Urges Funerals Remain Simple

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) The United Church of Canada said Tuesday funeral services should remain simple and called for an end to elaborate displays of grief.

Recommendations on b u r i a l, adopted by the church's general council, said "elaborate and costly devices to restore a life-like appearance to the body have no place in Christia practice."

"Christian burials ought to be as simple as possible. Excessvie expenditures on elaborate caskets, vaults and headstones are to be deplored.

"People should be on guard against being moved to commit themselves to such expenditures at a time of emotional distress."

No other rite or ceremony should be permitted at the time of the burial, the recommendations said.

Persons should make their own funeral arrangements well in advance to relieve survivors of the strain.

Don't irritate child's intestines with "too-strong laxatives"

Science at last has developed Children's Own Tablets for your child's protection — No cramps! No gripes! No bad taste!

Stop using harsh laxatives that may irritate the tender walls of your child's intestines, causing cramping, griping, or weak, uncomfortable feelings. Large, harsh, adult-size laxatives are often too strong for children. They work, but they may irritate the delicate membranes in the intestines. Medical science has at last developed Children's Own Tablets — clinically-tested for children's needs — just strong enough . . . not harsh . . . in tablet form, pleasant-tasting, easy to take! Relieves upset tummy, too. So try Children's Own Tablets today — made by the makers of Baby's Own Tablets. See if they are not the answer to your child's laxative problems.

QUIZ

Partner bids One Diamond, next player passes, both sides vulnerable. What do you now bid with each of the following four hands?

1. ♠KJ83 ♥KJ52 ♦93 ♣764
2. ♠K74 ♥Q82 ♦AJ5 ♣AQJ9
3. ♠J85 ♥KQJ3 ♦Q ♣A8764
4. ♠AJ4 ♥A9 ♦KQ753 ♣AJ6

1. One Heart. Sometimes it is necessary to violate the general rule that with two biddable touching suits of equal length the higher ranking one is bid first.

There is good reason to deviate in this hand from the rule. The intention should be, in responding to the diamond bid, to make only one bid and then retire from the auction. The effect of a spade response, therefore, is that a heart fit, if it exists, may never be found. If the response is one heart, however, it becomes easier for the partnership to find either a spade or heart fit. The heart response leaves room for partner to show spades in the one level, if he has them, but a spade response does not allow partner the equivalent opportunity to show hearts.

2. Three notrump. This response is the equivalent of an opening one notrump bid. Partner immediately learns of the 16 to 18 point count and the balanced distribution. No other bid will get this concise message across.

The objection which may be raised that there is not a real heart stopper is granted, but it must bow to the overall advantage of the picture bid painted by the three notrump response. Book illustrations of ideal three notrump bids are not always dealt in real life.

3. Two clubs. We intend to keep bidding until a game is reached. While doing so, it is best to inform partner that the heart suit, which will be shown at the next opportunity, is only four cards long. At the same time, the clubs are presented as being longer.

In hands where we are not in position to determine the best contract, as accurate information as possible should be passed to partner so that he may make the final decision.

4. Three clubs. We are already committed to a small slam. The 19 points plus added to partner's opening bid assure us of the requisite 33 points. Interest has to be centered in the possibility of reaching a grand slam. We can't do it ourselves. All we can do is point the way.

The jump-shift response is the first step. It had to be done, in this case, with a non-biddable suit. When we later jump to six diamonds, it will be construed as an effort to go all the way.

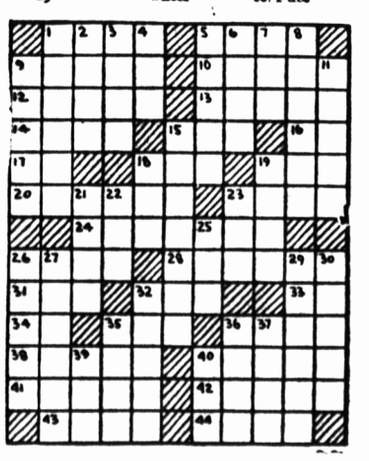
Yesterday's Answer



DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

BEDTIME STORIES

An Unwelcome Visitor

Beware of Strangers. Do not trust Them more than what you feel you must.

—Old Mother Nature.

There was a visitor at the dear Old Briar-patch. Peter Rabbit saw him coming from the Green Forest. "Look!" he said to Mrs. Peter. "See who is paying us a visit".

"Perhaps he isn't coming here. Perhaps he is just crossing the Green Meadows. I hope so", Mrs. Peter said.

Sitting side by side in a bramble-tangle at the edge of the dear Old Briar-patch, Peter and Mrs. Peter watched the approaching visitor. Peter had seen him before over in the Green Forest. Mrs. Peter had never seen him, because she stays at home in the Old Briar-patch, and this cousin of Reddy Fox had never been over there before. He was Gray Fox, who prefers to live in the Green Forest.

He looked for a place to get into that bramble-tangle.

Gray Fox wasn't as handsome as Reddy Fox, but he was every inch a Fox. No one would take him for any one else. His coat was gray instead of red, and he didn't have as fine a tail as Reddy's. He came straight over to the Old Briar-patch and began to prowl along the edge of it. When he reached the bramble-tangle in which Peter and Mrs. Peter were sitting, his nose and his eyes found them at the same time.

He looked for a place to get into that bramble-tangle. There was an opening to a little path which really was a sort of tunnel that Peter and Mrs. Peter had cut with their sharp teeth. It was just big enough for them to pass through easily, but too small for Gray Fox to do much more than get his nose in. He began to try to push his way in. Peter and Mrs. Peter went back to the middle of the dear Old Briar-patch. They were afraid, yet not afraid. You see, they felt very sure that even if Gray Fox managed to get in there, he couldn't move fast enough to catch either one of them.

Gray Fox pushed and shoved, and then he yelped. Those brambles hurt. They were scratching him badly. He backed out. He started to try again, but gave up almost before he had begun. Then he began to go around the Old Briar-patch, looking for a place to get in without getting his coat torn and his face scratched. He found two or three places where he could get in a little way. But he soon knew that it would be useless to try to catch one of those Rabbits. All through the Old Briar-patch were bramble-tangles and briar-patches through which Peter and Mrs. Peter had cut little tunnels big enough for themselves, but not big enough for any one bigger. So, Gray Fox growled unpleasantly at Peter and Mrs. Peter and left the Old Briar-patch to hunt for Mice outside.

Peter crept back where he could look out and watch Gray Fox. The latter hunted in very much the same way as Reddy Fox and Mrs. Reddy hunt. Had it not been for that gray coat, he could have been mistaken for one of them.

"I hope that fellow isn't going to stay around here," Peter thought. "It is bad enough to have to watch out for two Foxes. I wonder what Reddy and Mrs. Reddy would do if they should find their cousin over here. I guess they would send him back to the Green Forest in a hurry. I don't believe he'll try getting in here again soon."

"I hope," said Mrs. Peter, who had crept up beside Peter, "those brambles tore his coat so that he'll never try again to get in here."
