

Sea-Sickness.

In Boston an interesting little book has lately made his appearance, where-in the cause, the nature, and the prevention without medicine or change of diet, of seasickness is fully set forth. The writer is a Mr. H. Hudson, who evidently speaks of that whereof he knows. And, indeed, he confesses that his first ideas on the subject were gained while watching the graceful movements of the sailors aloft, he himself being stretched on the deck in all the misery of seasickness. Medicine, he holds, is a delusion and a snare, and worse than useless. It is not really a disease at all he holds, but a mere physical result of the constantly shifting centre of gravity which the body experiences. His remedy then is muscular relaxation, accommodation of one's self, to the motion of the ship, acquisition of "sea legs" by an act of volition. This is his theory. He says he has tested it by personal experience. There may be something in it, but it certainly looks difficult and not very hopeful.

Humorous.

"Is there anything wrong in kissing?" he asked her, as they stood together at the gate. "Certainly there is, she replied, "or there wouldn't be any fun in it."

Lawyer C. (entering the office of his friend, Dr. M., and speaking in a hoarse whisper): "Tom, I've got such a cold this morning that I can't speak the truth." Dr. M.: "Well, I'm glad it's nothing that will interfere with your business."

Gentleman to waiter: "Bring me some grammatical and typographical errors." Waiter (looking puzzled at first, but recovering in a moment his usual serenity): "We are just out of them, sir." "Then what do you mean by keeping them on your bill of fare?"

Edith and Mabel had just put their dollies in their little crib, when Edith with the expression of one who has had a great weight lifted from her shoulders said: "There! I'm thankful we've got the children to bed. We shall have a little peace now!" Where in the world did she get such a notion?

Somebody put a small mud-turtle, about the size of a silver dollar, in a bed at a New Jersey hotel, and the stranger who was assigned to that room, on preparing to retire, caught sight of it. He at once resumed his clothes, remarking: "I expected to have a pretty lively night of it, but if they're as big as that I don't propose to get in with 'em."

"Bust the news to 'em gently, Jim; the widder is liable to have fits."

Squire Stebbins had died suddenly at the corner grocery, and "Jim" was deputed to take the body home and break the news to the family. Driving decorously to the Squire's house, his lady appeared at the front door. "Does the widder Stebbins live here?" asked Jim. "Go 'long now, Jim; you've been drinkin' too much down to the grocery."

"Have it your own way, widder, but fact is, the squire fell dead just now, down at the corner, and I've got his corpse here in the wagon. What shall we do with it?" "Dear me, how sudden; and this a washin' day, too. I've just been cleanin' up; fetch him around to the back door. I don't want no muss!"

was the first preparation perfectly adapted to cure diseases of the scalp, and the first successful restorer of faded or gray hair to its natural color, growth, and youthful beauty. It has had many imitators, but none have so fully met all the requirements needful for the proper treatment of the hair and scalp. HALL'S HAIR RENEWER has steadily grown in favor, and spread its fame and usefulness to every quarter of the globe. Its unparalleled success can be attributed to but one cause: the entire fulfillment of its promises.

The proprietors have often been surprised at the receipt of orders from remote countries, where they had never made an effort for its introduction.

The use for a short time of HALL'S HAIR RENEWER wonderfully improves the personal appearance. It cleanses the scalp from all impurities, cures all humors, fever, and dryness, and thus prevents baldness. It stimulates the weakened glands, and enables them to push forward a new and vigorous growth. The effects of this article are not transient, like those of alcoholic preparations, but remain a long time, which makes its use a matter of economy.
