

EXECUTIVE EDITOR GIVEN FAREWELL GIFT

Ending what he termed "one of the longest and most satisfying" periods of association in his career, Burton Lewis, right, executive editor of The Guardian and Evening Patriot, yesterday was honored by his associates of both papers when they presented him with a farewell gift. Messages of farewell and sorrow at his departure were given by William (Bill) Hancox, general manager and publisher, and by Frank Walker, Guardian editor. Here Mr. Lewis, who leaves today on an extended leave of absence to take up a position in Toronto directing a 1967 centennial project for Dominion Stores Ltd., accepts the gift from Mr. Hancox.

Giant Tanker Making Way Through Ice

William Connolly, district manager for Irving Oil Ltd., last night reported the company's icebreaking tanker "Ours Polaris" is making her way through the Northumberland Strait headed for Charlottetown.

The skipper of the tanker reported that the ship had cleared the Canso Lock shortly before noon yesterday, but a few miles east of Wood Islands she was beginning to encounter heavy ice with frequent patches of rafted ice.

The Polaris, which is bringing in a 3,000,000-gallon cargo of heating oils for the local bulk storage plant, was expected to be off Point Prim after midnight last night.

But no attempt will be made to bring her into port before daylight, and therefore she is expected to dock at the company's mooring about mid-forenoon today.

SDU-PWC

(Continued from page 1) province would make available to the board of governors of Prince of Wales College a sum sufficient for it to set up its administrative and classroom facilities in its new location. When this new building is completed, Prince of Wales College would move to its new campus and the government would take over the present college building for use as a high school or as it sees fit. Montgomery Hall would remain a Prince of Wales College residence for women and transportation would be maintained by Prince of Wales College.

The University of Prince Edward Island would proceed to construct the necessary science and laboratory buildings on its own remaining 50 acres.

The University of Prince Edward Island would negotiate with St. Dunstan's University for control and ownership of the library. Responsibility for the recreational facilities and playing fields now operated by St. Dunstan's would be turned over to the university and it would assume responsibility for their maintenance and operation for the whole university, including the two colleges.

ALTERNATE SUGGESTION

If, for good reasons, the suggestion for one university with two member colleges on the one campus proves impossible or unattractive, the commission believes that steps should be taken at an early date to organize and establish a university of Prince Edward Island even though this might be more than a holding company after the fashion of the former university of New Zealand, and with a minimum accommodation and staff for its limited purposes.

LOCAL BRIEFS

IN P.E.I. HOSPITAL — Mrs. Glen Constable of 13 Euston St., city, is a patient in the P.E.I. Hospital.

TWO STAR AWARD — A Prince Edward Island Holstein cow, Lilac Lodge Madeline, qualified recently for a Two Star award for owner George Godfrey, North Wiltshire. One star is issued when there are three or more progeny classified Good Plus or better with breed class averages of at least 100 in milk and butterfat. Points are awarded for each qualifying son or daughter according to a scale of standards. One star is awarded for each six points.

CARD PARTY RESULTS — The following are the results of Wednesday's card party at the Basilica Recreation Centre: Ladies' first, Mrs. Priscilla Smkh, second, Mrs. William Berrigan; gent's first, Wilfred Hayes, second, Patrick Trainor; consolation, Mrs. C. Atkins and John Coady; freezout, Mrs. Bert Clarkin and Harry Hughes; special, Harry Hughes.

SUMMARY OF FINDINGS — In its general summary of findings, the commission recommended: More of the net provincial revenue be allocated to education at the university level. The Prince of Wales College Act 1964 be proclaimed at once, that its board of governors be appointed and that they proceed to provide for four years of college courses.

The government should make operating grants to Island universities beginning at $300 per full term enrolled student per year. Increases of about 10 per cent per year should be contemplated for about five years.

Standard university entrance requirement should be established at completed grade 12 of the provincial high school system with an agreed upon pass mark in required subjects. University courses be limited to the bachelor degrees in arts, science, education, commerce and perhaps nursing.

All high school education in the province be integrated into the present system and that Charlottetown and Summerside be included on the same basis as other districts.

Colleges should not offer high school courses and Prince of Wales College should be relieved of the Model School.

Although university a.d.u.t. education promotion should be encouraged, such special courses as agriculture, fishery techniques, special classes for dropouts and similar programs should be entrusted to the vocational institutes.

A library council representing all the existing libraries should be established to coordinate library purchases and to avoid unnecessary duplication.

Among the recommendations of the commission directed at St. Dunstan's University and Prince of Wales College were: The boards of governors should set up a close liaison in developing common admission standards, curricula and tuition fees. Sharing of facilities and teaching personnel should be carefully studied and they should participate actively in similar projects common to other Atlantic universities.

The boards of governors should study the feasibility of federation with a view of providing the highest quality of education for all the students who can qualify.

Although it is not the primary purpose of the university to teach or promote any religious affiliation, nevertheless the importance of the spiritual factor in education demands that the facilities for the training of the young in religious matters should not be overlooked.

St. Dunstan's and Prince of Wales College should co-operate fully in fund raising with careful planning and timing designed to make for the maximum promotion. Arrangements could be provided for combined efforts by earmarking donations when donors so signify their intentions.

NEW REFRIGERATORS ON WHEELS

Canadian National is testing new refrigerated containers for transporting frozen food by rail and sea from the mainland to Newfoundland. The containers which cross aboard the CN ferry William Carson, carry 5,000 lbs. of frozen meat. Each is individually controlled by a thermostat and can be set at any temperature between zero and 70 degrees. On flatcars each group is powered by a generating unit and on board ship they are plugged into the power supply. Railway employees keep a careful check on the containers, logging the temperature during stops created cargo on the CN service along the route. Eight of the new containers handle refrigerated cargo on the CN service along the route. Eight of the new containers handle refrigerated cargo on the CN service along the route. The provincial government should co-operate in the federation of St. Dunstan's University and Prince of Wales College by the establishment of a university of Prince Edward Island with the two colleges as components.

The new university should have a separate chancellor, president and board of governors; it should be free of political control and should be free to disperse government grants for its own purposes.

St. Dunstan's and Prince of Wales should maintain their own identities, retain their respective organizations, control residences, food services and classroom activities, but would surrender their degree granting powers to the university of Prince Edward Island.

With the co-operation of St. Dunstan's and Prince of Wales, the university of Prince Edward Island should set up a new campus, preferably within the City of Charlottetown in the general neighborhood of St. Dunstan's.

The government should make available to Prince of Wales College a grant of land approximately 50 acres and a special capital grant to enable Prince of Wales to move to this new location and establish administrative and classroom facilities sufficient for its needs.

The government should make available to the University of Prince Edward Island funds sufficient to build and equip a new science building with sufficient facilities to teach all the science subjects for students from both colleges.

The university of Prince Edward Island should provide the professional component for teacher training so that students from both colleges with sufficient academic credits might qualify for a bachelor's degree in education.

The government should guarantee loans for capital construction for the academic needs of the university and its federated colleges.

NURSING TIE-IN — The new university should explore with the nursing schools of the province the needs for future university education in nursing.

The government should make available to college students bus facilities on the same basis as those now provided for high school and vocational students.

The government need no longer provide student loan services but might consider the establishment of entrance scholarships and bursaries based on scholarship and tenable at colleges within the province.

The government should continue its policy of making grants to universities outside the province which supply special graduate facilities to students from Prince Edward Island.

FINANCING — In a section on financing university education, the commission pointed out "we are convinced that provincial revenues are not without limits. We are convinced, however, that government and people of this province are prepared to invest in higher education within the province."

"Your commission, therefore recommends the following: the provincial government make an annual contribution of $300 per student; all residence and food facilities be operated by the component colleges; $400 per year as a tuition fee; initial capital costs should be written off over a period of years."

"It was also suggested that the government 'examine its position relative to federal education grants' and if a provincial university could be established, more public and private support would be forthcoming."
