THE GREAT FRENCHMAN. Ferdinand de Lesseps and his Place in the 19th Century History. A man died in France the other day whose name had almost covered the world, and whose phenomenal rise and fall was one of its romances. Ten years ago he was known to the French as "le grand Français"; he had everything for which a Frenchman longs—wealth, notoriety, power in the world, and domestic happiness. He died stripped of his honors, disgraced, and the end was the result of his temperamental, exactly as the triumphs had been.

In 1808 Ferdinand de Lesseps' father was sent by Bonaparte to Egypt as the French diplomatic agent, and was commissioned to select a Turkish chief capable of ruling at Cairo. He selected Mehemet Ali, who could hardly read or write, but upon whom he could depend.

After several diplomatic appointments, Ferdinand de Lesseps became consul general at Cairo in 1838. Here he played a prominent part in the intrigues which ended in the bombardment of Acre by the British fleet, and the dismissal of Thiers by Louis Philippe. De Lesseps was removed from Cairo, but his diplomatic career did not come to an end until 1849, when he crossed swords with Louis Napoleon, who had declared himself emperor, and tricked him in a matter of statecraft.

For four years de Lesseps was in retirement. Then his old friend Mehemet Said was made Khedive of Egypt, and his old enemy Louis Napoleon married Eugenie de Montijo, who was de Lesseps' cousin.

The French diplomat was never without a project. He carried them up his sleeve, as Fouché was said to carry conspiracies. He had heard much of Napoleon's plans in Egypt, and he had read the report of Lepere, the engineer who declared that a canal across the Suez was a possibility. De Lesseps made his way to Egypt, and broached the subject to Mehemet Said, who would have promised him support for almost anything.

He went back to France, called together an international scientific committee, and transported its members to Egypt, to lay out the course of the canal—all at the expense of Mehemet Said. Lord Palmerston opposed the scheme in the name of England, and forbade the Porte to ratify it. Then de Lesseps put aside old grudges and went to Louis Napoleon. He carried the day with French support. In 1869 the canal was opened, before the Khedive, the Empress Eugenie, the Emperor of Austria, the Crown Prince of Prussia, and a great assemblage of other notables.

De Lesseps is described by people who knew him in the heyday of his greatness, as having an almost hypnotic power. He was full of life, of vigor, of enthusiasm, of belief in his own plans. People loved him for his joy in life. He fascinated them because he promised them what they wanted, with the fullest conviction that he could give it. His manner to women charmed them, and at great entertainments he was always the centre of the assembly.

His first wife was Mile. Delamalle, whom he married during his service in Egypt, and who bore him two sons, Charles and Victor. At sixty, when he was left a widower, he had just arranged a marriage for his nephew with a beautiful young girl, Mile. de Braganca. As he walked with her one evening in the garden of her father's house, she told him that it was not his nephew she loved, but himself, the hero of the day. They were married, and had ten children, two of whom are soldiers in the French army. The eldest daughter is the Countess de Gontant-Biron, the youngest is still almost a baby.

De Lesseps is often classified as an engineer. This he was not, though he accomplished the most remarkable engineering work of the century, and by profession a diplomatist; his great achievements were won by no technical skill, but by the wonderful force of his personality. He knew little of engineering, or he would have seen the difference between Suez and Panama. His optimism was marvelous, magnificent, unwavering. Never would he allow any one to insinuate, in his hearing, that there could exist the smallest possibility of failure for any of his undertakings.

He was perfectly sincere in his self-confidence. Men who were really practical authorities pronounced overwhelmingly against his Panama project; but calm men listened to the flood of de Lesseps' talk, through which there was the everlasting clink of gold, with smiling faces. The peasants of France poured out the contents of their wooden stockings at his feet. He sat in his office telling gray little tales, while crowds of business men waited in his anterooms. He lent his name, believing it would almost dig a canal of itself, and he was the victim of the corrupt men who used it. Finally his mind gave way at the downfall of his plans, and he spent the last months of his life daily expecting Queen Victoria to come and set matters right, believing that his destiny would care for him in the end.

The "Great Frenchman," member of the Forty Immortals, president of the Geographical Society of France, patron of a hundred associations, a man who helped to mold the destiny of nations, and he died ruined in purse and name, mercifully ignorant of his sentence to five years' imprisonment. Truly a strange and pathetic life story—Theodore Schwartz, in the March Muncey.

The existing improvement in the public health in this respect is, in considerable measure, due to a more widespread appreciation of sanitary laws, with the Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda, and Pancreatin, may justly claim to have largely aided in the good work. Priestley's Dress Fabrics. In the long run it is the quality of the material that will determine the success of a lady's costume. Every lady who has at all studied the matter knows this. Priestley's Black Dress Goods are the best that the market affords. That is conceded on all hands. The ladies of Great Britain especially acknowledge it. The American ladies prefer Priestley's dress fabrics to French. Our Canadian ladies use none asking for them. They wear better than other goods; but their great charm consists in a peculiar richness and softness of appearance, and a flexibility which enables them to drape in the costume with that suggestion of flow and rhythm which is the dream of all tasteful women to realize.

See that the goods you buy are stamped "every five yards with 'Priestley's name.'" No others are of their manufacture. WE AIM to give the best value for your money of any Hardware house in the city, in anything from a package of tacks to a Cooking Range. Our stock of Kitchen Furnishings is very complete, as is also our stock of Ready Mixed Paints, all colors and best quality, Kalsomines, Whittings, etc.

A DIPHTHERIA SCARE. There is no doubt but that diphtheria at this season in its worst form is prevalent in many cities and small towns. At the same time, that fact is no reason for frightening people out of their wits, with every new case of sore throat. Hundreds of persons are said to have had diphtheria who only had a severe sore throat. The form of sore which often passes for diphtheria is what is called "quinsy." "Putrid sore throat," known long before diphtheria. An old hospital nurse in Boston, says: "It ain't the clear cold of winter that lays people up with croup, catarrh and sore throats, and lays the children low with diphtheria, it's the soft, pleasant, alternating with the wet, slushy days." This is very true, because then the air is laden with poisonous vapors. The first symptoms of true diphtheria there is fever, some stupor, and difficulty in breathing. Very sharp pains are often felt in the neck glands, just below the ear. The tongue is coated, the throat and tonsils inflamed, white spots, which increase and turn to a dirty yellow or brown color. Very many reliable people claim to have cured severe cases of diphtheria with Johnson's Anodyne Linctive. Be that as it may, it is worth trying, because we know from experience it will cure a common sore throat in one night, and thousands of people claim that no remedy known will relieve colds, catarrh bronchitis, croup, etc., as promptly. If it cures them, why not diphtheria? S. Johnson & Co., Boston, Mass., will send their new illustrated book, entitled "Treatment for Diphtheria," free to any person for the asking.

EDMANSON, BATES & CO., Gentlemen.—About three or four weeks ago I had an attack of itching Piles. I tried two or three different remedies recommended by druggists as "the best and only cure," etc., etc., but got no relief. About this time I was beginning to despair of finding any relief. With some slight misgivings I bought a box of your pile cure, which I am pleased to say gave me almost instant relief and permanent cure. I consider your Ointment a God-send. A. J. DEAN.

Sir Oliver has a special luck this session of the Ontario Legislature, when the Patrons are not voting with him against the Conservatives, the Conservatives are voting with him against the Patrons. It's All Nonsense. For people to say there is no cure for consumption. Sufferers from that dread disease and kindred ailments are being saved every day by Miller's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil. Do not sit without giving it a fair trial. If it will cure others it will cure you. The secret of its success lies in the fact that it creates new blood in the system, thus enabling sufferers from lung troubles to overcome the destructive forces at work to waste the tissues of the body. Miller's Emulsion is the great nerve strengthener and blood-maker, and cures coughs, colds, bronchitis, scrofula, and all lung ailments. In big bottles 50c and $1, at all drug stores.

Dr. Wm. Hotchkiss, alleged to be 140 years old, died at St. Louis, Mo.; suddenly of heart disease. His Masonic grave can be traced back 100 years, showing conclusively he was at least 121 years. DECREASE OF WEALTH IN ENGLAND.—It is stated that the loss resulting from the fall in the value of land and prices of agricultural products has reached £600,000,000 in ten years and the spendable income of the agricultural classes has decreased in ten years by upwards of £80,000,000, while the aggregate wealth of the United Kingdom, estimated equal to £2,952,000,000, has decreased from £317,000,000 to £262,000,000.

If too rapid eating causes dyspepsia, and it in its turn produces nervous exhaustion, debility, weakness, anemia, etc., the first step in effecting a cure is to eat slowly. The second and most important is to take a course of Hawker's nerve and stomach tonic, which aids the process of digestion, invigorates the stomach, renews the vitality of the blood, relieves brain fatigue, and makes weak nerves strong.
