Integration Likely Road To Peace

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) A special United Nations committee reported today that gradual integration is the only likely road to racial peace in South Africa. It warned that agitators and subversive forces were making use of the white-colored strife in that country to further their own ends.

The committee's report said persons who support the racial segregation policies of the South African government "will have to jettison theories of racial supremacy which give a semblance of legality to political supremacy."

Those who oppose segregation "will have to realize that the ideas of fraternal equality and collaboration . . . cannot become reality at the stroke of a magic wand, without passing through many successive stages."

It was the second unanimous report on the South African race situation made by the committee. South African charged the first report was full of errors of fact and conclusion.

Members of the commission are Hernan Santa Cruz of Chile, Dantes Bellegarde of Haiti and France's Henri Laugier.

Their report was drafted for the special political committee of the assembly for debate at this session.
