

SOME WRECKAGE AFTER MONDAY'S FIRE

This icy jungle of twisted pipe and broken equipment witnesses the terrific destruction of Monday's spectacular blaze, which levelled the premises occupied by the Island Tire Service. In the foreground can be seen the skeleton of Mr. Walter MacDonald's 1954 Chrysler sedan, an early victim of the quick spreading inferno.

Capsized Twice Across Atlantic

NEW YORK (AP)—"I capsized twice in storms," Dr. Hannes Lindemann of Hamburg, Germany, said Tuesday as he described how he crossed the Atlantic alone in a 17-foot rubber boat. The 34-year-old physician sailed from Las Palmas, Canary Islands, last Oct. 20. Seventy-two days later he reached St. Martin in the Dutch West Indies. The boat is a kind of kayak made of rubberized canvas stretched over a collapsible wooden frame and containing air tubes for buoyancy. It has a mainsail, a small square sail forward, another square sail aft. From St. Martin Lindemann sailed to St. Thomas, Virgin Islands. He then took the boat aboard an airliner to New York last Wednesday. The first time he capsized he said "was on the 57th day out. I lay on the overturned boat until the storm went down, then righted her and bailed out. However, I had lost most of my provisions, my sextant and chronometer soon rusted to uselessness. The second time was two days later." Lindemann said he set sail with about 175 pounds of concentrated food and liquid. "I soon got used to short rations," he said. "What fish I speared I ate raw. I had deliberately fattened up to 209 pounds before the journey on which I lost 43 pounds. I now am back to my normal 175."

4 Approaches, Four Names

NORTH GREENVILLE N.S. (CP)—A group mailbox has solved some but not all of the mail delivery problems for residents in this multi-named Northern Nova Scotia community. When the local postmaster resigned and the post office was closed last fall a crisis arose. The provincial government met it by installing the group box recently. But confusion still exists. North Greenville is known as Jersey, Atkinson and Sodom, as well as Sodom Bridge by railway men. The names are backed up by signposts at different approaches to the community. Apparently residents aren't sure. National Jaycee Official On Visit To Montague Junior Bd.

The Montague Junior Board of Trade had the pleasure of an official visit last night, from Mr. Harold Bibby, executive director of L'Ordre de l'Etoile Noire, a French decoration. Mr. Bibby arrived in Charlottetown yesterday afternoon and was met by officials of the Charlottetown Junior Board, who accompanied him to Montague where they met with the Montague Jaycees at a dinner meeting at the Bison Restaurant. Following dinner Mr. Bibby addressed the Junior Board on matters pertaining to Junior Chamber policies, especially the problems of the local group. He stressed the point that Jaycee clubs should start the year with a planned program. He was very impressed with the Montague Junior Board projects, especially the roadside tables and the inauguration of garbage disposal in the town. He was very complimentary regarding their latest project, the farm museum.

Mr. Bibby was born in Staffordshire, England, and served with the R.A.F., receiving part of his training at Summerside, P.E.I. He joined the British Jaycees in 1946, and the Canadian Jaycees in 1948. He is a valued member of this organization, having served in almost every office until reaching his present position as a full time executive director. Following Mr. Bibby's address, a round table discussion and question and answer period took place. A film taken at the fall regional convention in Charlottetown was shown by Jaycee Walter Wheeler and was thoroughly enjoyed by the local group, as they included members of the Montague Jaycees. Mr. Bibby was heartily thanked by the Montague Jaycees both for his timely visit and his most interesting address.

The host of friends of Mrs. L. Francis, Fortune Bridge, regret to learn of her continued illness in the P.E.I. Hospital, Charlottetown. A speedy get well is extended to Mrs. Francis as she is widely known to many in the Eastern districts as she was for several years employed as book keeper with the firm of Matthew and McLean, Souris East. Deepest sympathy is extended to Mrs. Garth McEwen, Parkdale, Charlottetown, in the passing away of her mother-in-law, Mrs. Claude McEwen and who in the past three months mourned the death of her husband and brother, Mr. B.G. Johnston, Montague. A hockey game between Red Point and Fortune was held in the Red Point Community Rink on January 14th and the score was 7-2 in favour of Red Point. Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. John Robertson, Kingsboro, on their recent marriage in Souris. Mrs. Robertson is the former Miss Laura Dupuy, Souris. MacPhee, Souris, who passed away at his home in Souris Jan. 28th. Mr. MacPhee was well and favourably known throughout this area and in his business. He was at all times found to be obliging and honest in all his dealings. He will not only be missed in the home but in the town of Souris where he took an active part in Church and Community affairs. It can be truly said he was a friend to the end. His smile and pleasant expression will be sorely missed. Canadian Schools Should Bring Out Romantic Past

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer
OTTAWA (CP) — Netherlands ambassador Antonius Hermanus Johannes Lovink, a broad-statured diplomat known to friends as Tony, says digging into a country's past helps one understand its present. Dean of Ottawa's diplomatic corps, the affable six-foot-three, 190-pounder said in an interview that the six years he has spent applying that principle have even led him to feel partly Canadian. "He probably has seen more of the country than have most Canadians, since his travels include five voyages by canoe along north-land waterways, following routes first travelled hundreds of years ago by Canada's early explorers. Their journals and maps have been his guide. PLANS SIXTH TRIP A fourth northland trip, by canoe and portage, is projected for next summer, when he and seven others plan to cover the 500 miles of Northern Saskatchewan between the southern reaches of Reindeer Lake, straddling the Manitoba-Saskatchewan border, and Lake Athabaska, on the Saskatchewan-Alberta border. Mr. Lovink, 55, sees his annual north-country excursions as part of his job. "It is impossible to know at least a smattering about a country unless you have an idea of its history. And reading must be linked to seeing. In every country something of the past is left behind. "It's like going into a room, or a house, where life has been either happy or tragic. You sense it immediately. You feel something of the past there, and the impression is positive, negative, or blank." Too many thought Canada new country. "It may be new in its form of government, but certainly not in terms of its historic past." CANOE'S BIG ROLE Its past is fascinating, adventurous and romantic, owing much to the canoe and the "incredible courage" of its early explorers, says the diplomat-sportsman, who took up skiing and snow-shoeing after his Ottawa posting in 1950. "It is not without reason that the back of the Canadian silver dollar shows the canoe, which has done the most for the country's development." So he and others of similar bent have taken to going over the old routes, long since unused, with only the diaries of the first explorers as guide. "That way you experience the marvel of reading in the diary what you can expect the next day. And, because it has been by-passed, the scenery has not changed. You see the very rocks, rapids and lochs as first seen and recorded hundreds of years ago. "And you ask what it was that impelled the voyageurs to go on. We forget their sufferings and dangers. What is left is the impression—for those looking for it—of the will, the strength and the faith it took to accomplish something in the face of the most terrible odds. "When you have grasped that in a country, then that country becomes a little bit your own." IMPORTANT BACKGROUND Then, he says, its affairs become understandable in terms of its background. Talk with government leaders, politicians and business men is not enough. "The normal conversations of the ordinary persons, expressing their reactions, desires and ambitions must be tapped. Considered against the panorama of their past it is obvious to me that the pioneer spirit still is strong among Canadians."

Privately he says: "To me Canada is a person, not just a name, with all the aspects of a personality—life, a feel, sounds, silences, colors, smells, wildernesses and beauties all her own. "I always get a little bit angry when people tell me Canada is just a large country, with little history." Canadian schools, he says, should dwell more on the romance of the country's past. PLANNING BIG FACTOR Excursions such as he makes take up more in time to plan than in money to finance. Most planning is done by Eric Morse of Ottawa, executive secretary of the Association of Canadian Clubs and a companion on all of them. "Where else in the world can you have the time of your life for three weeks at a cost of only $45?" asks Mr. Lovink, who has served his country in Indonesia, China, Russia and Great Britain. The group packs and carries its own supplies, hauls its own gear over portages and cooks its own meals. A leader is delegated, usually Sigurd Olson of Elie, Minn., whose law is law in alloting tasks and assigning each day's mileage, usually 25 or 30. The timetable must be kept. "If we didn't, the authorities would get worried, send out search parties and we'd be causing the country trouble and expense." That's a matter of family concern now, since son Hans, 22, is officially an immigrant. Graduate of McGill University and the University of Western Ontario, Hans is a trainee economist with the Canadian National Railways. The Lovinks have a daughter, Marianna, 21, due to graduate this year in biology from Queen's University, Kingston, and two young sons, Antonius, Jr., 10, and Ashbury College.
