RARE OPPORTUNITY.

A First-Class Family Residence

—WITH—

Outbuildings, Garden, Vinery, Orchard, Pasture Lots, &c.

THE Subscriber offers for sale his well-known Residence, situated on Lot No. 4, in the Royalty of Charlottetown, containing over 7 acres.

DWELLING.

The Dwelling House is very commodious, with lofty rooms, and contains Dining and Drawing Rooms, Breakfast Room and Office, large Hall, eight Bedrooms, Kitchen, Pantry and Scullery. The Cellar (the full size of House and Kitchen) is seven feet deep, dry, and plastered overhead.

A Hot Water Apparatus has just been put in, which warms Hall, Kitchen and five Bedrooms. A never-failing Well of excellent water has recently been fitted with a new Force Pump.

The House is substantially built, easily warmed in winter, and as good as new.

OUTBUILDINGS.

The Outbuildings comprise Barn and Stable, Hay Barn, Coach House, Joiner's Shop, Tool-house, Granary, Root House, Ice House, &c.

LANDS.

A well stocked Fruit and Kitchen Garden of half an acre, under fence; a Vinery capable of producing 300 lbs. of the choicest Grapes; an Orchard of 15 acres, stocked with the best varieties of Apples, Pears and Plums, and thoroughly drained with drain pipe; two Pasture Lots in a good state of cultivation, containing over 45 acres.

This desirable Property is admirably suited as a residence for a professional man, having all the advantages of pure air, freedom from dust, and not amenable to city taxes, yet within ten minutes' walk of the business part of the city.

For further particulars apply to WILLIAM DODD, Esq., Charlottetown, or to the owner, WM. HEARD.

Plant a Tree.

He who plants a tree,
Plants a hope,
Rootlets up through fibres blindly grope;
Leaves unfold into horizons free.

So man's life must climb
From the clove of time
Into heavens sublime.

Canst thou prophesy, thou little tree,
What the glory of thy boughs shall be?

He who plants a tree,
Plants a joy;
Plants a comfort that will never cloy;
Every day a fresh reality.

Beautiful and strong,
To whose shelter throng
Creatures blithe with song.

If thou couldst but know, thou happy tree,
Of the bliss that shall inhabit thee!

He who plants a tree,
He plants peace.

Under its green curtain jargons cease,
Leaf and zephyr murmur soothingly;

Shadows soft with sleep
Down tired eyelids creep,
Balm of slumber deep.

Never hast thou dreamed, thou blessed tree,
Of the benediction thou shalt be.

He who plants a tree,
He plants youth;

Vigor won for centuries in sooth;
Life of time, that hints eternity!

Boughs the strength uprear,
New shoots, every year
On old growths appear.

Thou shalt teach the ages, sturdy tree,
Youth of soul immortality.

He who plants a tree,
He plants love;

Tents of coolness spreading out above
Wayfarers, he may not live to see.

Gifts that grow are best;
Hands that bless are blest;

Plant! Life does the rest!
Heaven and earth help him who plants a tree,
And his work its own reward shall be.

—LUCY LARCOM.

A Unique Confession.

Lord Landowne's peroration at the farewell banquet in Ottawa was as follows:

"Mr. Mayor, I will close what I have to say with a confession. I spent three-quarters of an hour last night in endeavoring to compose a peroration for this speech, but I could not hit upon anything quite to my liking. I have often noticed that a speaker will make you a speech transparent in its sincerity and devoid of affectation until he arrives at his concluding passage. I became convinced that to-night anything of a conventional character would jar with my own feelings to such an extent that I resigned my peroration to the fireplace where it ended, as most perorations do, in smoke. (Laughter and applause.) Under these distressing circumstances I am going to ask your permission to read to you a peroration one or two sentences from a document recently discovered at Government house in an apartment which, I understand, will shortly be occupied by Lord Stanley. It is evidently a fragment or a series of fragments of a diary, and you may be able to add me to a conjecture as to its authorship. The first entry is dated towards the close of 1883. It runs as follows: 'In five years of expatriation. Almost wish I had stuck to North Wiltshire. Must make best of it.' (Laughter.) The next entry is 1884: 'We are making the best of it, and find it very far from unpleasant. Fancy the five years will pass quickly.' Then comes another in the following year: 'Time passing very quickly and pleasantly. I take back what I wrote about expatriation.' After this comes the following in 1886: 'Time positively flying. Not quite sure we shall not have to make it six years instead of five.' Then, sir, comes in 1888 an entry occasioned evidently by some event which exercised very great effect on the mind of the writer: 'These Canadians are splendid fellows, and have stood by us nobly. We have quite made up our minds to make it six years. (Great applause.) Last of all comes an entry written in rather shaky characters and runs thus: 'Why could not I remain where he was. It goes to our heart to leave this country and kind-hearted people. I trust they will remember us. We shall not forget them while we live.' And, Mr. Mayor, take my word for it, we shall not." (Tremendous cheers.)

An Alleged Murder Plot.

The London Central News announces that it is officially informed that the police have received news of Clan-na-Gael plotting which contemplates the commission of crimes similar to the tragedy of the Phoenix Park, Dublin, in which Lord Frederick Cavendish and Under-Secretary Burke lost their lives. The police for some time have watched the movements of Thomas Brennan, and found him conferring with a man named Walsh, who afterwards made a pretence of going to America. He ostensibly announced his intention of going to Omaha, to see Brennan, and really did sail for Havre, ostensibly taking the steamer to New York, but after reaching Havre he went on to Paris, where he has been living under an assumed name in an obscure hotel. The police have advertised a description of Walsh, and are closely watching men supposed to be parties to the plot. Further details of the plot are promised.

Foundering Horses.

Many farmers know the dangers of foundering horses by allowing them to drink unreasonably after being warmed by working or fast driving. The danger is greatest when the water is coldest. It is the sudden chill of cold water on a heated stomach that does the mischief. Water in spring is chilled from melting ice long after the air has been warmed up to the freezing point. All through the summer and until quite late in the fall, water is colder than the air. If the water be near the temperature of the animal it may be drunk without injury. Horses at work have little time at noon to cool off and will eat better after a drink of water warmed to take the chill off. This can be given without danger of injury if made warm enough.—Courier Journal.

Dilke on Defences.

The first number of a new periodical called The Universal Review, has appeared. Sir Charles Dilke has an article in it which he expressed virtually the same opinions regarding the defences of England as were declared by Lord Wolsey, only the former is more emphatic and explicit in his statements. He maintains that although England might probably hold her own against Russia alone, she would undoubtedly suffer defeat in the event of Russia and France making a combined attack upon her. This latter even, he declares, is probable, if the power of General Boulanger is strongly supported, and continue to grow as it has done.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain; and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup, and take no other kind. [April, '88.
