

extracts' from its editorial articles. At any rate he was, as editor, responsible for their appearance in the journal he controlled; and his objection to their having been noticed by the Court and Jury merely proves that his effusions were of so debased a character that he dared not avow them.

The second complaint is, that the passages in question were not libels. That was very concisely decided by the Judge, who characterised them as "monstrous libels," and quoted the opinion of Lord Mansfield, in order to shew, that if there had been legal proof offered of such libels having been perpetrated by the prosecutor, it would be the duty of the jury, he said, to award him no damages at all; and the Jury took nearly the same view of the matter, when they stamped the plaintiff with disgrace, on account of his "monstrous libels," in awarding him a FARTHING.

The third objection is the best of all, that there was no proof that he had garbled the passages we read. We have always understood that it was not necessary to prove that the moon was made of green cheese. The burden of proof of that fact is generally thrown upon the party who propounds the ingenious theory.

The fourth objection to the Judge's charge is, that we might as well have read extracts from Robinson Crusoe, and the Judge have discoursed on the goatskin garments of the wrecked mariner. The reference to his lordship we have noticed merely as evidencing the spirit which dictated the article; and we can tell the editor of the Islander, that the poor savage, Friday, would have felt himself for life degraded in his own estimation and that of others, had he been charged before a public meeting of his dusky brethren with the authorship of shanders as vile as those we adduced.

We agree with Goldsmith and Maclean "that the man who speaks truth is a much more cunning fellow than he who does not," and we are happy to say that the expression was never more satisfactorily verified than at the trial. We talked not of ancestor coming after a man—we suggested not an antecedent posterity. Such statements are untrue; and the "cunning man" who made them, and the man on whose behalf they were made, found the difference between the truths we advanced and the fictions they invented.

After all his complaints, we are informed that "the plaintiff has obtained all that he asked for or wanted." We rather incline to the belief that he got considerably more than he wanted or expected. However, if he is satisfied, we are content.

The pen which, as we were recently informed, had a trick of writing grammatically, without the control of the guiding hand of its master, must have been in a queer state when the following was indited:—

"The Defendant observes," says the Islander, "in the Examiner of the 19th that 'although subjected to a trying ordeal, we have come out of the fiery furnace unscathed.' It must be admitted that if the Defendant be unscathed by eleven, if not twelve, of his own friends, upon their solemn oath, finding him a convicted liar, do not scathe him, that nothing else can." We have placed the whole of the latter sentence in italics, in order to render the more conspicuous its grammatical correctness and elegance of style.

The whole article evinces such a mingled sense of mortifying defeat and baffled hate, that we feel pity for the state of mind under which the writer laboured when he penned it. After claiming no less a sum than one thousand pounds, by giving which to the public charities he hoped to render himself famous as the benefactor of the poor—a jury of his own selection awarded him one farthing, with which he professes himself satisfied; but it will, nevertheless, go a very short distance towards making up the amount of the jury fees, which we hope he has had great felicity in paying. If the statement regarding the farthing satisfaction were true, the man who has been so handsomely indemnified for his loss of character might have called upon us before he commenced the suit, and we would have voluntarily given him double the amount he recovered. But this expressed satisfaction at the result of the trial we rather think is feigned.

The individual to whom we have extended this lengthy notice glorifies himself greatly on the assumption of our having been "convicted" of propagating "falsehoods" respecting him. Now there can be no conviction until judgment be entered up, and perhaps that is farther off than he imagines. As to the alleged "falsehoods" which formed the ground of action, everybody knows that they were mere matters of public rumour—often referred to by Mr. Joseph Pope in the House of Assembly, and sometimes alluded to by Mr. Maclean himself in the Islander. They did not originate with us; and what is more, they have never yet been shown to be either true or false, and are as likely to be the one as the other. As they were calculated to bring into public contempt the individual to whom they referred, the law declares them to be libellous; and as we published them, we did not attempt to deny that we were amenable to the law. But all the papers in the Colony circulated the same libellous matter when they gave publicity to Mr. Pope's speeches, and might all as reasonably have been prosecuted as we have been.

It is really amusing to hear a person of the editor's character and antecedents complain of being libelled by others. Scarcely a No. of the Islander has made its appearance since he assumed the management of that paper, five years ago, without having thrown on the community a flood of defamation as foul and feid as any that ever polluted the moral atmosphere. Even since the trial, while this journal has manifested a spirit of forbearance little to be expected from us under the circumstances of our position, but which has nevertheless gaiped us many friends where we had enemies before—the Islander has given no evidence of an improved temper and disposition on the part of its editor; but on the contrary, its columns have run over with the most malicious personal vituperation, directed against ourselves particularly; and even in the No. before us, it would not be difficult to convince any jury—no matter to what political party they might belong—that there are libels far more malicious and gross than that which formed the subject of the recent action. It would be folly to think of prosecuting the editor—his character has been already assessed at its full value, and the community do not care to see him again enter a Court of Justice in any capacity; but it may be a matter for consideration whether the cause of morality would not be served by inflicting a proper punishment on the reckless publisher, who, though he may be deficient in understanding—and that is more his misfortune than his fault—has surely common sense enough to perceive that he is every week doing violence to the moral sense of the community, to say nothing of the damage to his political party and to himself as an individual—by spreading abroad the poisonous ebullitions of a mind rendered desperate by the painful consciousness of defeat, and too apt to be governed by the impulse, that as there is no character to be lost, there is no moderation to be shown.

The editor of the Islander delights to taunt us about the "conviction," as if one stood upon the record, and were particularly galling to our feelings. But there were libel suits in this Colony before ours, and we cannot see that the respective defendants to them were in a better position than we are with respect to the last one. A brief reference may not be uninteresting. In the first place, Mr. Maclean himself is really a "convicted libeller," which we are not—no judgment having been given in our case—and what is far worse, he was convicted of sedition libel. In the second place, in the year 1820 the late James B. Palmer, Esqr., brought an action for libel against James D. Hazard, Esqr., in which he recovered one shilling damages, although he had the modesty to ask for three thousand pounds, which he promised to appropriate to the establishment of a free press, just as Maclean promised to fill the coffers of the Benevolent Societies. The defendant, Mr. Hazard, and his friends, considered that he had gained a very great triumph; while the plaintiff was so disgusted and disappointed that he moved the Court for a new trial, on the ground of the smallness of the amount of damages. The then Solicitor General, who was counsel for the defendant, opposed the motion, and the Court refused to entertain it; in consequence of which Mr. Palmer considered himself a very ill-used man. In the third place, a few years since, W. H. Pope, Esqr., brought a suit of a similar nature against the Hon. Francis Longworth, in which the Jury awarded compensation to the plaintiff with the result of sixpence! Mr. Longworth was delighted with the result, and we have frequently heard his friends boast of it; while Mr. Pope was loud in his denunciations of the Jury, whom we doubt if he has yet forgiven. So that should there be a conviction recorded against us, we think we shall have more reason to exult than either Mr. Hazard or Mr. Longworth. The united damages they had to pay was one English shilling, while all that can be claimed from us is the forty-eighth part of that small coin. After those two examples of disappointed suitors, how gratifying it is to find that the mild, gentlemanly, pure minded editor of the Islander is pleased and happy to receive a verdict of ONE FARTHING!

The article to which we have devoted more than deserved consideration, concludes with an allusion to the writer's knowledge of the proceedings of a "rogue's ordinary." Not having any acquaintance with such an institution, we do not intend to deny the correctness of his statement, and merely venture to ask, if the "rogue's ordinary," with which Maclean appears to be so well acquainted, is the resort of ordinary rogues?

PUBLIC DINNER TO THE HON. E. WHELAN.—A few of the personal and political friends of Mr. Whelan, numbering over thirty, entertained him at a sumptuous dinner at the Victoria Hotel on Thursday last. The Hon. Mr. Coles presided, assisted by his Worship the Mayor. We have no space at present to give either a list of the toasts drunk on the occasion, or a reference to the many admirable speeches delivered. Suffice it, however, to say, that never at a public dinner was there more joyous good feeling manifested,—it was a political demonstration, indeed, but there was nothing in the sentiments uttered calculated to give the slightest umbrage to any one. The party broke up about half past one o'clock, with the unanimous expressed opinion, that no public entertainment had ever afforded them so much gratification. Messrs. Lawson & MacKinnon evinced much taste and knowledge of their vocation in the preparation of the banquet; the solids were such as might tempt any palate, and the liquids were unexceptionable.

The Courier, with the Colonial and United States Mails, reached town on Saturday night at a late hour; but the papers received furnish little or no news. The English Mail arrived in Halifax on the 29th ult., but did not reach Cape Tormentine when the Courier left there. We do not expect to receive by it any important intelligence.

Our second article on "the approaching Session," is deferred for want of space until next week.

MECHANICS' INSTITUTE.—On Tuesday evening last, T. Heath Haviland, Esq., delivered an excellent Lecture on the "History of Federal Unions," to a crowded audience. The learned lecturer first gave a definition of Federal Unions, and then treated upon their use in Ancient Greece and Italy—the rise of the Swiss Republic—and of the United States of the Netherlands—he then concluded by remarking, that in another age, and in another hemisphere, thirteen Colonies of England followed the example set them by the Netherlands, of successful resistance against tyranny and oppression, and thereby established the great Republic of the New World. After which a very warm discussion followed, during which the lecturer was requested to resume his interesting subject, on a future occasion, to which he cheerfully consented.

On Tuesday evening next, Mr. Murphy, Superintendent of Gas Works, will give a Lecture on the "Manufacture and illuminating power of Coal Gas." And on the following Tuesday evening Mr. Haviland will continue his lecture on the "History of Federal Unions."

CATHOLIC YOUNG MEN'S LITERARY INSTITUTE.—Mr. R. B. Reid will deliver a lecture on "Irish Architecture," in the above Society, on Thursday evening next, at the Catholic School Room, Charlotte-town. Tickets can be had at the stores of Messrs. Thos. Kelly and Jas. Reid, Queen-street. The Library Committee of the Catholic Young Men's Literary Institute beg respectfully to acknowledge the receipt of 3 volumes from Hon. Charles Young; 1 volume from F. W. Hughes, Esq.; 2 volumes from Mr. Charles Badge; 1 volume from Mrs. Sarah Phelan; and 1 volume from Mr. John Egan, —to all of whom the thanks of the Society are rendered.

Business Stand at Summerside for Sale.

THE subscriber offers for sale his present property situated at the above place, near the public wharf. As a Business Stand it is unsurpassed by any that may be offered to the public for some time to come. It is pleasantly situated, and commands a splendid prospect of the beautiful harbor of Beaulieu, the Straits of Northumberland, and the Province of New Brunswick in the distance. Much might be said of this property in regard to business facilities, being within four or five hours sail of Shediac—the terminus of the Railway, which will be in operation early next Spring—and connected with the latter port by means of regular Sailing Packets, and with Charlottetown by mail and stage conveyance, makes it one of the best business stands now offered to the public. It will be sold in one, two, or three lots to suit purchasers. Early application is necessary. Apply to the Honble. P. WALKER, Charlottetown, or to the subscriber on the premises.

Summerside, Feb. 2, 1857. P. M. POWER.

FROM a number of certificates which have been received from time to time, testifying to the efficacy of "Skinner's Vegetable Stomachic Pills and Stomach Renovator," the following is selected for public information. M. W. SKINNER.

To Mr. M. W. Skinner, Apothecary, &c. DEAR SIR,—I had been ailing for upwards of two years from some complaint of the stomach. I tried several remedies, but all to no purpose. My complaint seemed to gain ground; for three or four times daily I was compelled to leave off work, and lay down from excess of pain in my stomach. When in Town, one day, I made my condition known to you (although almost in despair); you told me you would cure me. You gave me a Box of Vegetable Stomachic Pills, also a Bottle of your Stomach Renovator, or Appetite Drops, prepared by yourself; and as many persons may be suffering as I have done, I think it is not only necessary, but an act of justice, to make known where so efficacious a remedy for stomach complaints may be obtained, as I have been most effectually cured by it after so long a period of intense suffering. I can also testify that two of my neighbours, who were similarly afflicted, were likewise cured by so much of the medicine as had been left unused by myself. I remain, Sir, your very obt. servant. ALEXANDER MACDONALD.
