

MR. AND MRS. HARRY LOVE

Ceremony At Cathedral Followed By Trip To B.C.

The Altar was adorned with vases of gladioli at a wedding solemnized Saturday, June 5, at St. Peter's Cathedral, Charlottetown, when Ann Guenther, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael, Charlottetown, became the bride of Harry Russell, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Herbert Love, East Royalty, P.E.I.

The venerable J. R. Davies, Archdeacon of P.E.I., performed the double ring ceremony. The choir was accompanied by Suzanne Beaton, organist. The guest pews were decorated with blue satin streamers. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length sheath of white nylon organza over taffeta with appliques of lace scattered over the gown, scoop neckline and longly-point sleeves. A detachable chapel train fell from tiny bows at the back waist and her scalloped shoulder tip veil was held in place by a crown of pearls and crystals. Her bouquet consisted of a mauve orchid and a white stephanotis.

The bride was attended by her cousins, Carol Ann Michael, as maid of honor; Nancy Michael, as bridesmaid; Wendy Michael, as junior bridesmaid. They chose identical floor length gowns of white peau silk with scoop necklines, short cap sleeves, bell skirts, and flowing panels falling from bows at the back neckline. Their picture hats and shoes were in shades of blue.

ELLEN'S DIARY

Tucked Cosily In The Truck Wendy Held A Tiny Pup

This morning you watch the fog lift from the stream and fields, the gentle veil which remained from last night's refreshing showers. The grass is damp. The narcissi hang washed heads. The ewes make engaging paths in the paddock. All of their passing and the damp of the lawn. And presently to lead a sparkle and shies to your world, the sun smiles down on it as it climbs above the green hills.

"The woodlands are pretty," we commented to James, admiring the delicate shadings of the maple and birches and other leafings there. "Yes," he agreed. "But not to my mind, so pretty when James said, 'That's when they seem beautiful to me.'"

Among today's beautiful pictures - and how many there are on every hand now for rural folks to see! - was one we found when we came to look into a little truck of the name, which had just come to the yard. Tucked in cozily beside her a little (Gage) was the little girl that is Wendy, who not so long ago returned home from hospital care. She held a tiny brownish puppy closely, apparently one much too precious to be entrusted to another's arms, a contented light in her eyes. "He's ours!" she smiled.

And with this its first day, the June - time was coming. Pleasantly warm the sunny wind was needed so much so that one of the farmers looking in on the ewes in the paddock, still warmly clad, promised "We should get at the shearing one of these days."
"June," we said. And loved the word. Month of long days, withal fleeting, - month of rides. A rose or a honeyuckle leaves a moonstone or pearl. The forsythia, strange shrub that puts on its blossoms before its leaves, flowers now - shakes out its golden bells. They say, in the moonlight they call up the wee green folks to dance.

"This is the best day!" Peter came by, beaming this morning with his rabbits are here! More than one too," he added, so pleased to have found this run of luck in the hutch.
James, in the old armchair, puts down his newspaper. Sighs and regards the night at the window.

"There's surely a heap of trouble everywhere, Ellen," he observes. "Misery and unrest I wonder what will come of it all! And what awful deeds folks do - mad, silly things, even in our own country," he nods.

And? we recall something we read back in the years, which has remained in mind, of one who had given some thought to the like, to find "This country still is in good shape. I know more nice people than I ever have known before in my life. I just know ten thousand people who would never think of dynamiting a house. I know office holders you couldn't buy or bribe for a million dollars. I have friends I'd let count my money, day or night. And if the Lord came to my house this evening and said 'Look here, this country of yours is in a powerful mess, and I'm going to let you pick out some other country if you want to' I would say,

BRISTOL

Mr. and Mrs. William MacDonald were here from the City Sunday to place a memorial cross on the grave of Mrs. MacDonald's sister, Mrs. Eldershaw, who died a few months ago. They also visited with their lifelong friend, Mrs. Margaret Sinnott. The MacDonalds moved to the city from Bristol when Mr. MacDonald retired from the CN Railways a dozen years ago.

C.L. Sinnott has purchased a large area of land in the lakeside beach district where he plans to erect some cottages. One of the cottages will be ready for a customer about June 15. Some of those with lakeside cottages have already braved the chilly weather and taken up residence there.

Walter O'Brien, who has been absent from his duties for some three months after undergoing surgery twice in Charlottetown Hospital, will return to his duties on the security of Holman's Store June 7.

"If you want fresh lobsters here you have to be at the dockside when the fishermen come in and buy them direct from the boatmen at around 65 cents per pound alive, one man was heard to remark on Saturday. He recalled the days when you got 65 lobsters for 65 cents. But that was a long time ago when inside help got $5 a month for working all day and half the night.

The Bristol Mills, where so much good fishing and eel spearing was done many years ago when the late W.H. McEwen was operating the different mills is a sorry sight today. The mills have all rotted away and gone. The dam is broken and only a tiny brook remains where the big pond was where not only

Several commissioners were guests of the Mt. Stewart Guide Company for their recent closing, when one of the highlights was the presentation of gold cords to two guides.

Guide Closing Includes Special Badge Ceremony

The United Church hall, Mount Stewart, was the scene of the First Mt. Stewart Guide Company recently, when visiting commissioners for the occasion included Mrs. John Smethurst, Mrs. Cecil Stinson, Mrs. John Thistle and Mrs. Eugene Cullen. Many mothers of guides were also present for the ceremony.

The program was opened by singing of "Howdy - do Madame Commissioners" as the guides formed guard of honor for the guests, who were escorted to their seats by Captain Eunice Smith and Lieutenaunt Kay MacDonald. A horseshoe was then formed by the company and "The Maple Leaf forever" was sung.

The formal welcome to the commissioners by the company followed. Wilhelmina Kaptein, Anne Douglas, Betty Jean Affleck and Gloria Douglas presented each of them with a souvenir of their visit. The guests were also given corsages of yellow daffodils by Roberta Figgitt, Shirley Campbell, Patsy Affleck and Brenda MacIntyre.

Captain Smith and Lieutenant MacDonald were presented with gifts on behalf of the company by Sheila Sheppard and Louisa Reddin, who expressed appreciation to the leaders for their help and guidance during the year.

The highlight of the evening, the badge ceremony, was climaxed by the presentation of two gold cords, highest award in guiding. The recipients of this great honor were Louisa Reddin and Sheila Sheppard. The citation for the gold cords was read by Mrs. Cullen, chairman of the Gold Cord Committee for Prince Edward Island. Mrs. Cullen spoke highly of the girls' capabilities and excellent qualities as gold cord applicants. The awards were then presented to Misses Sheppard and Reddin by Mrs. Smethurst, division commissioner for Queen's County. She also presented the two girls with souvenirs of the occasion and spoke of the honor it was to her to be chosen to present the awards. After congratulations were extended to the girls by their company leaders, the presentation of other badges began. Betty Jean Affleck and Margie McCannell won the handywoman badge; the laundress badge was awarded to Darlene Glover, Anne MacLennan, Mary MacDonald, Sharon MacDonald, Paula Murphy, Debbie Doyle and Gwennie Affleck; service stars were presented to all members of the company.

Those present were then entertained by a square dance performed by Debbie Doyle, Mary MacDonald, Anne MacLennan, Sharon MacDonald, Shirley Affleck, Gwennie Affleck, Darlene Glover and Paula Murphy. The hymn, "Beyond the Sunset", was well sung by Margie McCannell and Cynthia Jay, accompanied by Mrs. Donald MacLennan. A prayer read by Faye Douglas followed this duet, and the highland fling, danced by Anne MacLennan, added to the entertainment.

The program was closed by the formation of the horseshoe and a brief singing by all the company. The center table was attractively decorated with baskets of mixed yellow flowers and yellow tapers, which complemented the color theme for the evening, the guide colors of blue and yellow. Refreshments were under the supervision of two former gold cord guides from the company, Eunice Reddin and Marlene Clark, while Sheila Sheppard and Louisa Reddin poured tea for the occasion. The evening ended with the singing of "God Save the Queen."
