COLD WEATHER STORAGE

THE WINTER CARE OF FRUITS AND VEGETABLES.

Advantages of Dry Bins—The Importance of Sorting Apples, Potatoes and the Like Before Placing Them in Their Places of Shelter.

After making a crop, and expending large sums for labor in the duty of harvesting it, the next most important matter is to secure the crop for use in winter and to protect it from injury by frost, or loss from dampness or sudden changes of temperature. It is not the freezing of vegetables or fruits that leads them to quickly decay, but the sudden rise of temperature, which causes them to thaw too quickly. The contraction and expansion of heat and cold affects all substances, and the greater the heat or cold, the more injury is done. There is annually a large loss in winter from the effects of frost, and farmers find it more difficult to store certain crops, such as turnips, beets, carrots, apples and potatoes, than to harvest them. Better prices are obtained near the end of winter for such commodities, and it will pay to make full preparations to keep such crops—especially apples and potatoes—in sound condition for market, as they can be shipped at a time when there is but little other work to do.

SHELTER NECESSARY.

Dampness affects vegetables and fruits, and even during periods of extreme cold apples and potatoes will keep in good condition if they are in a very dry place. Cellars are not always dry, owing to the liability of moisture ascending from below the floor. It will not serve the purpose to have a storehouse too warm, as heat is not beneficial in the winter to articles that should be kept near the freezing point. The first thing to provide, however, is shelter, such as a shed that is somewhat open or well ventilated, but which will not permit moisture to enter. The next point is to guard against sudden freezing or thawing of the articles. Any method that will keep them at about forty degrees, or just above the freezing point, will be of advantage, but should they happen to freeze, then the object should be to prevent sudden thawing, which is sure to prove injurious.

STORING AND PACKING.

Such articles as turnips, carrots, beets, and parsnips can be stored under mounds outside, but they become sealed up with frost, and are not always convenient for use. It has been found that when all imperfect or injured roots are discarded, and those that are sound are packed in bins, with dry, clean dirt, or sand used for filling the interstices between them, allowing a layer of dirt and a layer of roots, they will keep in good condition in a cool place in a dry location; and potatoes have been brought out in prime condition when so kept. Apples should not have the slightest bruise or blemish, and if wrapped in tissue paper and then nicely packed in barrels, or boxes or even on shelves, they will keep a long time. Cabbage may be replanted, roots in the ground, covered with leaves, and a board shelter given, which will bring them out in spring in as good condition as when put away. It would be worth the attention of farmers to make some experiments with cold dry storage in bins this winter, and compare with the usual methods.

OCTOBER FARN TALK.

The Proper Temperature for Churning—Various Notes.

The proper temperature for churning depends upon circumstances. Experiments demonstrate that for churning ripened cream the warmer the cream to 70 degrees the sooner the butter comes, but the softer the butter. The lower the temperature, though it will require a longer time, the firmer the butter. From 56 to 60 degrees in summer is nearly correct, though each churner must determine for himself, as the temperature of the churn and of the atmosphere must be considered. The temperature in the churn rises after churning begins owing to friction.

Sheep will eat nearly all kinds of young and tender herbage, and they graze very close to the ground. They prefer a variety of food while on the pasture, and will not confine themselves to a single diet. When kept in the barnyard in winter they should be given a variety also as much as possible for the season.

It will pay to make deep furrows in the wheat field with the plow, if the land is somewhat flat, in order to drain off the surplus water and avoid liability of the plants being thrown up by frost.

Potash in the soil is a special food for certain plants, and if it is deficient the crop will be starved out although the soil may be rich in other substances. It is essential to the formation of starch and sugar, and exerts an influence on the soil as a chemical reagent which permits the plants to appropriate other foods in the soil that would otherwise be out of their reach.

At the recent Iowa State Fair, in a competitive test, a Holstein cow yielded 133.86 pounds of milk in three days, or 44.62 pounds per day (equal to about 23 quarts) as well as produced over two pounds of butter per day. This test was public, and was made for the benefit of those interested among the visitors. The yield, however, is not extraordinary for the breed.

When an animal becomes choked while eating potatoes, turnips, etc., it is stated that by holding up its head and breaking an egg in its mouth relief is obtained immediately, according to one who has tried the experiment.

Room in the stables and barnyard is valuable, yet the best animals are sometimes crowded by those that are unprofitable. When on the pasture there is less injury from crowding, but in the barnyard there is a deprivation of comfort and contentment if too many animals are kept. They have less space for exercise, and also compete with each other for food when it is placed before them to pick over. It does not pay to keep more stock than can be made comfortable.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."

DR. G. C. OSGOOD, Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

DR. J. F. KINCHELOE, Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."

H. A. ARCHER, M. D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

Another anecdote to illustrate Mr. Gladstone's strength of memory. Sir H. Owen took to him on a comparatively recent occasion an important return containing a mass of figures. Mr. Gladstone looked through the return as he ate breakfast, and then handed it back to Sir H. Owen, who took it away with him. In the House of Commons on that day Mr. Gladstone dealt with the figures as if the written returns were before his eyes. Sir H. Owen remarked that Mr. Gladstone was the only minister that ever gave him back such a paper.—Westminster Gazette.

GENERALLY PRESCRIBED

The idea that Bright's Disease cannot be cured Proven to be a Fallacy.

QUEBEC, Nov. 5 – Local physicians are much gratified over the letter of Dr. A. G. McCormick, of Bichmond, this province, testifying to his cure of Bright's Disease, by the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills. Since the introduction of the remedy in this city, many physicians have not hesitated to prescribe the pills, and numerous cures have been the result. This latest testimony, coming from so well known a medical man, proves that the local men were right in changing the old-time remedies for Dodd's Kidney Pills. Hence their jubilation.

Mamma—Why, Tommy, what is the matter?

Tommy — Boo-oo-hoo-oo! My teeth stepped on my tongue—Judge.

Cause and effect; constipation is the cause of a host of diseases. Hawker's liver pills cure constipation, thereby preventing its consequent ills,

The eminent physician was irritable. Calling the janitor, he said, "Who is it that keeps singing, 'I would not live alway?'"

"It's the lady in the apartment above, sir."

"Well tell her that as a professional man, I am prepared to assure her that she won't and that she won't, and that there is consequently no cause for further agitation on her part."

The oil of the Norwegian Cod Liver is nature's grand restorative, and is only found in its entirety and purity in Miller's Emulsion, "the kind that cures" colds, coughs, bronchitis and all affections of the throat and lungs. Every bottle warranted. No oily taste like others. In big bottles, 50c. and $1.00, at druggists.

He (sympathetically)—Do you ever wish you were a man, Miss Granite?

She (witheringly)—Do you ever wish you were?

A Graduate of Toronto University Says:

"My children have been treated with Scott's Emulsion from their earliest years! Our physician first recommended it and now whenever a child takes cold my wife immediately resorts to this remedy, which always effects a cure."

"Let me show you our new correspondence paper for ladies," said the stationer. "We consider this the greatest novelty of the season."

"It is very pretty," said Mrs. Barlow, "But why is it specially for ladies?"

"It has the letters P. S. engraved at the top of the inner sheet," said the stationer. —Harper's Bazar.

THINGS TO REMEMBER.

A cold in the head is the first cause of cattarrh.

Cattarrh is an unhealthy disease and is often followed by consumption.

Hawker's cattarh cure positively cures catarrh, cold in the head and all catarrhal troubles.
