

Beaconsfield and Prophecy.

Lord Beaconsfield and the British protectorate he has just established over Asiatic Turkey are the subject of a note sent to the Sun by a young man who has been studying yesterday's news.

The colossal bronze statue of Dr. Chalmers will be unveiled in Scotland this week. The designer of the statue, Sir John Steell, is at present seriously ill.

Mr. St. Leger Herbert, of Ottawa, goes to Cyprus with Sir Garnet Wolseley. Mr. Herbert was, up to a recent date, connected with the staff of the Governor General.

John Bright hates parsons and men of war, and his youngest daughter is about to marry Mr. Richard Curry, son of the late Admiral Curry and stepson of Dr. Colles, Vicar of Stratford.

King Alfonso will build a million dollar church near the Royal Palace, containing a splendid mausoleum in memory of the Queen. The room in which she died is to be left untouched: in that same room he was born.

It is rumored that Gilmore will soon return to America, as the financial result of his European trip does not equal his anticipations. With the exception of a few soloists, the members of the band receive an equal share of the profits, and their first weeks salary amounted only to fifteen dollars; the second week, the division yielded forty dollars, and the third week, twenty-three dollars for each one.

The Democrats had the good sense to put three editors on their ticket—Swineford, of the Marquette Mining Journal; Murdock, of the Berrien Springs Journal; and Schermerhorn, of the Hudson Gazette. It was exceedingly bad taste for these gentlemen to accept, however, as no journalist should descend from his high position to take political office.
