MARY HAWORTH

Mother Thinks Morals Rate Above Popularity

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I write from a heart full of concern for teenagers. And to the fifteen-year-old BD whose comment would not let her "go along with the crowd" (in making out) the essence of her honor and decency. I say thank God for a teenager of her caliber and courage.

ELLEN'S DIARY

All Knowledge And Skill May Someday Prove Useful

"Now that I know what we have done, let's see what we can do!" James grinned at Mack who had come by when the pack and tent were being set up. "Presently we saw a smoke mount from the chimney of the house across the lane, when a pair of lads playing happily in the sandpit in the shade of a maple and all else was quiet. The fire had been a freemint leaf. According to James Eden, the one daughter there was about to bake a cake! A silly day this was, fog-wrapped at morning, warmly sunlit this afternoon.
