Leafs Move On

WINDSOR MAPLE LEAFS have fought their way through four undefeated playoff series' to the Eastern Canadian Allan Cup semi-finals and club officials, including playing coach and scoring ace Jacques Allard, have said they think the Leafs will have a clear road to Canada's amateur championship.

The club's playoff successes include series sweeps over New Glasgow and Halifax for Nova Scotia honors; Charlottetown for the Maritime title, and Montreal Boisclair this week to move them against Ottawa Montaguards in the next cup round. They have not been defeated in 18 games.

The Leafs' club that Allard formed last September in Quebec is the strongest team to represent the Maritimes in Allan Cup play in recent years. They are more evenly balanced than the Amherst Ramblers of 1961-62, at that time Nova Scotia's strongest team in several years.

This year's Windsor club has the best band of skaters we have ever seen perform from a Maritime centre. (The Big Four was before our days so don't you "old timers" be offended). The "Flying Frenchmen" have continually skated all opposition into the ice and their hard shooting and effective passing seems to improve with every game.

They have been strengthened considerably by the addition of starry Oscar Gaudet from Moncton, Luke Hayden and Alfie Flanagan of Halifax and Donnie Frizzell, Charlottetown Royals. Gaudet and Flanagan filled in for the injured Rod Gaudreault during the Montreal series and both fitted in very well. Hayden bolsters an already strong defence and Frizzell gives them some goaltending strength.

Possible Weak Spots

GOALTENDING however, may prove to be Maple Leafs eventual downfall. Regular netminder Serge Aubry, although he seems to have the air and confidence of an experienced pro, has not been tested by the kind of shooting this season that the Leafs may come up against if they are to take the Cup back to the Annapolis Valley town. Frizzel, although he has shown vast improvement over last season, may not be ready to lead a team to the Allan Cup.

The other question mark concerning Windsor and their Cup hopes is whether or not they can win over a hard checking club. The only time they were bodied this season was for two periods against Charlottetown Royals. For that span of time their attack was limited and disorganized.

We don't think they will have too much difficulty against the Montaguards in the next series (last year junior Al Stitt is one of Ottawa's top scorers), and they will probably fight their way past the Ontario winner. But what about the west?

We will put our money on a Winnipeg Maroon victory in the west, and if so it could be bad news for our Maritime Maple Leafs.

The Maroons were second best to Windsor Bulldogs last year, and have gained valuable experience this season with their tour of Europe. Manager Bud Holohan has added some experienced intermediates and juniors to his lineup for next week's playoff set against the winner from the Thunder Bay Senior League. The Maroons shouldn't have too much difficulty there and if they can maintain their pre-European tour pace, they will defeat the Saskatchewan Senior League winner. The western final will have that series winner against the Alberta-British Columbia champion.

North River Meets Saints

The North River Juniors go against the St. Dunstans Junior Varsity hockey team in the third and final game of their best of three semi-final series in the Charlottetown and District Junior league playoff action.

The Saints, heavy favourites going into this series ran into more than they had bargained for when they met the North River squad who came up with a surprising victory in the second game and North River coach, Norman Larter, said "he is confident his boys will pull this out of the fire tonight and advance against the Legionaires in the final round."

The Saints under the guiding hard of Fr. Charles Cheverie will be out to put these North River pucksters to the sidelines and have them participating in the playoffs as interested spectators and not as players.

All in all it shapes up as an interesting night of hockey action and local fans would do themselves a justice to find their way to the Charlottetown Forum witness these two teams display to witness these two teams display their various hockey talents.

IS HE COMING OUT OR BACKING IN?

Leaf goalie John Bower takes up a turtle-like position in his net as Montreal Canadiens John Ferguson (22) and Leafs Tim Horton (7) fence for the puck behind the net. Horton has a handicap in the form of big Jean Beliveau, the Montreal captain.

'Pocket' Notches Winner As Canadiens Nip Leafs

By TOM WILLIAMS

TORONTO (CP)—Little Henri Richard stole the puck from Toronto defenceman Allan Stanley and broke away to score the winning goal with 25 seconds remaining in the game as Montreal Canadiens defeated the Maple Leafs 3-2 Tuesday night and took a 2-1 lead in their best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-final.

Leafs, who appeared to control the game fr the first two periods and the first half of the third, blew the decision on two miscues by veteran players.

Leafs led 2-1 after the second period and appeared to have the Canadiens blanketed in the third until Red Kelly's stray pass was picked up by Montreal who fired the tying goal past goaltender Johnny Bower from the blueline at 17:35.

Bob Pulford, a standout for Toronto all the way, scored both goals for the defending Stanley Cup champions. Claude Provost, with his second goal of the series, gave Canadiens a 1-1 tie at the end of the first period.

The series continues with the fourth game here Thursday night.

MARKS BIRTHDAY

Pulford, rugged checking centre, was celebrating his 28th birthday Tuesday. He started off festivities when he took Stanley's perfect pass on a two-on-one breakaway situation and beat Canadiens goaltender Charlie Hodge with a 15-foot shot to the far corner of the net at 3:40 of the first period.

Forty-one seconds later, Provost burst around Stanley on a pass from Richard, fired a hard 10-foot shot that Bower stopped, then banged in the rebound with the Leafs goaltender well out of position.

The Pulford line, which played a tremendous two-way game as it continually forged around the Canadiens net while keeping the big Montreal line of Jean Beliveau, Bernie Geoffrion and John Ferguson in check, gave the Leafs the lead again at 16:55 of the second period.

Eddie Shack started the play deep in the Montreal zone, firing a hard pass to Pulford, who relayed it on the right wing to Stewart for a tough shot at Hodge. The Montreal goalie juggled the puck for a split second as he dropped to his knees and Pulford rapped it out of his grasp and into the net.

From then, Leafs laid down a strong checking pattern that broke up play after play as Canadiens tried to get untracked.

HIT POSTS

In the third period both Pulford and big Frank Mahovlich hit goalposts after apparently beating Hodge. The Leafs continued to carry the play until around the 15-minute mark of the period, when their defensive play appeared to collapse.

The speedy line of Bill Hicke, Ralph Backstrom and Bobby Rousseau were pressing around the Toronto zone and Leafs seemed unable to get control of the puck.

Kelly, attempting to dump the puck out to relieve the pressure, didn't get the loft he wanted and Tremblay grabbed it and fired the equalizing goal, with Bower slightly screened on the play.

On the winner, Leafs were driving around the Canadiens' zone when the puck was cleared out to centre ice. Stanley went back to get it but lost control and Richard was in the clear from the Toronto blueline.

He skated right in on Bower, faked to the glove side, then pulled the puck back and fired it in on the stick side from the edge of the crease.

Leafs removed Bower for the last 17 seconds but were unable to get a clear scoring chance as the game ended.

Bower stopped 26 shots in all, most of them from the blueline or farther away. Hodge turned away 28 shots, including several of them from close range.

Mahovlich, besides hitting the goalpost in the third, missed three great chances from the edge of the crease in the first 10 minutes of the game as he just failed to steer the puck into the net. Don McKennedy also hit the post for Leafs in the second.

Toronto defenceman Bob Baun was the game's only casualty. He was stunned momentarily early in the first period when Canadiens' Dave Balon crashed him into the end boards in the Leafs zone from behind.

In the third, he was felled by Provost's flipped shot in the Toronto end, suffering a cut on his nose requiring four stitches.

Toronto took seven of 13 minor penalties handed out by referee Vern Buffey, with Balon receiving a 10-minute misconduct and an automatic $25 fine when he argued his minor for charging in the third period.

SUMMARY

First period—1. Toronto, Pulford 1 (Stanley) 3:40; 2. Montreal, Provost 2 (Richard, Laperriere) 4:21. Penalties—Balon 0:42, Bathgate 6:18, Baun 9:1[illegible], Richard 11:27, Pulford 19:20.

Legionaires Defeat Sydney Juniors 4-2

SUMMERSIDE BUREAU OF THE GUARDIAN

Grant Grady's Junior Legionaires took a commanding two-game lead in the Maritime junior hockey championship by outskating Sydney Juniors 4-2 in a rough and tumble thriller at Civic Stadium last night. Summerside now leads the series two games to none with the next game or games to be played in Sydney.

The game was dotted with hard-hitting plays with tempers flaring on several occasions but it wasn't until the wide-open third period that friction between players and spectators broke into action, ending in a wild donnybrook on the ice and in the stands just after the final siren.

Summerside, led by the sparkling dashes of Dave Gaudet, Paul MacWilliams and George Dalton, marked the score sheet at 15:44 of the first frame to draw first blood when Bobby Perry popped one past Allister Moore in the Sydney net. The assist went to MacWilliams.

The visitors bounced right back at 3:35 of the second period as John Mulvihill caught the upper right hand corner with Joe Sonier off balance and Summerside a man short. Joe Andrea got the assist.

TEMPERS FLARE

Near the end of the second frame hecklers began to get the best of some Sydney players and at one stage a hot-tempered fan swung a shovel at one of the visitors who retorted with his stick.

Willie Gallant made it 2-1 for the locals with a long screened shot at the five minute mark of the third period.

John Poirier, Legionaires valuable right winger, was slammed into the boards early in the period and was taken to hospital to check for possible broken ribs.

A scramble around the Sydney cage brought Summerside its third goal with Alan Gaudet scoring, assisted by Bob Perry. Within two minutes Sydney came back and Jack Ferguson slipped a fast one past Sonier right from the faceoff.

Although the fine Sydney squad showed well, they couldn't cope with the Legionaires' drive in the closing minutes of the game. The final goal came at 18.07 with Alan Gaudet netting his second of the night.

With the final siren Jack Ferguson and Don Campbell came to blows which seemed to spark the melee which found nearly all players and several spectators involved. Order was eventually restored by the town police.

Saga Of NHL Netminders Since Opening Of League

By ED SIMON

TORONTO (CP) — If coach Syd Abel or one of his defencemen should wind up tending goal before Detroit Red Wings get through the Stanley Cup playoffs it wouldn't be anything new.

Just about everyone except the ice-sweepers has taken his turn at donning the pads at some time or other during the 71 years since the cup was first put up for competition.

In the early years, they sometimes even had to do without the pads. That was when goaltenders had to serve their own penalties, turning over their duties to a teammate.

Lester Patrick, a rover with Brandon, Man., in the seven-man days of 1904, and King Clancy, an 18-year-old rookie defenceman for Ottawa Senators in 1923, were two of the more illustrious substitutes. Neither was scored upon and Clancy, now assistant general manager of Toronto Maple Leafs, finished his two-minute stint with a flourish, skating down the ice to fire a shot at Hal Winkler in the Edmonton nets.

Patrick, whose sons, Lynn and Muzz, now are general managers of Boston Bruins and New York Rangers, respectively, had a longer spell of netminding in the 1928 finals.

A silver-haired 44, Patrick was manager-coach of the Rangers when goaltender Lorne Chabot was struck in the left eye by a puck fired by Nels Stewart of Montreal Maroons.

Two goaltenders belonging to other clubs were sitting in the stands but the Maroons refused Patrick permission to use them. So Patrick took over at the four-minute mark of the second period, stopped 18 shots and allowed only one goal by Stewart as the Rangers won 2-1 in overtime.

The Maroons relented and allowed the Silver Fox to use Joe Miller of Ottawa for the rest of the series. He permitted three goals in three games and the Rangers won the cup by three games to two.

Another goaltending rhubarb arose in 1938 when Mike Karakas of Chicago Black Hawks injured his toe before the start of the finals against Toronto. An hour before the opening game, the Leafs grudgingly let Chicago dress Alfie Moore, subgoalie for New York Americans, who promptly sparked the Hawks to a 3-1 victory.

At that point league president Frank Calder barred Moore and Chicago was struck with Paul Goodman, an unknown minor-leaguer, for the second game. Toronto won 5-1. Karakas limped back into action for the next two games, allowed only one goal in each and the Hawks won the cup.

Wings Shut-Out Hawks; Take 2-1 Series Lead

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

DETROIT (CP)—Goalkeeper Terry Sawchuk, discharged from hospital only two hours earlier, Tuesday night shut out Chicago Black Hawks 3-0 to give Detroit Red Wings a 2-1 lead in their best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-final.

The 35-year-old netminder, treated in hospital for a pinched nerve since Monday morning, continued his personal hex on the Black Hawks dating back to Feb. 24, 1962, when Chicago last won against him on Detroit ice. Since then he has beaten the Hawks at Olympia Stadium 13 times.

The Wings dominated play throughout most of the 60 minutes. They led 1-0 at the end of the first period and added a pair in the final 15 minutes.

Rightwinger Bruce MacGregor tipped in a rising Gordie Howe slapshot at 5:10 of the first period and first-year pro Paul Henderson made it 2-0 at 4:51 of the third.

Alex Delvecchio finished off the scoring with less than three minutes remaining in the game and the Hawks were dead. Old pro Howe celebrated his 36th birthday with two assists and he gave Hawk goaltender Glenn Hall the fits most of the evening with blazing drives from all angles.

20 PENALTIES CALLED

Referee Frank Udvari, who called a record 31 penalties in the first game of the Toronto Montreal semi-final, started out in the same vein Tuesday night with 11 in the chippy first period. He had things under control and the game ended with 20 penalties, 10 to each club, and most of them for hooking.

The Hawks, who started out this series last Thursday at home with an easy 4-1 victory, have shown little of the form that gave them a second-place finish in the 70-game National Hockey League season. They dropped a 5-4 decision three nights later to a raw rookie, Bob Champoux who took over from the injured Sawchuk, and Tuesday night they couldn't mount any sort of sustained offensive.

Sawchuk, who last scored a Stanley Cup shutout on March 26, 1961, with a 2-0 decision over Toronto Maple Leafs, made 28 saves. Most of them were from far out and he had little trouble looking after the not-so-fearsome Hawks. Glenn Hall in the Chicago nets also made 26 saves but he performed all sorts of contortions to hold out the Red Wings, particularly in the final period.

MacGregor was right there for his goal. Howe, shooting for his 50th goal in Stanley Cup play, blazed a high-rising shot from about 40 feet out and the 22-year-old winger, standing just outside the crease, got his stick on the puck at the last second and it sailed into the top right-hand corner.

Royalty Sports Are Big Success

The West Royalty Centennial Ice Sports held at St. Dunstan's University Rink on Tuesday, March 24th, sponsored by the West Royalty Athletic Association, and under the capable direction of Mr. Dave Boswell of the Department of Physical Fitness, culminated beyond earlier expectations in an evening of friendly competition and fun for the school children, and a pleasant outing for their parents and many other interested spectators.

The success of this event, the first for many years in West Royalty was made possible chiefly through the co-operation of Dunstaffnage hockey teams who forfeited their scheduled ice time for the occasion, and because of generous donations of prizes by several Charlottetown and vicinity firms. The ribbons, proudly worn by winning participants, were decoratively made up by Mrs. Ralph Howes.

It is hoped that this endeavor will result in the purpose for which it was intended of uncovering a lot of latent talent, and of developing in all the youth of the district a fuller participation in skating, hockey and other sports, which, although naturally not ends in themselves, cannot help but result in aiding in the creation of good sportsmanship, good fellowship and good citizenship.
