LAB. TECHNOLOGIST CREST PRESENTED TO DESIGNER

Mayors Tour Georgetown Plant; Discuss Town Of Borden's Fate

GEORGETOWN — Over 30 mayors and councillors, including several women, were taken on a tour of Bathurst Marine Industries Ltd. and Gulf Garden Frozen Foods Ltd. at Georgetown yesterday during the convention of the P.E.I. Federation of Mayors.

Many expressed amazement at the industrial development to date. Mayor B. H. Yeo stated that the progress since he had visited the town was unbelievable. The tour was conducted by five management members of Bathurst Marine including Jens Moe and Martin Yateman.

Mr. Moe, who was guest speaker at the dinner held in the United Church hall, was introduced by Hon. Leo Rossiter. Mr. Moe outlined briefly the operation in Georgetown, what they expected of the area, and what they hoped to achieve.

Dealing with the reason for locating in Georgetown he said he has been asked by residents why P.E.I. and especially Georgetown which seem so far away from the larger centres. "Georgetown does have advantages," he said, "the farming and fishing industry of the province was ideal, the Island was productive, the Island was beautiful, and why don't you tell the world about it, transportation facilities will be good and we like it here."

ATTRACT INDUSTRY

He made a few suggestions on how to attract industry saying "make a complete study of your area, including possible production, development, facilities, housing, communications. You must make it convenient for investors. First impressions are the best. Have information on personnel, skilled and otherwise. We have run into the housing problem and are training men on the job. But everything is developing all right," he said.

In conclusion he made mention of the beauty of the Island saying "you have endless stretches of beautiful farms and beaches, we hope we can add to the economy of the province." He was thanked for his address and for the visit of the two plants by Mayor Lavee of Souris.

Following the tour of the plants all delegates assembled at the town hall to conduct the business part of the convention. Mayor Roy Leard of Alberton chaired the meeting. J. E. Cameron, secretary - treasurer presented the financial statement, read and recorded the minutes.

Mayor A. Kennedy of Georgetown welcomed all to the town and expressed the hope that all could enjoy their stay. He advised that a good deal of progress had been made and more action was expected in the near future on the industrial development in Georgetown. Six homes are being erected at present and 70 to 80 will be erected in the next couple of years, he said.

IF CAUSEWAY BUILT?

Mayor Bell of Borden outlined a situation in his home town which he felt should be brought to the attention of the federation and this was the uncertainty of what may happen to Borden in case the causeway is built. He stated that at present no one would build or buy or start business in the town and that development has been hampered due to the lack of information on the proposed causeway.

He also advised that over $10,000 a day was earned from the present operation of boats in wages and he said he was not certain just what this might do to the economy, not only of Borden but to the rest of P.E.I. if something else is not offered to offset what could be lost.

Others pointed out that as no information was available it was impossible to deal with the situation. Members of the federation and others pointed out that Borden most likely would be better off and could attract other industries such as Georgetown or Port Hawkesbury, N.S.

RESOLUTIONS

One of the four resolutions brought in by the resolutions committee consisting of Mayor A. Kennedy, Mayor W. Gaudet and G. Arnold Wightman dealt with the situation. However, the resolution on motion was shelved until the annual meeting.

Other resolutions dealt with the town act in which the resolutions committee brought in a resolution suggesting that three council members be retained and three replaced so that continuity of business would result, and that a committee such as the centennial committee be selected by the provincial government to make it possible for the major programs in each of the towns to be carried on annually. It also congratulated the provincial government and centennial committee for such a successful program.

The final resolution read: In cases where the municipal act is to be changed that the towns be consulted before any changes are made.

Mayor Yeo, Montague, expressed the thanks of the convention to the ladies who supplied the dinner and to the host town for their hospitality.

MORE ISLAND

his 72nd year, he made his first trip to the Saint John show with his uncle, Walter M. Lea in 1914.

"It was the first time that ice cream cones were offered for sale in the Maritimes and we must have eaten five hundred of them," he recalls with a smile.

Keith had told me previously about the time he helped his uncle drive his herd from Victoria to Charlottetown to show at the Provincial Exhibition. As they were entering the city the cattle were hungry—they had stopped to feed briefly at noon — and they barged onto a lady's lawn. When she protested strongly to Walter Lea, then a young man, he replied with a smile "this is too bad, my lady, but I'll fix that when I get to be premier of the province."

He did become premier some 33 years later and his prophecy of 1912 was fulfilled, though he had said it in jest at the time

Keith has his grand champion cow at Charlottetown, Lealands Victoria En 2D, but he's keeping an equally watchful eye on his reserve grand champion here last year, Lealands Royal Margaret that he sold to S.C. Oland and Son who have her on their show string here this week.

VETERAN SHOWMEN

Keith and his son, Bryce, have a dozen animals here. MacRaes have fourteen, including their several times Royal champion senior bull. The MacRaes have been showing cattle on Maritime show circuits since the old Maritime Winter Fair began.

The farm name of A. MacRae and Sons goes back to Andrew MacRae, grandfather of Agriculture Minister Andrew MacRae. Arthur MacRae, who is in charge of the show string here is another grandson.

I forgot to add in yesterday's story that Limewood Pauline Wave won the trophy for the best udder cow in the dual purpose Shorthorn show for Sterling Wood and Son Robert of Mt. Herbert. The cow had previously taken the senior and grand championship female ribbons in her breed, for a remarkable performance for this Island cow.

I was talking with George MacMillan, Cornwall Tuesday forenoon when fair president Don Oland came by with the Lieutenant-Governors of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick It was the first time I had seen Mr. Oland since I came here, and we stopped to talk for a few minutes.

Glancing at nearby signboard covered with championship ribbons, first, second and other lesser prize ribbons, he observed "Somebody has been cleaning up in the cattle show." When I told him "That's the Jersey herd from the Island," he retorted with a smile "Oh, you didn't have to tell me they were from the Island, I would have known that."

Add to that the comment I got from Roland Nason, who judged the dual purpose Shorthorns here:

"There is not a better place in North America to breed and raise good livestock than the Island" and you get an idea of the impression Island cattle and their breeders make at these shows."

BIG MONEY FOR STEER

Fulton Sanderson will receive the equivalent of close to $2.15 per pound for his grand champion steer at the Atlantic Winter Fair, he told The Guardian Wednesday afternoon after checking in with his herd of Hereford cattle for the show which gets underway at noon today. He received $.92 a pound on the hoof on show night, when he was rated as Hereford champion but third in line against all others.

This week his steer was named grand champion steer of the show after the carcass grading showed him scoring 49 points. He had scored 48 at 529 pounds for a dressing percentage of 59.4.

Fulton raised this steer on his own farm, but they bought the reserve Hereford champion. He was shown by John Sanderson for Hilton Barbour at the Alberton Exhibition. Mr. Sanderson explains, though, that the Alberton steer was from a bull, Zato Heir, the Sandersons sold to the western Prince man several years ago.

The grand champion steer will bring something close to $1,900 to the Sanderson purse, and even more than that in advertising dollar value.

A veteran livestock grader told me he had never seen a steer carcass with such a splendid "eye of lean."

Month Of Oct. Was Cool, Dark

High winds which swept over the province the past few days subsided to 15 miles per hour by midnight last night, with only light winds forecast for today by the Charlottetown radio range.

However, northwest winds of 25 with gusts as high as 40 were blowing earlier last evening.

Since last Thursday, winds reached an average high of more than 50 mph daily.

Yesterday's temperatures averaged around 41 degrees. Forecast for today calls for clearing skies, sunny with a few cloudy intervals, and little change in temperature. High today is expected to be 45 degrees.

Weather figures at the Experimental Farm at Charlottetown, show that in October there was a marked decline in the amount of sunshine, compared to last year. This October there were 99 hours of sunshine, and last year 173.3 hours of sunshine. This was reported as "very low."

The average temperature for October was 46.4, compared to 49.7 last year. The coldest day in October was 25 degrees Oct. 30; the warmest day, was 67 on Oct. 4.

This year's rainfall in October was 1.96 inches, and last year it was 3.92 inches.
