A Word to the Girls.

It is perfectly natural that you should be fond of Jack or Harry, but don't display that fondness too openly. The old-fashioned process of courting is still proper; but it should be confined to the parlor, the sitting-room, the ice-cream saloon or the moonlight promenade. And don't make all the opportunities yourself; let the young man do a little of the planning. The fruit that hangs high is always coveted most. If you cannot hold a lover without constantly throwing yourself in his way, let him go. There are plenty of good fellows—honest fellows, upright fellows—to be had if you only manage them properly. The low light in the parlor, the single chair, the good-bye at the door, are still as effective as they were one hundred years ago.

Don't try to hold the young men against their will. The more you do that the more they won't be held. If they appear to grow cold, you should appear to grow colder. If they appear to grow careless of you, you should appear to grow more careless of them. When they relent, you should relent, when they soften, you should soften, when they ask forgiveness, you should forgive, when they—but why pursue it? Tact will teach you how to achieve the desired end without in the least lowering your womanhood.

Business is Business.

Young Billkins was utterly devoted to business, but somehow found time to fall in love and ask the girl to marry him. The time was set and he called on the old gentleman to get his consent. He had a long talk and that evening came up to see the girl.

"Well," she said, in considerable anxiety, "What did pa say?"

"He said that wheat was going up and there was a fine chance for a man to make a handsome little dot."

"Pshaw! Didn't he say anything else?"

"Oh, yes, we talked about a dozen ventures that might be made, with an excellent chance of coming out ahead every time."

"Bother the business! What did he say when you asked him if you could have me?"

"Wha—wha—what?" he stammered.

"Why, what did he say about me?"

"By George Mary, I forgot all about it, I'll go the first thing in the morning, and see him about it."

Translating at Sight.

"Let us see some of your black kid gloves," said Mrs. Snaggs to a clerk at the Fifth avenue store.

"These are not the latest style, are they?" she asked, when the gloves were produced.

"Yes, madam," said the clerk. "We have had them in stock only two days."

"I didn't think they were," because the fashion paper says that black kids have tan stitches and vice versa. I see the tan stitches, but not the vice versa."

The clerk explained that vice versa was French for seven buttons, and Mrs. Snaggs bought the gloves.

Capital and Interest.

I suppose Eastern capital has done a great deal for this country, said a traveler to a Dakota settler. Oh, I expect it has—least that is what they all say. Haven't you been benefited by it? Well, no, can't say as I have. What has been the trouble. Why, you see, I borrowed $50 of yer Eastern capital when I first came out here, and blamed ef it hasn't kept me humping 'bout's hard as I can hump to raise the $30 each month to pay the interest on it. It has kinder held me back stranger.

About the Size of It.

The Hamilton Spectator reports this suggestive dialogue:

Uncle Sam to Canada: "We propose to steal your fish. If you won't let us steal them, we will stop buying forty million dollars' worth of goods annually and stop selling you fifty millions worth."

Canada to Uncle Sam: "Go right along with your short stop, and we'll see who can stand it the longest."
