Our dreams take us for the most part to roam in pleasant places. Up woods' green aisles, down lovely lanes where wild roses run riot, lifting, rustled cups for our favors ("just sniff this fragrance — isn't it delicious?") where little brooks glide through ferny dells, and if you stop to listen you catch the subtle songs. And if by chance we should glimpse our paths, a form loved and lost a while, to recall it later to James, it is only to say: Well, dream of the dead, you'll see the living, a remark heard of the elder folks, in our childhood days.

"Oh I know, it hasn't meant a thing," he will say. "All the same, I can't say I liked it." "You're a pattern to me for the most part to roam in pleasant places. Up woods' green aisles, down lovely lanes where wild roses run riot, lifting, rustled cups for our favors ("just sniff this fragrance — isn't it delicious?") where little brooks glide through ferny dells, and if you stop to listen you catch the subtle songs. And if by chance we should glimpse our paths, a form loved and lost a while, to recall it later to James, it is only to say: Well, dream of the dead, you'll see the living, a remark heard of the elder folks, in our childhood days.

"And now are you going?" we queried when at length, breakfast over, James picked up his cap.

"I'm going over to tell Alex that unless I miss my guess" he smiled "there are kittens somewhere about!"

A day this, to print paths and new songsters. Why? Because the newest drifts of snow and a tiny bit-speckled songsparrow flew out of the shrubbery of lilac-bushes, up to a creeper on the front verandah to practice its run of notes, and we creature, modest, faintly often unnoticed, yet among our favorite songsters. Why? Because the songs come, our own, our commonplace delings — as we sweep a room, or prepare a meal, or mix our leaves. And sometimes, as the spring sweetens toward the summer, and our days are a bit bewilderer in form too much living, the leaves seem from the tiny bird, inspire and rest our spirit, and

MARY HAWORTH Paranoid Pursuer Uses Spinster As Scapegoat

Dear Mary Haworth: I am a single woman without family ties or obligations and the only female employee at my place of work.

At times I have accepted rides home from men co-workers. Also, should we meet on the street I have seen nothing wrong in chatting a while or having coffee or lunch with them. They are very well mannered and show quite a bit of respect for me.

Two years ago I lived next door to a woman 20 years my senior. We got along very well at first, until she started bickering and accusing me of wrongful behavior with men co-workers.

To avoid her hecking, I began to stay at a girl friend's place, which was a terrible mile hike. It seems I only aggravated her, she, Mrs. MacDonald, and Mrs. George Campbell (nee Ginn Vessey) former islanders now residing in Vancouver.

Mrs. David W. Roberts, RN, nurse, Sacred Heart Home Char. lotte town left by plane Saturday for Ottawa to visit her sister Helen, who has just returned from a visit to Washington on U.S.A. While in Ontario she will also visit her son and daughter Francis and Margaret Roberts in Toronto.

Mrs. Earl Lavers and Mrs. Edward March were joint hostesses at a dinner last week at the former's home, 91 Upper Prince St., honoring Miss Elizabeth Hayward, Charlottetown, who leaves shortly for Calgary, Alta. Miss Hayward was entertained with a going away gift.

later and yours concern the same situation.

In such case, all the testimony on record to date indicates that your crackpot pursuer is mentally sick and should be taken into protective custody for her own sake as well as yours.

Her zealous mistrust of your friendships with men, her proprietary surveillance of your activities, all in the brief time you were friends with her, is so imprudent, unwarranted, hostile and meddlesome as to be plainly irrational.

Evidence indicates, in short, that in the brief time you were friends with her, at first, you were inadvertently getting involved with a paranoid personality, who in turn is involving you as a principal phantom figure and scapegoat in her progressive sickness of mind.

F/O R.A. PITCAIRN TRANSFERRED

Former Charlottetown resident F.O. R.A. Pitcairn, Southampton, has been transferred to the Flying Instructors School, Multi Engine Flight, Moose Jaw, Sask. F.O. Pitcairn has achieved distinction as an RCAP pilot and also as a Canadian marksman. He will complete as an individual member of the Canadian team for the 1963 Bletley meet in July 1963. He is married to the former F.O. Janet Kathleen Reid, Thompson Station, N.S.

Mothers Guests For Service

MURRAY RIVER — Murray River United Church Explorers had as their guests the mothers for their Easter service.

Mrs. Ralston Graham, a leader of the group, opened the service with the motto, purpose and call to worship. Hymn 586 was followed by Heather Miller's reading of psalm 104, and psalm 147 by Deborah Young, Gail Keenan led in prayer.

A total of 14 members answered roll call with a scripture reading. The offering was taken and dedicated by Darlene Miller. Mrs. Graham was in charge of the responsive reading. Hymn 586 and 584 were sung during the service.

Explorers' leader Mrs. Douglas Saunders read the story of Easter. The closing hymn was no. 588. The Explorers' prayer and the Mipah Benediction were repeated.

Refreshments and Easter treats from the leaders brought the evening to a close.

BALLOON EXPLODES

HERBERDE, West Germany (Reuters)—Three persons were killed and eight hurt when a giant passenger-carrying balloon exploded after landing in a field near here Saturday. The gas-filled balloon had landed safely after flying from Essen and was being deflated by its crew of four and some of the 100 spectators when it exploded with a huge flash and burst out within seconds.

ELLEN'S DIARY

White-Spread This April Day Under Overcast Sky

"April's step is gentle this morning," we said, looking off over the fields.

"She must be an snowshoes!" Mack grinned.

Mild, but wholly white-spread the day was, with only a lightish wind in the trees. The sky was overcast.

"Will there be sun?" we wondered, wash in mind, had breakfast.

"Let's not wish for the day to warm too much," James suggested. "The lambridge had all it could do to run the last heeler. Think of the run — all this snow could make!"

FRESH!

Every Acadian can handle loads of luggage. Trunk space has a total capacity of 25.5 cu. ft. ... which is why it's so hard to fill!

FRISKY!

Sports enthusiasts please note! Bucket seats are just one of the many modestly priced options you can add to your Acadian.

Zinc-O-Bonding, an exceptionally rust-resistant process, guards Acadian's body. Water-washed, air-dried rocker panels and an aluminum muffler also greatly arrest corrosion.

Acadian's brakes are big, safe and self-adjusting.

6 husky individuals feel right at home in Acadian's super-sized interior. Everyone gets plenty of head, shoulder, leg and elbow room.

Acadian's frugal '44" or spirited '66" are both ideal combinations of spunk and savings.
