PARAPLEGICS OPERATE BUSINESS ENTERPRISE — To prove that they have the initiative and know-how to operate a business of their own, paraplegics have recently started the Paraplegic Magazine Subscription Agency. The agency now consists of approximately 35 members who cover Quebec district and eastern Canada, and includes two Prince Edward Islanders, Miss Marjorie E. Gill, Ambrose St., Charlottetown, and Miss Nora McLean, Souris. It is a plan to provide work for disabled people. Any person who subscribes to any one of some 3200 publications, can now enter his or her subscription through the Paraplegic Magazine Subscription Agency. Affiliated with the Wm. Barber Magazine Agency, a firm with some thirty years experience in the field, the paraplegics offer the public the services of a well-established company. Harry Ward, secretary-treasurer of the Quebec Division, Canadian Paraplegic Association, says that the purpose of the magazine subscription agency "is to provide work for disabled people. We, in the Paraplegic Association, are continually looking for work suitable for the smaller community, particularly those who are confined to wheel-chairs. When this idea of paraplegics selling magazines arose, it was the answer, we thought, to the problem of providing work for many of our members. It could be carried out where it is almost impossible to get employment for them."

"It is our hope," Mr. Ward said, "that in time we will be able to establish in the minds of the public across Canada the habit of buying magazines through these disabled persons."

The central office is at 1411 Crescent Street, Montreal. Persons wishing to support this project of magazine subscriptions

Canadians May Switch Style Of Tanks In Korea

OTTAWA, Nov. 17 — (CP) — Canada's armored squadron in Korea is on the verge of switching tanks for the third time in two years. Reports that the squadron is restricted in the number of shells it can fire are believed linked with the change. This time the shift is likely to be to the 52-ton British Centurion tank. No decision has been made.

The original squadron that went to Korea in 1951 took self-propelled, 17-poured anti-tank guns which resembled tanks because of the armor that shields the gun.

These were abandoned and the Defence Department sent them to Italy as part of Canada's mutual aid to Atlantic Pact allies.

In their place the squadron received American Sherman tanks, an improved version of the type used in the Second World War. These now are in use.

Bill Boss, Canadian Press correspondent in Korea, reported today that the tanks are allowed to fire only two shells a day apiece from their 76-mm. main guns and quoted one officer as saying that, "Rationed as we are, we've had to pass up targets galore."

The Canadians have been relying on the U. S. supply line for shells but the U. S. tank regiments have been abandoning the Sherman for the newer Patton which uses a weapon unlike the 76 mm. ammunition is getting scarce.

Canada is faced with deciding whether she wants to adopt the Patton or the Centurion, used by the British in Korea. Since the army has already decided for the Centurion in the general field, the chances are it will be the British tank.

Explains Facilities Of M.C.A. In Maintenance Field; New Service Planned

"Built around an Island nucleus of men trained in the R.C.A.F., we now have an establishment of 186 M.C.A. Maintenance employees who are well able to take care of any situation which arises in modernizing, and keeping the planes we are responsible for in the air," remarked Mr. G. B. Rayner, Manager of the Maritime Central Airways Maintenance yesterday when explaining some of the work at the airport.

"While it is true that we have skilled workmen from all over the country, including radar mechanics from England and air line mechanics from Paris, France, in addition to former R.C.A.F. and R.A.F. personnel from all over Canada, it is surprising how many Island-born veterans who have been in the R.C.A.F. have found gainful and desirable employment with us after a period at other work," said Mr. Rayner. "Their war experience is paying dividends."

Because of the ability of the M.C.A. to carry out various contracts, the variety and scope of the company's activities has been greatly enlarged. At present the R.C.A.F. Dakota, similar to the civilian DC3, Haswell and Beechcraft airplanes receive thorough maintenance and modification treatment here. A mobile repair party is on call for immediate work on an aircraft anywhere in the Maritime provinces. Six planes can be worked on at once, at the airport, where two shifts per day have been operating for over a year.

Storage Accommodation An addition to the hangar to provide accommodation for parts required on contracts is nearing completion. The new building is

Evangelistic Services Begin

The first service of the "Christ for Me" evangelistic campaign presently being conducted at Central Christian Church each evening during the last two weeks in November opened with Mr. E. P. Benoit, evangelist from Calgary, Alta., speaking on the topic, "I am not ashamed." His text was chosen from Paul the apostle's letter to Timothy in which Paul states: "I am not ashamed; for I know whom I have believed, and am persuaded that He is able to keep that which I have committed unto Him against that day."

Mr. Benoit urged his hearers to not be ashamed of their Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ, and to take a stand for Christ and to be prepared to witness for Him and to endure, as did Paul, the hardships and the sufferings as well as the joys of a life lived for Christ.

Mr. William O. Weale, pastor of Summerside Church of Christ conducted the song service and brought special numbers in voice and trumpet solo.

Field Marshal Papagos To Form Greek Gov't By L. K. CHAKALES ATHENS, Nov. 17 — (AP) — King Paul today called on conservative Field Marshal Alexander Papagos to form a government in Greece.

Papagos, national military hero who promised to clean up corruption and co-operate with NATO authorities to strengthen defences against Communism, will have an overwhelming majority in parliament.

Late returns gave his right-wing Greek Rally Party 241 seats in the 300-seat chamber. The defeated leftist-centre coalition headed by former Premier Nicholas Plastiras won only 59.

The Communist, who held 10 seats in the last parliament, did not elect a member.

There was no question the result would be pleasing to the United States. American officials had expressed hope for a strong, stable government such as the Papagos victory appears to insure.

In the post-war period the U. S. has poured $2,000,000,000 into the Greek military and economic aid.

By winning 49.6 per cent of the popular vote, the Greek Rally Party scored the greatest parliamentary triumph since the smashing victory in 1928 of Liberal Eleutherios Venizelos.

First Mail Box With Royal Cipher Of New Queen By Glenn Currie LONDON, Nov. 17 — (Reuters) — The first mail box in Britain bearing the Royal Cipher of Queen Elizabeth II was set up today.

The box opened today is the nearest one to 10 Downing Street, the Prime Minister's residence, and will be used for Winston Churchill's mail.

Although the Queen approved her official cipher—E II R (Elizabeth II Regina)—last June, it is appearing only on new mail-boxes. There still are many boxes scattered throughout Britain with the initials VR (Victoria Regina) or GR (Georgina Rex).

The royal cipher is officially the private monogram of the reigning monarch. It is used by government departments, regimental and officers' badges, flags, palace stationery and even the stage curtains of the "royal" theatres patronized by the Queen.

It can be used for coronation souvenirs "of a permanent nature," but its appearance on ties or beer-mugs is frowned upon as a breach of etiquette.

Elizabeth's cipher consists of the Roman capitals E R separated by a smaller I. It is surmounted by a replica of the state crown.

First application of the royal cipher after its announcement was on palace letterheads, in use within a few days.

New credentials bearing the motif then were sent to all British ambassadors and ministers.

answered by members paying a cent for each inch of waist measurement, realizing the sum of $3.98. A delicious lunch was then served by the hostess and the meeting closed with the National Anthem.

Kinsmen Work Reviewed By National President

"We like to think of Rotary as a tree among the service clubs and are glad to feel that Kinsmen Clubs as a branch of that tree are able to be associated with Rotary in the field of service, to those of our fellow men a little less fortunate than we," said President Walther Gaudet, National President of Kinsmen in an address before the Charlottetown Rotary Club at their regular weekly luncheon yesterday.

Early Organization Mr. Gaudet recalled that the first Kinsmen Club was organized by Harold A. Rogers at Hamilton, Ont., in 1920. As veterans just back from the trenches, the members soon realized that the comradeship they had been seeking was incomplete without an Objective, and concluded that they would find that comradeship in carrying out service work for others less fortunate than they.

"The 200 clubs from St. John's, Nfld., to Victoria, B.C. with a membership of approximately 10,000, proves the wisdom of the founders' conclusion," said Mr. Gaudet.

Kinsmen are Canada's only National Service organization that enjoy an International flavor through their participation in the World's Council of Young Men's Service Clubs, which links young men's service clubs in Canada, United States, the United Kingdom, Scandinavian Countries and the Netherlands.

Mr. Gaudet described the great service by Kinsmen and told of its meaning and enlarged on the objects, the foremost of which is service, self-training and leadership. Kinsmen moved into the Maritimes in 1932 with the first clubs in Moncton, and today have 23 clubs in the four Atlantic Provinces. The Charlottetown club was chartered in 1938 and the Summerside club a few years later.

Kinsmen do not have a national project, the speaker stressed, but leave it to the individual clubs to look to their respective communities' greatest need. "The record of Kinsmen service in Canada in any given year is tremendous," Mr. Gaudet stated, and in this the clubs are assisted by the Kinette organizations which operate side-by-side with the Kinsmen.

Kinettes consist of the wives or girlfriends of Kinsmen. Only in war time have Kinsmen united their efforts, in the now famous Milk for Britain campaign. Mr. Gaudet told something of that story and of the $3 million raised to send 50 million quarts of badly needed milk to the wartime children of Britain.

The Kinsmen organization, with permanent headquarters in Toronto under a General Secretary and Editor of their monthly magazine "Kin", is divided into districts for administration purposes, over which there is a Governor and District Executive. Over all is the National Executive, located in Charlottetown this year, which is the governing body of Kinsmen.

Kinsmen is a young man's organization, the age limit of 40 being observed for active membership. Mr. Gaudet pointed out that many Kinsmen passed on to Rotary in various centres.

In introducing Mr. Gaudet as the guest speaker, Chairman Gordon Foster spoke of his education at Queen's Square School, Prince of Wales College, St. Francis Xavier at Antigonish and finally the study of law at Dalhousie University, from which he received his L.L.B. degree in 1942.

Four years in the Royal Canadian Navy was followed by his rehabilitation in his native city as a practicing lawyer.

"As Rotarians we are well aware of the splendid record of service in the name of 'Kin,'" said Mr. Foster "and we are fortunate to have the chief executive of that fine sister service club, tell us the story of Kinsmanship."

Justice Geo. J. Tweedy, co-chairman, expressed the thanks of the club to the speaker for an extremely interesting address.

The executive officers of National Kinsmen seated at the head table as guests were Ian Rankin, Stewart Ives, Freeman Archer, D. I. Sinclair and Dr. Frank McMillan, President of the local club. Other guests were Gilbert Gaudet, Peter Rogers and Rotarian Dr. T. B. Acker, past president of the Halifax club.

Experts Testify At Rates Hearing

OTTAWA, Nov. 17 — (CP) — The Board of Transport Commissioners today heard evidence from United States and Canadian experts as it neared the end of the opening phase of hearings on a railway application for a new method of setting rail freight rates.

Witnesses called by the Canadian Pacific Railway today were Dr. S. L. Miller, professor of transportation at the University of Pittsburgh, and Dr. H. J. Loomis, Vancouver research economist.

Their testimony virtually completed the C.P.R.'s case that opened a week ago. One other rail witness was to be heard tomorrow, with the hearings then going over until early in the new year.

At the resumed sessions in January, counsel for eight governments opposing the proposed new system—all except Ontario and Quebec—were to cross-examine the railway witnesses and introduce counter-evidence of their own.

The proposal of the C.P.R. is that it be allowed to charge freight and other rates so as to give it a set annual return on its investments in rail property.

The board now allows rates on the basis of the company's current requirements.

Today, Dr. Purdy told the board that in the regulation of rates for public utility companies in Canada and the United States in

Find Story Of Lost Mine Myth

VICTORIA, Nov. 17 — (CP) — A story that has lured 27 men to their death was punctured today. It was the story of Lost Creek gold mine, a fabulous deposit supposed to have been discovered by an Indian named Slumach in the Pitt Lake country, 45 miles north-east of Vancouver.

Slumach, the story says, was hanged for murder 50 years ago after he arrived at New Westminster with some gold nuggets of immense value.

Hundreds of men went into the Pitt Lake area through some of the most dangerous country on the British Columbia coast to locate the source—27 never returned.

Recently a company was formed after a party found what they thought was the right location. J. Stewart Smith, provincial superintendent of securities, announced today the company, Slumach Lost Creek Mine Ltd., has been suspended.

The company said through search of the area had uncovered no commercial ore.
