

MISCELLANEOUS NEWS.

The word impossible is the mother tongue of little souls.

It is estimated that there are 600,000,000 sheep in the world.

The Empress of Germany is in England on a visit to the Queen.

The best authorities make the population of Mexico fully 10,000,000.

The tax on opium yields the English government in India £6,000,000 annually.

Lewiston, Me., produced 53,000,000 yards of cotton and woollen goods last year.

The growth of the population of London is at the rate 75,000 a year, or 205 each day.

The French government pays annually in support of the clergy the sum of $40,000,000.

Out of 5,241 shares in a new brewery company in Sheffield, Eng., 1,885 are held by clergymen.

The sugar crop of Cuba is estimated at 650,000, despite all the gloomy forebodings of the past season.

The Governor-General and Princess Louise, at the Little Chaudiere the other day, ran the slide on a crib of timber.

The Porte is about to send a company of Softas to tranquilize the Albanians, who it is thought contemplate a revolt.

About 1,000 horses per month are slaughtered for food in Paris under regular government licence, and find a ready market.

Dr. Schultz has shipped from Ottawa twenty-nine head of excellent cattle and twelve splendid horses for Manitoba. The stock was bought from Mr. Allan Grant, of Kinburn, and the price paid for the lot was about $7,000.

"I am not" wrote Mr. Ralph Waldo Emerson the other day, "in a condition to make visits, or to take part in conversation. Old age has rushed upon me in the last year and tied my tongue, and hid my memory, and thus made it a duty to stay at home."

In consequence of the national policy Messrs. Wyeth & Sons, of Philadelphia, leading chemists and manufacturers of standard pharmaceutical preparations, have opened a branch establishment at Montreal for the manufacture of their goods.

Willie Somerville, of Ottawa, aged fourteen years, has executed a medallion of his Excellency the Governor-General, modeled in clay and cast in plaster. Young Somerville, who has been a pupil for a short time of Mr. Dunbar, the sculptor, was highly complimented by his Excellency for his meritorious labor.

The rumor that an Italian firm was negotiating in the United States for an immediate supply of one hundred thousand tons of coal in place of obtaining it from England as heretofore, has caused uneasiness in London. A cargo of American coal reached the Mediterranean ten months ago and met with ready sale, and more than twenty cargoes have been sent over since that time. The London Globe apprehends that before long the coal industry of Great Britain will have to encounter determined rivalry on the part of the United States. American coal will not be landed in England, but will be shipped to ports on the continent which are now dependent upon supplies from the coal fields of the United Kingdom.

Lord Beaconsfield's determination not to go to the country this year will be very severely criticised by his opponents. It will undoubtedly be considered a sign of weakness, but the Government's reason, that they wish to dispose of the questions of foreign policy now pending, is a good one, and should command respect. But, it will be argued, if the Government's colonial and foreign policy has been wise it would only be strengthened by an appeal to the people. This might or might not be so, but there is always the risk of defeat, and, supposing Lord Beaconsfield's followers were routed, the question to be considered is whether Messrs. Gladstone, Bright & Co. could, without sacrificing the country's honour, bring the existing difficulties to a satisfactory and successful termination. By the laws of the constitution the present House of Commons has one more year to live. It is true that a British Parliament does not usually last the full seven years, but there has invariably been cause for a dissolution. The Government has either felt its power passing away, has been actually defeated, or has not felt itself strong enough to carry an important measure. At present, none of these things exist. Lord Beaconsfield has been amply sustained in his whole policy, and the interim elections, if they have resulted in a few gains, have resulted in but few reverses. In fact, there is absolutely nothing to indicate that the country is not thoroughly in accord with the present Ministry, and a general election is, therefore, unnecessary and uncalled for.

A Highlander's Ruse.

An officer in command of a detachment of the First Punjab Infantry (Coke's Rifles), guarding the Kojak Pass, relates, in a private letter, of an amusing ruse in which the bagpipers took the place of the rifle, and a Scottish reel the place of the bayonet:—"Fifty Pathans threatened our main picket, but, on my coming up to the relief, 'made tracks.' Mr. W. arrived and reported that Bhanman was denuded of troops, and that the fifty Pathans I chased away in the morning had assembled on the heights overlooking Chanman, with the object of attacking it during the night, and begging me to send down thirty Rifles for the defence of Chanman. I at once sent down word that I could not spare a man, as my post was the most important of the two; but that I would at once assist them by clearing the heights; so I fell in forty Rifles. It was then just getting dark; and such a march as we had of it over the hills, with tremendous khuds (precipices) on either side! We proceeded very cautiously, and cleared four miles of the hills around Chanman; but no signs of the enemy could we see. On arriving right over Chanman I sent patrols right and left, but they returned without seeing a camp fire. I then said to Mr. W., 'I tell you what I will do; we will strike up the pipes and dance a reel, and the enemy will think the whole of Coke's Rifles are down on them.' [N. B.—Coke's rifles have six pipers in the regiment.] So we struck up a reel, and danced with drawn swords, much to the delight of the men, who swore they would have marched double the distance to have such a grand dance! Anyway, it had the desired effect, for Chanman was not attacked that night. How we got back to camp I don't know. I led the way over the most awful country you can imagine. We could see camp fires in the plains, thousands of feet straight below us. [You must remember the Kojak Pass is 7,500 feet above the sea.] I was thankful when I heard a smart 'Who comes there?' from our pickets, and knew we were close to camp, which we reached at 10 p. m., mad with hunger; and, if we had not danced that reel, I believe we should have been dead with cold as well."

Cardinal Newman at Rome.

A private despatch from Rome states that the health of the newly-created Cardinal Newman is now quite satisfactory. The depression under which he seemed to be labouring, immediately after his arrival at Rome, was caused wholly by the fatigue of his long journey, and from this he has completely recovered. Extraordinary attention from the Pope, from members of the Papal household, and from the Cardinals have been paid him. The Pope in a private audience which was granted Dr. Newman, referred to the promise which he had given not to exact from the Cardinal residence in the Eternal City, but he added that if Cardinal Newman could find it consonant with his own wishes to remit the charge of his educational institution in England to other members of the order there and take up his residence in Rome, he said his counsel and wisdom would be of great benefit at this time to the Holy See. A residence in the Vatican would be provided for him, and if his health permitted of necessary labour, he would be requested to become a member of, or preside over, one of the Congregations which have in charge the various interests and affairs of the Church throughout the world. The despatch adds that Cardinal Newman, declining to make a positive answer at the moment, requested time to deliberate upon the matter.

The Death-rate of

Our country is getting to be fearfully alarming, the average of life being lessened every year, without any reasonable cause, death resulting generally from the most insignificant origin. At this season of the year, especially, a cold is such a common thing that in the hurry of every day life we are apt to overlook the dangers attending it and often find, too late, that a Fever or Lung trouble has already set in. Thousands lose their lives in this way every winter, while had Boschee's German Syrup been taken, a cure would have resulted, and a large bill from a doctor been avoided. For all diseases of the Throat and Lungs, Boschee's German Syrup has proven itself to be the greatest discovery of its kind in medicine. Every Druggist in this country will tell you of its wonderful effect. Over 950,000 bottles sold last year without a single failure known.

CATARRH.

Constitutional Catarrh Remedy CURES CATARRH.

Hear what a Reverend Gentleman says of the Constitutional Remedy.

T. J. B. HARDING, Esq., Brockville, Ont.:—DEAR SIR—It is now two years since your "Constitutional Catarrh Remedy" was introduced to me. I have waited this long to see if the cure would remain permanent before doing this, my duty, to you, as at first the happy effects seemed to me to be "too good to be true." I was afflicted in my head for years before I suspected it to be Catarrh. In reading your Circular I saw my case described in many particulars. The inward "drop" from the head had become very disagreeable, and a choking sensation often preventing me from lying long. I would feel like smothering and be compelled to sit up in the bed. My health and spirits were seriously affected. When your agent came to Walkertown in August, 1876, I secured three bottles. Before I had used a quarter of the contents of one bottle I found decided relief, and when I had used two bottles and a third, I quit taking it, feeling quite cured of that ailment, and have not used any since until of late I have taken some for a cold in my head. A sense of duty to sufferers from that loathsome disease, Catarrh, prompts me to send you this Certificate, unsolicited, with leave to make what use of it you may see proper. Yours truly, W. TINDALL, Methodist Minister. Port Elgin, Ont., Aug. 24, 1878.
