

What is Scott's Emulsion?

It is the best cod-liver oil, partly digested, and combined with the hypophosphites and glycerine. What will it do? It will make the poor blood of the anæmic rich and red.

It will give nervous energy to the overworked brain and nerves. It will add flesh to the thin form of a child, wasted from fat-starvation.

It is everywhere acknowledged as The Standard of the World.

What Modern Sages Say.

Gladstone: The only sound and healthy description of assisting is that which teaches of independence and self-exertion.

Sterling: A man without earnestness is a mournful and perplexing spectacle.

Dickens: There is no substitute for thorough-going, ardent and sincere earnestness.

V. Hugo: Good actions are the visible hinges of the doors of heaven.

Sir P. Sidney: They are never alone who are accompanied by noble thoughts.

Bulwer Lytton: What men want is not talent, it is purpose; in other words not the power to achieve, but the will to labour.

H. Mann: The talent of success is nothing more than doing what you can do well, and doing well whatever you do.

Robert Hall: The Scriptures are the treasures of the poor, the solace of the rich, and the support of the dying.

The Missionary Spirit.

Of one thing I feel sure, nothing could be better for rousing the spiritual life of a congregation and leading it on to a higher life, than the cultivation of the spirit of missions. The progress of the kingdom of God in the world is a study well calculated to enlarge the mind and the soul, and rescue torpid congregations from their self-satisfied ease. What a power for good would be our home millions of Christians, if really alive to their privilege and duty in helping forward the work of God in all lands.—A. M. Mackay, of Uganda.

Little Kindness.

It is not medicine; it is not broth and coarse meats, served up at a stated hour with all the hard formalities of a prison. It is not the scanty dole of a bed to die on, which dying man requires from his species. A kind look, a smile, a drop of cold water to the parched lip, true and unpretended sympathies, are the things a man shall bless you for in death.

Work and Hope.

Yes, work, and hope. The outlook may be dark, the times may be threatening; but while God lives it cannot but be well with the hopeful believing trustful well-doer. True times and things might be better; they might be worse, also. Despairing never changes anything for the better; but hopeful working does. Look upon the bright side. If you do not see it, hunt for it. Bring a flower when you come home from your toil and hand it, with a smile, to your wife, your mother, your sister, or your daughter. It will cheer them, and make them feel that life is worth living; then in return they will smile upon and cheer you. Fill your home with loving smiles, kind words, helpful deeds, and then hope will well up in your soul. There is love all about us if we will but make ourselves lovable; there is plenty of appreciation near by if we will but do something worthy of appreciation. The world is not going to smash, and we are not going to be cast out to die of starvation if we but do as well as we may. Therefore, work and hope.—Religious Telescope.

which sigh at every breath of the wind, and mean nothing by it.

Never tire, never to grow cold, to be patient, sympathetic, tender; to look for the budding flower and the opening heart; to hope always, like God; to love always—this is duty.—Amiel.

See that each hour's feelings and thoughts and actions are pure and true; then will your life be such. The wide pasture is but separated spears of grass; the sheeted bloom of the prairies but isolated flowers.—Beecher.

We are continually hearing men excuse themselves for not giving to the Lord, or for failure to help on beneficent agencies upon the ground that they cannot spare from home and business demands the money that ought, with prudent management, to fall to their lot for such purposes. Yet if they would use less tobacco, or would give it up entirely, they would save enough from this one article alone to enable them to make generous contributions to religious and benevolent causes. If the church had what is more than wasted upon this single commodity, she would have plenty of means with which to carry on her missionary and benevolent undertakings at home and abroad. Not only the secretaries of her boards, but those who have the management of charitable institutions, would ask nothing better for the prosecution of their work than the sums which Americans could advantageously to themselves and to others spare by foregoing the use of tobacco. Are any users of the weed willing to make a trial of what they can do for the service of their Master by giving to his cause what they are accustomed to spend each year upon cigars, pipe or quid? They would be personal gainers by the experiment, while his kingdom would be made richer by the investment of the money thus saved.—Presbyterian.

Listowel Gentleman who has no Complaint to Make Regarding Dodd's Kidney Pills

Listowel, Ont., July 19.—Mr. Thomas Tamblin of the firm of Tamblin and Clime, grocers, was lately a recipient of a communication from a gentleman in Toronto who is gathering statistics as to cures by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Some three years ago Mr. Tamblin was troubled with a weak back and severe pain in the kidneys. He used Dodd's Kidney Pills and his trouble was removed. The Toronto enquirer asked if the cure had been satisfactory. Mr. Tamblin took the letter and wrote on the bottom in a firm hand, "The cure was quite satisfactory."

With salves, suppositories and ointments and dreading surgical operation, scores and hundreds have turned to Dr. A. W. Chase's ointment and found it an absolute cure for piles. The first application brings relief from the terrible itching, and it is very seldom that more than one box is required to effect a permanent cure.
