NEW CURE FOR DIPHTHERIA.

European Hospitals Practising a Method of Blood Inoculation. So many thousands of children are annually carried off by diphtheria, the sufferings caused by the disease are so agonizing and the remedies hitherto at the disposal of the medical profession so inadequate that the news of the introduction into the Berlin and London hospitals of a new and efficacious cure for this fell malady cannot be regarded otherwise than as a matter of public interest.

The new cure, briefly speaking, is one of inoculation, with this difference, that instead of injecting the poison into the system of the patient, one injects the blood of an animal which has been inoculated with a weak culture of the diphtheria bacillus—the virus of the latter being, however, of so weak a character that it does not affect the system with the malady, but merely renders it immune thereto. Repeated experiments made of late have shown that a few drops of blood from a horse or any other animal thus rendered immune injected into a human being suffering from diphtheria are sufficient to arrest and cure the disease.

THE AUSTRALIAN. The rate of taxation has nearly quadrupled in France since 1830. Male servants are taxed in Great Britain and several other countries. The French people pay over $10,000,000 a year taxes on their windows.

Germany pays $10,000,000 a year taxes on salt and $13,000,000 on sugar. The Australians pay $10,000,000 in taxes to support their Government.

Holland is the only country in Europe that admits coffee free of duty. Until about forty years ago, the Persian Government levied a tax on cats.

The taxes of the people of this country equal about $10 to each inhabitant. The capitation or poll tax is believed to have been the earliest form of taxation.

Almost all the turkish taxes are farmed out, and the resulting corruption is very great. In the early days of the Virginia and Carolina colonies, taxes were paid in tobacco.

During the fourteenth century, in Italy, a tax was levied on everyone who wore shoes. Customs duties on imports were collected in England by Ethelred II. as early as 979.

Most of the Asiatic countries have been ruined by the system of "farming the taxes."—St. Louis Globe Democrat. "Team" and "Dock." A Bostonian writes to the Listener from Lincoln, Neb., that the misuse of the word "team," which applies to the wagon instead of the horses, has not crossed the country.

He says: "I was much humiliated one day, on commenting on a 'team' that had been left in the middle of the street, to be told, by a sort of cowboy in a slouch hat, that I meant 'wagon.' And he was right. I feel it is a local, perhaps merely a Bostonian mistake. And I, as an exiled Bostonian, feel grieved at it. Will the people here come to use it wrongly, too, or shall we reform? I am trying to reform—in conversation. Most of us use it correctly in writing." It is not a local vice merely, but it is eastern rather than western. To offset this bad easternism, they have a curious mixture of terms in New York and further westward which we, in Boston, have been spared.

When they speak of a "dock," they mean a wharf and not, as the word really means, the water between two wharves. And nothing is more astonishing to a New Yorker than to come to Boston and hear of a man falling into the "dock."—Boston Transcript.

Building and Loan Societies. In the early history of building societies they were organized and almost wholly managed by mechanics and laboring men; managed honestly, conservatively and successfully, and to this "class" belongs the honor of originating, conducting and carrying to a point of magnitude and usefulness a scheme that commends the admiration of financiers the world over.

The honest, thrifty householder has proved himself to be the best citizen as far as managing a building society is concerned. When failures have occurred in building societies one of the main causes has been the introduction into the management of financial ideas emanating from the brains of theoretical bankers. Nearly all, if not every error introduced into the scheme, are scholarly errors, always accepted under protest by the mechanic or small storekeeper.—Philadelphia Press.

MOWBRAY ON ANARCHY

THE FAMOUS ENGLISH ANARCHIST DEFINES ITS MEANING. How He Considers Murder and Arson—He Would Reorganize Society and Establish a Great Brotherhood on the Basis of Mutual Aid to One Another.

Charles Wilfred Mowbray, the English anarchist, writes: It has not often happened that the people of the United States have taken exception to an Englishman landing on their shores, but the unusual event has happened at last. I was not aware before the other day that I was such a very dangerous personage. On the contrary, my friends in England have thought me rather mild.

The officials of the United States Government hold a different view, based on what we call in England frank bled, no doubt, from the fear born of corruption and incapacity. I am here and I shall go away when I like unless force is used to compel my return.

You laugh, no doubt, when I say peace. And you think about the actions of men and women who have been identified with the anarchist movement. But let me tell you that these actions, this violence, have more to do with anarchism than it had to do with every movement of the past toward progress.

The genuine anarchist looks with sheer horror upon every destruction, every mutilation of a human being, physical or moral. He loathes wars, executions and imprisonments, the grinding down of the workers whose means is the every round of toil, the social and economical slavery of woman, the oppression of children, the crippling and poisoning of human nature by the preventable crime and injustice of man to man in every shape and form.

Certainly the frame of mind and homicidal outrage cannot stand on the relation of cause and effect. As a communist-anarchist I look upon human societies as essentially natural groups of individuals who have grown into association for the sake of mutually aiding one another in self-protection and self-development.

The society which I desire and would recognize would be that which would be bound together by real sympathies and common ideas and aims. Where in all the world to-day do we find a society bound by such ties as I have named? In my eyes the true purpose of every such natural society, whether it be a nation or a confederation of nations, a tribe or a village community, is to give every member of it the largest possible opportunities in life.

The object of associating is to increase the opportunities of the individuals. One isolated human being is helpless, a hopeless slave to external nature, and the limits of what is possible to human being in free and rational association are as yet unimagined.

Now I hold a natural society good in proportion as it answers what I believe to be its true purpose, and had in proportion as it departs from that purpose and instead of enlarging the lives of the individuals composing it, it crushes and narrows them. For instance, when society recognizes the right of a comparatively few men to the exclusive possession of the soil, and thereby prevent others from so using or using it except upon hard and stultifying terms, I hold that society, in so far as it recognizes such an arrangement, is bad and fails of its purpose, because such an arrangement, instead of enlarging the opportunities for a full human life for everybody, crushes them for all workers and many others, and moreover is forced on the sufferers against their will, and not arrived at, as all social arrangements ought to be, by mutual agreement.

Such is my view of human societies in general, and, of course, I endeavor to find out and make clear to myself and to others the main cause why our own existing society is here and now falling so dismally, in many directions, to fulfill its true function. I have arrived at the conclusion that these causes of failure are mainly two. First, the unacknowledged authority of man over man as a morally right principle, a thing to be accepted and submitted to, instead of being resisted as essentially evil and wrong. Second, the equally unacknowledged recognition of the right of property, i.e., the right of individuals who have complied with certain legal formalities to monopolize material things, whether they are using them or need to use them or not, and whether they have produced them or not.

To me this state of public conscience which permits these two principles of authority and of property to hold sway in our social life seems to be the root of our miserably desocialized condition, and, therefore, I am against all institutions and all habits which are based on these principles or tend to keep them up.

The Largest Churches. We find a list of the largest churches in Europe with figures representing their seating capacity, but we have an idea that the figures given indicate the capacity for the standing multitude, as in few cases are there seats provided. We give the list, however, as we find it:

St. Peter's Church, Rome..... Seats. Milan Cathedral..... 37,000 St. Paul's, Rome..... 32,000 St. Paul's, London..... 25,000 St. Petrus, Bologna..... 24,000 Florence Cathedral..... 24,000 St. John's Cathedral, Naples..... 23,000 St. Sophia, Constantinople..... 23,000 St. John's, Lateran..... 22,000 Notre Dame, Paris..... 21,000 Pisa Cathedral..... 21,000 St. Stephen's, Vienna..... 20,000 St. Dominic's, Bologna..... 19,000 St. Peter's, Bologna..... 18,000 Cathedral of Vienna..... 17,000 St. Mark's, Venice..... 16,000 Spurgeon's Tabernacle, London..... 7,000 The figures opposite Spurgeon's Tabernacle mean the seating capacity.

An Essay on Fools. A smart fool is always dangerous, and if he is ignorant the case is worse. But when he is complicated with high moral pretensions he may easily become unsafe in the extreme.—New York Sun.

Under authority of the Act of last Session, 57 Vic., Chap. 6, the Government of Prince Edward Island is now prepared to receive, from any person or persons, Temporary Loans, at 4 per cent. interest, on call or on such terms may be agreed upon. This will afford a good opportunity for the investment of a large or small sum for short or long periods. ANGUS McMILLAN, Prv Treasurer. June 25—pat

Hood's Cured After Others Failed

Scrofula in the Neck—Bunches All Gone Now.

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass. 'Gentlemen—I feel that I cannot say enough in favor of Hood's Sarsaparilla. For five years I have been troubled with scrofula in my neck and throat. Several kinds of medicines which I tried did not do me any good, and when I commenced to take Hood's Sarsaparilla there were large bunches on my neck so sore that I could not bear the slightest touch. When I had taken one bottle of this medicine, the sores had gone, and before I had finished the second the bunches had entirely disappeared.' BLANCHE ATWOOD, Sanguerville, Maine.
