Carrier Boy Has Memorable Day On Tour Of The City

An explanation of the complicated administrative set-up that processes each public showing of a film, dinner as a guest of the Rotary Club, a tour of the Island Telephone Company's downtown plant, and a visit to City Hall featured a memorable day for 15-year old Alan Bowness of Charlottetown.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Bowness, 35 Sidmount Avenue, Alan was chosen by the circulation department of the Guardian-Patriot to represent their carrier boy organization when George Walters, manager of the Capitol Theatre indicated he wished to do honor to these young businessmen "who service the community with their daily newspapers throughout the year."

Mr. Walters took personal charge of the newsboy's representative after appointing him his assistant manager "for a day". He took him to Rotary as

RELIGION AND LIFE

BIG MOMENT IN YOUR CAREER

"What is this new jargon that I hear in the church these days?" asked Dr. D. D. Macleod of Barne years ago. "I had a neighboring minister speaking to my congregation the other evening, and all through he talked about 'Kadesh-barnea Christians' and exhorted us all to go up from Kadesh-barnea."

"What did he mean?" "The answer was that a popular evangelist of that day had published a sermon on Israel's failure at Kadesh-barnea.

The tribes had been delivered from Egyptian bondage, had camped at Sinai and received the law of God, and then had gone on to Kadesh-barnea, a plateau just south of the Promised Land. Here God commanded them through Moses to go up to the conquest of Palestine. But the people were frightened by a majority report from the spies whom they had sent to explore the land and get information about it.

crowd on hand to witness the first evening showing of "Old Yeller". During the afternoon Alan had assisted with the opening matinee performance, and had examined the mysterious operations of the projections of the projection room, together with the more prosaic tasks of the cashier's office and the candy concession.

Under Mr. Walters direction Alan also made up the theatre's regular ad which will appear on Thursday.

At City Hall Alan was shown through the various offices by Mayor Johnstone and City Clerk, James A. Fullerton.

The theatre manager then accompanied his young one-day assistant to the Island Telephone Company headquarters on the corner of Queen and Fitzroy.

Their young businessman was conducted on a complete tour of the plant by one of the chief engineers.

THEATRE EXPERIENCE

Following supper at the expense of the theatre management, Alan took his place with the rest of the theatre staff in arranging the smooth handling of the large insistence on going as they had just been in refusing to go.

The result was a crushing defeat at the hands of the people of the land.

Here is the lesson of Kadesh-barnea: When Israel refused to advance at God's command, they were not allowed to afterwards. They had reached a point in their wilderness wanderings when prompt, decisive action would have brought the fulfillment of God's promises and realization of their hopes. At that point they failed. And that failure in trust and obedience involved the forfeiture of that generation's opportunity.

None but the two believing spies were allowed to enter Canaan.

And here is the lesson for us. There is a strategic moment in every enterprise when firm and vigorous action is essential to success.

All that went before leads up to it: all that is to follow hinges on it. If its significance is discerned and action taken more can be accomplished in an hour than could otherwise be achieved in years.

But if that moment is allowed to pass, no action at a later time can succeed.

ONE EXAMPLE

One example is the harvest. There all the farmer's labors—the preparation of the soil, the sowing of the seed, the weeding and perhaps the watering, and the slow process of growth—lead up to the time when the grain is ripe.

Then for a few days is the farmer's opportunity. If he is able to gather in the grain he will be amply rewarded for all he has spent and done. But if he delays, and the grain is once allowed to fall, no amount of labor at a later stage can recover what he has lost.

There is a strategic moment in every career. The man's future hands on his ability and readiness to take advantage of it.

The late Dr. John MacNeill's came at a great meeting in London, England, which he attended as a young minister from Winnipeg.

own town before, but from that moment the whole church recognized that a new star had risen in the firmament. The years that followed more than justified the expectations kindled in that moment.

Every man who amounts to anything reaches some such turn in his career.

Junior Musical Recital Held At Notre Dame Academy

On the evening of March 16, the juniors of Notre Dame captivated the hearts of all in the well-filled Academy auditorium with a splendid vocal and pianoforte entertainment.

The junior musical recital, following so soon after the senior recital, displayed a similar precision and finish. The small artists, so confident at the piano, demonstrated the professional skill of their teachers Sister St. Elizabeth of the Visitation and Sister St. Mary Honora.

The junior choral group under the direction of Sister St. Mary Honora gave a beautiful and delightful rendition of several numbers. The Medley of Irish Songs was particularly pleasing and appropriate on the eve of the feast of Saint Patrick.

The choral group amazed the audience with a correct and beautiful rendition of the Salve Regina in Georgian chant.

Another delightful attraction was the singing of three solo numbers by Jacqueline Doyle, Bethany MacIntyre and Victoria Kenny. The three promising, young sopranos received generous applause.

The junior musical recital was another achievement for the Active pallbearers were: Dr. J. H. Maloney, Dr. E. S. Giddings, Ernest S. Lord, Leo Doucette, Gordon Holmes, Albert Dennis. The funeral was largely attended.
