WE'VE GOT NEWS FOR YOU!

These young businessmen are a very important link in the chain that reaches round the world to gather stories and pictures and transform them into the omniscient history, information and entertainment which you find on your doorstep rain or shine, in balmy weather or snow 6 days a week. They are the link between you, the reader and all the time, expense, thought and effort that goes into your daily newspaper.

are learning the system of free enterprise by becoming part of it. They are getting a head start in practicing business management, salesmanship and public relations technique. They are learning the real values of responsibility, dependability and integrity.

For these and many other good reasons we are proud of our newspaper boys and invite our readers on National Newspaper Boy Day to share that pride.

What they do is important in another way, too. As young merchants, conducting their own businesses, buying papers wholesale and selling them retail, they
