

Report of the Vice President Communication Review Committee

The general goal of creating a VPC is to establish a much greater knowledge on and off campus regarding all aspects of the Student Union. The administration and faculty are virtually ignorant of our policies and processes and considering that Student Services is ultimately concerned with students, as we are, it is essential that a permanent liaison be formed.

The Committee has met and discussed the need for a VPC and the possible duties she/he might assume. The following recommendations are a result of consideration of the Operations Manager Review Committee Report and through the Committee's own deliberations.

Recommendations are:

1. That the VPC not necessarily be the Island Representative of CFS, and that this position be left open to any interested student or Executive member of the UPEI SU.

2. That the following be put in the UPEI SU Constitution:

Article XI Powers and Duties of the Executive Vice President Communications shall:

1. Oversee and maintain the Student Union Mini

Centre (refer to VPC job description)

2. Promote active communication between the student body and the elected officials, employees and volunteers of the Student Union.

3. In conjunction with the President be responsible for communication with community, provincial, national, and international organization and any other appropriate bodies.

4. Provide all campus communication media with consistent reports of the activities and endeavors of the Student Union (refer to VPC job description).

5. Serve as the direct liaison with Student Services.

6. Have co-signing authority on all cheques up to a designated amount (as set by the UPEI SU Finance By-law), with any other Executive member or the General Manager (refer to the UPEI SU Personnel Policy)

7. Perform other duties as required.

3. That the Vice President Communications Job Description read as follows:

tion, his conduct was very pure. The senior monk said with a sigh, "Although he is young, he is different from the rest!" He then asked, "Sir, how long have you been here?"

The Master said, "Three years."

The senior monk said, "Have you ever gone to the head monk and asked him questions?"

The Master said, "I have not. I wouldn't know what to ask."

The senior monk said, "Why don't you go and ask the head monk what the basic idea of the Law preached by the Buddha clearly is?"

The Master went and asked the question. But before he finished, Huang-po beat him. When he returned, the senior monk asked him how the conversation went. The Master said, "Before I finished my question, he had already beaten me. I don't understand."

The senior monk told him to go and ask again.

The Master did and Huang-po beat him again. In this way, he asked three times and was beaten three times. . . Huang-po said, "If you go to Ta-yu's place, he will tell you why."

The Master went to Ta-yu, who asked him, "Where have you come from?"

The Master said, "I am from Huang-po's place."

Ta-yu said, "What did Huang-po have to say?"

The Master said, "I asked him three times about the basic idea of the Law preached by the Buddha and I was beaten three times. I don't know if I was mistaken."

Ta-yu said, "Old kindly Huang-po has been so earnest with you and you still came here to ask if you were mistaken!"

As soon as the Master heard this, he understood and said, "After all, there is not much in Huang-po's Buddhism."
