "awaiting further orders," declined any discussion of the case.

MENTIONED FOR KING'S HAND

Paris Writer Says England's Next Queen Will Be English.

PARIS, April 13—Francis Chanel, writing in the newspaper Paris Midi today, predicts that England's next queen will be "English, good, beautiful and a sportswoman."

He mentions four women as eligible for the King's hand, should he marry. All have been mentioned before, and one of them, Lady Angela Scott, sister of the Duchess of Gloucester, already is engaged to Lieut.-Commander Peter Dawnay of the Royal Navy.

The others mentioned by Chanel are Lady Anne Hope, 22, daughter of the Marquess of Lithlingow, Viceroy-designate of India; Lady Mary Grosvenor, 26, daughter of the Duke of Westminster; and Lady Lettice Ashley-Cooper, 25, daughter of the Earl of Shaftesbury.

3-ACT COMEDY

between acts. Mr. Blanchard was the accompanist for the special numbers.

The play told the story of Sue Alexander, "The Pretender," whose mother a blue-blooded Drexel of Boston, was estranged from her brother, Buchannan Drexel, because she had dared marry a middle class man whom she loved. Sue grew to young womanhood without knowing her relatives. Ever ambitious and reaching beyond her middle class environment, she decided to visit her uncle Drexel, passing herself off as the winner of a beauty contest in her native state. Sue and her cousin, Eloise Dexter, clashed and the plot thickens. Lord Marshall Kendall, a young Englishman, and Andrew Carmichael, a young American, are introduced and a delightful series of comedy scenes, some fraught with drama, are introduced.

The cast of characters was as follows:

Buchannan Drexel, a typical successful financier, well dressed and with a genial personality, was cleverly played by Mr. Wilfred McIsaac.

Stephen Drexel, his son, a gay young man with an engaging smile, was capably played by Mr. Arthur McGuigan.

Miss Isabel Storey took the role of Eloise Drexel, pretty, listless and rather bored. Miss Storey took the rather difficult part very successfully.

The role of Cavanaugh, a butler, polished and suave, was played by Mr. Philip McQuaid, who took the character part very successfully.

Miss Ruth Rattenbury as Sue Alexander, "The Pretender," scored another outstanding success in her career as amateur actress. Miss Rattenbury as leading lady gave a splendid interpretation of "Sue," the whole hearted, unaffected girl with a real sense of humor.

Lord Marshall Kendall, a dapper young Englishman with a decided British accent, was played by Mr. Peter Crichton who was a decided success in the role, as was also Mr. Pius Callaghan in the role of Andrew Carmichael, a well groomed young American, but not as fastidious as Marshall.

The role of Gladys Joy, a young follies girl, was very capably taken by Miss Esther Rattenbury, who was a decided success in this, her first appearance on the stage.

The play was directed by Mr. J. Austin Trainor, who has successfully staged more than 500 plays.

Last night's performance was under the distinguished patronage of the Premier Hon. T. A. Campbell and Mrs. Campbell, and His Worship Mayor Turner and Mrs. Turner.

The matinee yesterday afternoon was also largely attended.

FILM STAR'S MOTHER IN LOS ANGELES

Prepares To Open Legal Fight For Custody of Son.

(A. P. by Guardian's Special Wire)

LOS ANGELES, April 13—Freddie Bartholomew's mother, travelling under an assumed name, reached Los Angeles tonight and immediately contacted attorneys, preparing to open a legal fight for custody of her actor-son.

Her sister-in-law, Miss Millicent Bartholomew, was made legal guardian of the 12-year-old movie actor nearly six months ago.

Attorney Leonard J. Meyberg, who said he would represent Mrs. Bartholomew in the struggle, announced she would file a petition in superior court, contesting the guardianship. It will be on record before April 23, the legal "deadline" set up when Freddie became a ward of his aunt, Meyberg said.

Regarding the confusion surrounding her departure from New York, Meyberg said she explained to him:

"I retained Phillip A. Levey of New York to represent me before I left England. I didn't want any duplication in this fight. I felt the place for me to wage my fight was right here in California.

The attorney said Freddie's mother declared it was untrue Mrs. Bartholomew had been caring for him since he was three years old, that the sister-in-law had told them negotiations to put him in the movies "had fallen through," and that neither of Freddie's parents was informed he had signed a 40-week contract with a $1,000-a-week salary.

Meyberg said she told him she and her husband had supported and cared for Freddie until only a short time before he left England.

Ramsay MacDonald To Undergo Operation

LONDON, April 13—Former Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, who enters a nursing home tomorrow for a minor operation, will be unable to return to work for two or three weeks. His general health is good, however.

As Lord President of the Council he has been busy recently making arrangements for the coronation of the King in May, 1937.

Mr. MacDonald, replying to telephone queries, said the operation was of a minor nature. He said he understood it was necessary but confidently anticipated he would be able to return to his official and parliamentary duties fully restored in health as a result of the operation.

In 1934 Mr. MacDonald underwent an eye operation.

SAMUEL C. STEWART

There passed away on April 4 at his home in Dunstaffnage an aged and respected gentleman in the person of Samuel C. Stewart. The deceased was born in Lot 48 73 years ago. He moved to Dunstaffnage 43 years ago. Like his father he was a farmer of the right type. He loved to plant, to cultivate, to reap. The growing crops were to him objects of interest and admiration. He never travelled abroad, nevertheless he acquired a fund of knowledge through reading, conversation, observation and experience. The late Mr. Stewart took a keen interest in horse racing and was a keen competitor in showing swine and sheep at various exhibitions and was well known all over Prince Edward Island. He also was one of the few successful fox ranchers. Deceased had been in robust health until last fall when he suffered a paralytic stroke and although medical skill and the best of home nursing were afforded him his gentle soul passed peacefully away on the above mentioned date. and his passing has not only deprived his family of a dutiful father and husband but also the community of an exemplary gentleman and despite the almost impassable condition of the roads the large number that attended his funeral was evidence enough that he was held in high regard by a large number of friends. He leaves to mourn beside a sorrowing widow four daughters and one son, Mrs. W. J. Jenkins, Frenchfort, Mrs. R. McCallum, Dunstaffnage, Mrs. R. S. Dennis, Dunstaffnage, Mrs. Vernon Dennis, Charlottetown, J. B. Stewart at home also one brother William Stewart, Mt. Albion, and one sister, Mrs. Acorn of U. S. A. The funeral service was held at his home Monday, April 6th. Rev. G. A. Christie conducted the service. Interment was in United Church Cemetery, Dunstaffnage. The pall bearers were J. D. Hume, H. Thompson, J. S. Cairns, F. Webster.

Thus one by one the aged veterans drop out of the ranks and leave to the next generation the memory of their loyalties and the tasks of a changing civilization.
