Urges Stringent Economy To Prevent Rising Deficits

Stringent economy in small items of expenditure was urged by Opposition Leader Bell as he resumed his speech in the Budget debate Friday.

Mr. Bell agreed that there were many demands for increased services and that revenue was lacking but felt that closer supervision in some Departments would effect an over all saving of considerable money.

In making reference to the two resolutions presented to the House Friday—one on Labor and one on industrial promotion, Mr. Bell said, "We have had the unique experience of seeing two resolutions which were actually criticisms of the Government being presented by a private member and a member of the Cabinet."

"These resolutions should not have had to come before the House, but these men felt it was necessary to bring up these matters to show the Government they should be doing things the way they should."

"We have to get something done but we have to appoint a director to the directors? We have a Minister, a deputy minister and two or three directors, now someone is suggesting another director to direct the directors," said Mr. Bell.

"I do not think there is any reason in the wide world for a director which is supposed to be the job for which they are paid. But from the tone of the resolution presented today we don't seem to be getting results."

WE NEED A BREAK
Mr. Bell wondered whether there was any way the Island could further its cause at Ottawa which would give the Province an even break. He said, "We don't seem to have many friends in the Federal Government but I believe we have one friend in the person of Hon. Robert H. Winters."

"Mr. Winters knows our circumstances here and I think we should combine our efforts to place our needs before him," said Mr. Bell. As an instance of what has been done for Nova Scotia since Mr. Winters became a cabinet member, Mr. Bell referred to the Halifax Dartmouth Bridge, The Canso Causeway, The Port Aux Basques needs when the interest and the sinking fund are more than the debt itself. Then the bond houses will kick us out and the only place we will be able to go will be to the Central Bank. Then they will do like they did in Newfoundland, they will send experts here to run the country and the sooner that day comes the better," he added.

EARLY PIONEERS
He made fitting reference to the early pioneers who landed on the island of the Polly. "They didn't look for assistance. They went about with a smile on their lips and a song in their heart one of the first things they did when they landed on these shores was to erect a building in which they could worship God."

"When I hear the Minister of Agriculture refer to certain land in this Province as Culloden soil and make the suggestion that the Department might move these people to some other area. I wonder who is going to tell these Scots to move — The Minister? — And I wonder what that Scot will tell the Minister."

Recalling his early political experiences Mr. Hessian said: "I came into this House as no other man has ever come in and to me and me alone belongs the honour. I went into that Conservative nest known as the Georgetown District where they had elected four Conservative Premiers, and as a mere boy of 23 I was elected. I never asked one man to vote for me and I was the First Liberal to come out of there."

Speaking of the Georgetown Ferry, he recalled the first boat which was on the run. "It was scalled the 'Matheson mery-go-round' because it had to turn around to dock and if a strong north east gale was blowing it would have to return to the other side."

He said the fare was fifty cents. "They charged 25 cents for a cow and 50 cents for a 'he-cow'. When the Liberals took it over they wiped out the fares and everybody travelled free."

M. Hessian said the practice of going in debt seems to be pretty prevalent all over the world. "United States has its billions; Canada has its billions; Great Britain has its billions. The countries all over the world with the possible exception of India are going head over heels in debt and nobody seems to care."

"Canada will wake up to our needs when the interest and the sinking fund are more than the debt itself. Then the bond houses will kick us out and the only place we will be able to go will be to the Central Bank. Then they will do like they did in Newfoundland, they will send experts here to run the country and the sooner that day comes the better," he added.

M. Hessian was annoyed that a number of people who had been eligible to receive needy pensions were refused by what he termed "neo-fascist" letters sent out by bankrupt political delinquents, who are they," he demanded, "to say whether these people should not get pension—never mind the letters—send the cheque."

Ferry and the Yarmouth Ferry. "These were sponsored wholly in part by the Federal Government," he said.

"I have great faith in Mr. Winters," said Mr. Bell, "and if there is a move a foot to change the leadership of the Liberal Party I hope everyone will push to see that he gets the leadership."

Mr. Bell said he would like to take the opportunity of extending to Mr. and Mrs. Winters his sincere sympathy in the loss of their son.

HIGHWAYS
"It seems the Highway Department usually finds a way of spending more money than we vote for them every year. The Government has said we have to cut down on expenditure and if there is need to cut that out too," said the Opposition Leader.

"Of course we do not agree with the expenditure of $50,000 in the Department of Education but the Government took the money from School Unit Number One so now we have to give it back to them. Last year we put through the Disabled Persons Act and from all accounts you had to be nailed up in the coffin to go it. But I know of several people who really cannot do a thing to make a living for themselves who cannot get the pension."

Mr. Bell emphasized the importance of economy in small ways. He said he had learned from the employees of the government garage report for work by punching the time clock and then go home for breakfast and come back later.

These crews he was told, go out on the road and fool away their time and when three o'clock comes they start for home arriving back in time to check out at five o'clock.

SERIOUS CHARGE.
Hon. Mr. MacKay: "The Leader of the Opposition is making a very serious charge and I would appreciate knowing of any particular instance where this is happened."

Mr. Bell said not all of the letters he received were signed "but I am convinced that it has been going on. Perhaps one member of the crew protects the other—I don't know—anyway some one has to tell the Minister."

"Everyone is looking for increased grants. It is too bad the Provincial Treasurer didn't have $15,000,000 so that he could use it for essential services."

Year after year I have told the Minister of Agriculture that if he wants to spend more money in his Department we will not say one word to him. I advocated subsidies to young boys and girls in buying pure bred animals. We can build up our livestock to the point where people will come here looking for it.

"This has been done in Perth, Scotland and in the Guernsey Islands and buyers come from all over the world to buy their cattle."

Mr. Rossiter: "They come here for our hogs."

NATURAL SETTING
Mr. Bell: "That's right and it could be done in so far as our natural setting for the raising of cattle. We are a disease free area but if we want pure bred cattle we have to go to Ontario and pay whatever they ask as well as pay the freight down here."

It is a question whether we should be engaged in heavy farming or in light farming. It has now developed that we can grow practically any fruit or vegetable grown on the North American continent. I remember a few years ago I couldn't get any more grow cucumbers here but when Matthew Wells started here the first year they got such a crop they had to dump millions of them. The growing of small fruits and vegetables will be the answer to our agricultural troubles," said Mr. Bell.

He said Prince Edward Island was not getting the beef market in Newfoundland. "They can get it cheaper from Western Canada," he added, "there was a shortage of 400,000 lbs. of beef in the Maritime Provinces last year but they can raise it cheaper in Western Canada."

I don't know whether the Marketing Board—if we have a marketing Board—is operating or not. There seems to be a lot of complaints that people are not getting enough information about markets," Mr. Bell concluded.

Back From Talks On Employment Association

Mr. George W. Cheverie, supervisor of insurance for the Charlottetown National Employment Office, and National President of the Unemployment Insurance Association of Canada, returned over the week end from Ottawa, where he attended a special committee meeting of the Association.

The special committee meeting was called to discuss a job evaluation program with the members of the Unemployment Insurance Commission. Before returning to Charlottetown Mr. Cheverie addressed two meetings in Moncton on the work of the Unemployment Insurance Association. The first of his talks was delivered to the Regional Office branch of the Association, and later he talked to the Moncton local office branch of the Association. On both occasions he discussed a wide variety of topics in which the members of the Association are interested.

Attending the special committee meeting in Ottawa in addition to Mr. Cheverie were W.J. Russel, First Vice-President of Toronto, Miss K.M. Leddy, Vancouver, E.C. Fortier, Pembroke, Ontario and Rene Prudhomme, Montreal.

Dr. O'Grady gave a very inspiring talk on Catholic Action, stressing the qualities of leadership. He pointed out the ways in which members of the Club could be active participants in the field of Catholic Action, and the good which could be accomplished by their leading exemplary daily lives.

The guest speaker was introduced by the Chairman, Mr. Robert Trainor. Following Dr. O'Grady's address, Rev. J.Q. O'Connell spoke briefly to the members.

The breakfast was under the sponsorship of the Spiritual Committee, and was prepared and served by mothers of some of the members: Mrs. Allan MacDonald, Mrs. Cyril Shepherd, Mrs. John McInnis, St. Mrs. Con Gaudet, Mrs. Stephen Trainor, Mrs. Frank McElroy, Mrs. Urban Blanchard.

The Kings member congratulated the Leader of the Opposition on the speech he had made, stating it was the finest Liberal speech he ever heard made in the House. He invited the Leader of the Conservative party to cross the line into "the land flowing with milk and honey" and to bring his "two unfortunates" along with him.
