No Money For New City Hall Says Finance Com. Chairman

"There will be no money spent on a new city hall or fire hall in the foreseeable future," H.E. Hyndman, chairman of the finance committee of City Council said last evening.

Mr. Hyndman was commenting on a report in The Guardian of a remark by Mayor A. Walter Gaudet at the annual fire department dinner that it was hoped to have plans ready and construction start on a new City Hall this fall under the federal works project.

(What Mayor Gaudet had been talking about was a new fire hall —not a city hall, and a corrected report of his address to the firemen was given in last evening's Patriot.)

Mr. Hyndman said, "so long as I am chairman of finance I will fight any thought of this type of spending. We just don't have the money. Granted we may need a fire hall, but until we have the money we will have to do without it. Even if the federal government granted 75 per cent of the cost we still would not have the other 25 per cent.

"Although I have not approached other members of Council on this I believe they will support my attitude."

Birchwood Home And School Told Of School Board's Role

The role of the city school board and the setting up of a scholarship committee were the main items on the agenda of the February meeting of the Birchwood Home and School Association last evening.

A committee is to make the necessary recommendations in connection with the proposed scholarship.

A member of the Board of School Trustees, Dr. J.H. Maloney was questioned by the president of the home and school association, Ivan Berrigan on the role of the board.

Dr. Maloney said the main duty of the board was to educate the children of the city from grades one to 10. He told how the board was appointed and to whom it is responsible.

When questioned as to the location of the new schools in the city, Dr. Maloney stated that the schools were built to accommodate the changes in the city's population. He outlined the popular trends of the city both in the past and what is expected in the future, and he said that the need in the future would probably be for an extension of the Spring Park School.

On the question of having grades 11 and 12 in the city schools he said that because of the facilities now available it is difficult to see this happening in the near future.

The speaker, when questioned on the matter of technical training in schools, said that "We are living in a technical age but we have no technicians. What we need," he said, "was a vocational school program followed by a technical school program."

In his final remarks, Dr. Maloney said that we need an adult education program a city recreation program in order that the role which the school has to play in the development of citizens may be increased.

The speaker was thanked by the president.

INDUSTRY'S

loans for fishing boats "because of uncompetitive prices on the Island, or lack of a builder."

Calling attention to the regulations of the P.E.I. Fishermen's Loan Board which requires 50 per cent deposit on new construction, the federation stated that such deposits can create a drain on the operating capital of plant owners and operators and this could be a contributing factor to the decline of factory ownership in this province. It was recommended that a study be made to reduce the initial deposit to 30 per cent of cost.

Also recommended was that the provincial government lend its assistance in having the building subsidy on a small draggers amended so that the class of dragger being used in the province will qualify for 100 per cent of the $250-per-ton subsidy from the federal government.

RISK CAPITAL

Suggested was that study be given to setting up risk capital which would be available to Island producers for the promotion of the fishing industry.

Called for were steps to be taken by various government departments, concerned with fisheries and tourism, to "give much needed" to the fishing occupation. Suggested was the fisheries exhibition, local television and radio programs dealing with fisheries and assistance in establishing window displays "in prominent places on the Island, demonstrating the various aspects of the fishing industry and marketing."

Also recommended was that the government continue its study and development of vocational courses dealing with fishing industry operations at strategic points in the province and that consideration be given to establishing a technical institute to provide advanced instruction in fishing methods and increased production.

Appreciation was expressed to the government on the paving of roads to fishing establishments and landing stations; a request was made in the brief that "this policy continue where necessary."

First Prince Member Urges More Research And Training

Effective research to help the fish industry and the training of fieldmen that would work with the fishermen and aim to have all the province's fishermen organized to join with the P.E.I. Fisheries Federation "in a group that any government would recognize as representative of every phase of the province's industry," was urged in the Legislature yesterday by Hubert Gaudet, PC-1st Prince.

A man with years of experience as a practical fisherman, Mr. Gaudet spoke to the fishermen's federation delegation that presented a brief to the legislature yesterday afternoon.

His suggestion won commendation from Opposition Leader Alex Matheson and quick and wholehearted approval from Premier Walter Shaw.

EXPLORE EVERY ANGLE

The premier assured the delegation that the government "will explore every angle of your excellent brief because we recognize the importance of your industry."

Approving the suggestion of trained personnel from Mr. Gaudet, he said "we'll go all out to get such men if they are available."

Mr. Gaudet said there should be some method of keeping the draggers "from damaging the inshore fisherman who has a tough time at best."

He suggested "the big draggers may be frightening the fish off the grounds altogether."

The 1st Prince member told of a group fishing some 12 miles off North Cape when one day some 30 draggers appeared, took full loads of "great big fish", then moved next day some 10 miles or so away.

The inshore fishermen found the big fish were gone. "We came back next day and got fishermen's federation delegation that presented a brief to the legislature yesterday afternoon.

The inshore fishermen found the big fish were gone. "We came back next day and got fishermen", he told the house.

The Tignish member drew the rapt attention of the house when he said "there might be some little fisherman like myself that knows more about fishing than anyone in the federation.

"I'm not able to fish any more," he said, "but if every fisherman in the province came in and backed up the federation, any government would have to listen to them when they came before it, because they would represent the fishermen of the whole province."

He urged research be done to find why there is such a run of small fish at times. The market doesn't want them, and there are no good anyway, he added.

Attorney-General Suggests Better Inshore Protection

"The P.E.I. Fisheries Federation should urge that something be done to prevent draggers from fishing in areas where they are damaging the gear of inshore fishermen," Attorney General Melvin McQuaid said in the Legislature yesterday following the annual presentation of a federation brief.

Mr. McQuaid pointed out that the brief contained no mention of protecting inshore fishermen from the operation of draggers. He said that last summer he had seen draggers operating about 100 yards offshore and nets and trawls were damaged.

PATROLS NOT ANSWER

"Patrols aren't the answer, said Mr. McQuaid, "as the damage is done at night, and I don't think it is feasible for fishermen to mark their bouys with lights as this would be too costly.

"The only satisfactory solution to the problem is to have certain areas restricted to draggers. If a dragger is caught in one of these areas the owner would be subject to the penalties of the law.

"I believe representation is being made to Ottawa in this regard and I would suggest that the federation, if it sees fit, support those who are making the representation."

Mr. McQuaid supported the recommendation in the federation's brief that consideration be given to establishing a fisheries exhibition at King's Landing "I also suggest," he said, "that the federation, possibly with government help, encourage the per capita consumption through advertising.

"Also, perhaps the proposed fisheries exhibition could feature a fish cooking school and the women in Prince Edward Island don't know how to cook fish properly. A cooking school might be a good thing."

ROAD REQUESTED

Commenting on a section in the brief in which the federation stated it appreciated the paving of roads to fishing establishments, S.S. Hessian (L - 5th Kings) said "I went on my knees for years to try to get the government to pave the road leading to a factory in Gaspereaux.

"That factory is the greatest establishment we have for employment in Kings County. More work there than at any plant in the province with the exception of a plant near Summerside. We take in outside establishments and loan them hundreds of thousands of dollars to set them up in business—all the Gaspereaux factory owner asked for was a good road. We all failed him."

Mr. Hessian appealed to Premier Walter R. Shaw "to stand at my back—and put through to that factory what they are entitled to—a road to go to their work."

The 5th Kings member also asked the fisheries federation to back up his request that "if necessary, to come here again and put pressure on the government" to get the road, the north section of the road leading to Graham's Factory, paved.

SHAW PRAISES BRIEF

Premier Shaw termed the brief "fair, clear-cut and moderate in its demands." He said that several of the requests in the brief were already being worked on by the government and the others would receive careful examination and "if at all possible to carry out the government will meet the requests."

Fisheries Minister Leo Rosster promised the federation that the government will explore every avenue to develop the fishing industry. He said that the general minister of fisheries is favorable to the idea of a fisheries institute or school that the federation requested consideration be given to. "My department intends to do everything possible to promote it," he said.

POLITICAL RIVALRY

Political rivalry crept in at one stage when Dr. M.L. Bonnell, Lib-4th Kings, hurled charges at the PCs in reference to some items mentioned in the brief and Mr. Rossiter quickly retorted for his party.

Dr. Bonnell said there should be more fishermen on the P.E.I. Fishermen's Loan Board and implied that now a man "can sit on the board and loan himself-money, and get two or three dragnets for himself."

More fishermen on the board would strengthen it and give it the feel of the fishermen, he said.

Mr. Rossiter wondered why Dr. Bonnell had not expressed some of those ideas when he was in the government. "I never heard him advocate more fishermen members at that time," he said.

"If the honorable member doesn't know any more about medicine than he does about fishing, God help the people in Murray River is all I can say," the fisheries minister stated.

"How is he going to make nylon rope out of hemp?" asked the minister who charged that that was what the member from Murray Harbor has suggested.

"You wouldn't know a lobster from a codfish," the minister told him.

Frank Myers (PC-1st Queens) Don Campbell (PC-1st Prince) and Opposition Leader Alex Matheson also spoke on the brief. Mr. Myers and Mr. Campbell expressed their interest in the industry and Mr. Matheson said "we on this side of the house assure you of our interest in your welfare."

PWC To Present 'H.M.S. Pinafore'

The Prince of Wales College Chorus will present three performances of Gilbert and Sullivan's famous "H.M.S. Pinafore" on March 20, 21 and 22.

This comic opera is one of the most popular of all Gilbert and Sullivan masterpieces and its lyrics and plot are well known everywhere. It is a story of youth and gaity admirably suited to the talents of the college chorus.

The chorus boasts some splendid voices as soloists and a delightful ensemble. It will be under the direction of Christopher Gledhill who makes his debut as conductor in Charlottetown. An orchestra of local musicians will accompany the show.

The production will include complete staging and scenery by R. G. White and Eleanor Lowe and the authentic costumes of Malabars. Production is in charge of Dr. Frank MacKinnon and dramatics by Elizabeth MacGowan.

This will be Prince of Wales' fourth Gilbert and Sullivan opera. In previous years the chorus presented "Mikado," "Trial by Jury," and "The Pirates of Penzance."

Enheat Planning Major Expansion

Plans are far advanced which will result in a major expansion of the activities of Enamel and Heating Products Ltd., at the firm's plant at the airport here, it was reported in Charlottetown yesterday.

Details, and confirmation of the plans, are still awaited from Enheat's head office in Sackville and the department of national defence in Ottawa.

EXPANSION INDICATED

Preliminary reports indicate that there will be a major expansion both of plant and of employment. Enheat now operates in a hangar leased from Maritime Central Airways, and became established in Charlottetown early in 1961 to engage in work on Sabre jet aircraft.

The new report is that the company is to be given a contract covering old Lancaster bombers, which played a famous part in the Second World War, raising the prospect of a larger hangar being required.

The old bomber, confined to moth balls several years ago, is being reactivated for service in Canada's northland by the department of national defence.

Research has shown, it has been reported, that the "Lank" is the plane best suited for this type of work.
