BRAHMIN BULLS EN ROUTE TO ISRAEL

Shown above are a number of Brahmin bulls in stalls built on the deck of the Israeli ship "S. S. Tapuz" in port at Charlottetown. Forty-three of these animals were loaded at Newport News, Virginia for breeding in Israel.

The Brahmin cattle are of a type much different to the cattle known in Canada. They are characterized by a prominent hump above the shoulders, and an extreme development of loose, pendulous skin under the throat, on the dewlap, navel and sheath of the males. The rump is sharply drooping, and head is long and narrow, ears are long and also droop. They vary in color from shades of grey to black.

A strain of cattle introduced to Canada several years ago, the Santa Gertrudis, are a cross of a Brahmin male and a Shorthorn female. They are mostly red in color, are much larger than the Brahmin. The males have a distinct hump on their shoulders but it is scarcely noticeable at all in the cows. These animals were developed by the King Ranch in Texas.

BRISTOL

Death claimed another of this vicinity's oldest residents last week in the passing of Mrs. John McDermott. Her funeral was held from the home of her son Herb McDermott to the church of the Little Flower where funeral mass was sung by her nephew, Rev. J.E.P. O'Hanley, who also conducted the service at the grave. The funeral was largely attended.

Friends here of Mr. Gregory Lewis, City, will be sorry to learn of his serious illness that has caused him to enter the Charlottetown Hospital to undergo a serious operation. A world war 2 veteran Mr. Lewis underwent a very serious operation for the same trouble some years ago. It is sincerly hoped his hospital stay at this time will get him on the road to much better health

Mr. Phillip Henneberry, one of this districts largest farmers, is selling out and has offered his large stock of nearly a hundred head of cattle for sale. What he plans to do in future has not been learned.

Mrs. Eugene Sinnott, who acts as practical nurse and housekeeper for many families is a busy woman this fall with all the flu, every one seems to be calling her for help, not only here but in the city and last winter Mrs. Sinnott, was called to Boston, for several months to wait on a sick family. It is lucky to have such a one in our district.

Mrs. Joseph McMillian suffered a heart condition last week and was removed to the Charlottetown Hospital where her condition is about the same. Her daughter, Mrs. Harold Douglas, has spent considerable time with her mother at the hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. P.R. Sinnott recall the Halifax explosion of forty years ago last Saturday as they were both residing in that city at that time and not married. Mr. Sinnott was in the army while Mrs. Sinnott, Margaret O'Brien, was employed in that city. They well recall the awful day. Mrs. Sinnott's brother, John R. O'Brien, who was also there at that time, still resides there.

Mr. and Mrs. Anslem Lapierre who catered to the hundreds of fishermen and other employees at the shore during the spring and summer, have closed up the cook house and gone home for the winter months. Mr. Lapierre is a first class cook with years of experience on Government boats and other big jobs.

Handicraft Van At Eglington

For the past two weeks the members of the Eglington and Howe Bay Women's Institute had as their guest the Handicraft Van with its two genial instructors, Misses Bertha DesRoches and Isabel Woolner. The instructions were held at the home of Mrs. Reid Underhay which made it a social as well as an informative event.

Owing to the fire in the Charlottetown Office we were unable to learn all the crafts, but when achievement day rolled around there were a goodly number of feather gloves, satin cushions, stencilled table runners and tea cloths as well as pyjamas and a blouse.

Upon their departure Misses Woolner and DesRoches were presented with cups and saucers from the Institute as well as Mrs. Underhay as a token of appreciation for this work.
