The Milwaukee Horror.

NARRATIVES OF SURVIVORS AND ATTEMPTED ESCAPES—INUTILITY OF THE RESCUE APPLIANCES—THRILLING EXPERIENCES OF FIREMAN AND EYE-WITNESSES—EVIDENCES OF INCENDIARISM—THE STRUCTURE, A REGULAR MATCHBOX.

Many additional particulars of the fire are published. J. Maxwell, who was on the floor, finding the key would not turn in the door-lock, let himself down by means of his bedclothes tied together, to the roof of the inner court, though clad only in his undershirt. The roof was partially glass, through which he was in danger of falling. It was also covered with snow. Another man was there utterly bewildered, with no clothing except his drawers, which had fallen down to his feet. Maxwell vainly tried to arouse him, after which he broke into the window of a room and entered the hallway, which was full of smoke and stifling hot, and escaped. A detective says:—"The girls came down 'thud,' 'thud,' and we tried to catch each one, only to have the corners of the canvas pulled from our hands. At one time the back alley was and seven girls were piled there dead, while a number more were on the ground writhing in agony. Our men could hear the cries of the dying as far as the corner of Fourth and Chestnut streets. One man crawled from window to window down three storeys, and then gave out, fell, and was killed, his hands being torn in shreds from falling and catching." This morning streams of water are still playing on the ruins. The wall of the south-west corner of the building is all that remains standing. Miss Chellis, who perished in one of the upper storeys, was within reach of the fire escape, but was helpless from terror. Judson Haugh jumped from the fifth storey into the canvas. Both his legs were broken and he received fatal internal injuries. He was visiting Allen Johnson, and was agent for the North-Western National Insurance Company. He leaves a wife and four children. With a great effort he said to the bystanders. "Peoria. Wife, baby, and Dix." Henry Cohn, of New York, broke open a window, descended by the fire-escape to the second floor, crawled along the cornice to the building on the north, entered through a window, and escaped. An officer ascended the fire-escape to the fourth storey and entered the window, aroused a number of sleeping inmates, and conveyed four women and three men down. He did not quit until his own life was in danger.

ONE MASS OF GORE,

A HERO'S WORK.

At the height of the panic a man appeared on top of the building opposite the servants' quarters with a ladder in his hand. For a moment the long, unwielding thing poised in the air, and then descended with a crash through the window of the hotel; then, amid the cheers of the multitude below, the man dragged the helpless creatures across the slender bridge, till fully a dozen were rescued. They were all of them in their night clothes, and many were badly frozen before they could be taken to shelter. A woman in a dead faint, unable to help herself in any way, was dragged over in safety, but at one time the whole of her body was hanging over the edge of the ladder, while the brave man held her by one of her ankles. The crowd below held their breath in suspense, expecting every moment to see the ladder turn over or break beneath the terrible strain. The man was equal to the emergency, however, and by a herculean effort drew her upon the slender bridge and crossed in safety, while the crowd, which had endured the most painful suspense for fully ten minutes, burst forth with round after round of applause.

A DANGEROUS STRUCTURE.

One hundred and twenty-five workmen were engaged all day on the 11th, at the ruins of the Newhall House, searching for bodies, but none were found up to seven o'clock in the evening. The police and firemen are confident that fifty people are buried in the ruins, including a number not yet published. Crowds are arriving by every train, and the hotels are filled with tearful, anxious people seeking friends or relatives, supposed to have been in the fire. All the injured are doing pretty well. The feeling here is intense. The men whose greed and recklessness part occasioned the calamity receive unlimited censure. The revenue from rents amounted to $10,000 a year, but the management would not employ a night watchman. One man acted the part of night porter and watchman, but had to attend two trains, and could not properly watch the building. There were only two fire escapes. Three years ago repeated attempts at incendiarism were made in the hotel. Six times in succession a person who was never prosecuted set the place on fire. The hotel had no dividing walls of brick. It was a magnificent match box, worthy of an eastern watering place or frontier town. William McKenzie, night watchman of the hotel, states that he made his rounds on the night of the fire as usual. The bar-room was open until 2 a. m., and Gen. Scheller, proprietor, was there. Three-quarters of an hour after, about half-past three, the watchman took a man to the top floor by the elevator. The watchman looked around the halls and got into the elevator to go down, when he noticed a little smoke. He immediately started down to see where it came from, and by the time he reached the office floor he could go no farther. Throwing open the door he started for the stairs and raised an alarm. There were 110 guests and 67 employees in the building. Twenty so far have been identified among the dead, and 48 are missing, and 67 are known to be saved, leaving 42 unaccounted for, who are supposed to be in the ruins.

It is believed that John Gilbert, the actor, whose bride perished during the fire yesterday, cannot recover from his injuries. His real name is John Demming. Charles Kelsey, (colored), who was burned to death was Tom Thumb's valet. The report that Hendrix, a prominent business man of New Haven, and Prof. Tomlins, musician, of Chicago, had perished, is untrue.

CHICAGO, Jan. 11.—A despatch received here this afternoon says so far 92 lives are known to be lost at the Milwaukee fire. It is feared the number will prove greater.

Mayor of City of Charlottetown.
WM. B. MORRISON,
City Clerk.

Mayor's Office, Charlottetown,
January 2nd, 1883.—tl 24 dly

To the Electors of Ward 4:

GENTLEMEN.—Thankful for the expression of confidence in me, which you exhibited at a public meeting of the Ward, by nominating me as a candidate for City Councillor, I most cordially accept the nomination, and solicit your active co-operation in securing my election.

I am, most respectfully yours,
WILLIAM LADNER.

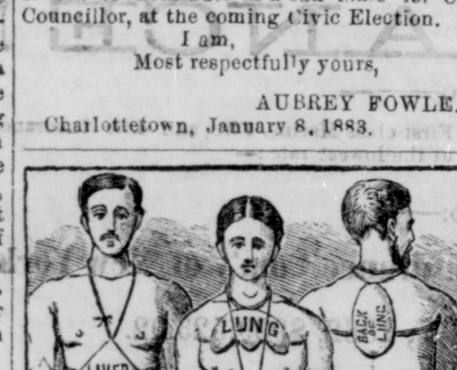
Ch'town, Jan. 3, 1883.—3i.

To the Electors of Ward 3:

GENTLEMEN.—At the request of numerous Electors of your Ward, I have consented to nominate as a candidate for City Councillor, at the coming Civic Election.

I am,
Most respectfully yours,
AUBREY FOWLE.

Charlottetown, January 8, 1883.



FRED. J. GARBETT, M. D., Graduate of the London University, Dean and Registrar of the Boston Medical College of Specialists, says:—"I had tried every system of treatment for the cure of nervous prostration, partial paralysis, and abouic dyspepsia. Persuaded, much against my will, to try the Pad system, I put them on, and in two days found that the paralysis of the nerves had been conquered, the entire nervous system toned up, and now—six months from the day of application—I am free from any symptoms of nervous debility or dyspeptic tendency. In my professional practice as a Physician, in private life and among my personal friends, I shall deem it my bounden duty and my highest privilege, as an act of gratitude, to counsel and enforce this treatment, as the only reliable and effectual remedial agency having for its origin the stomach, liver, brain, and great nerve centres.
