

Maria Driscoll and Barry Chandler renovating: a few non-journalistic jobs

A view of the office before

Work on The U.P.E.I. Sun is varied to say the least. As can be seen a person could have no interest in newspapers but still work for the newspaper. Over Christmas, the number of hours spent on carpentry would have easily put out a quarter of the issues for this semester, and the work is not finished yet: Shelves have to be put up. A few more notice boards could be painted and they say that there still is a bit more painting to be done. Remember, work on the Sun is aimed at getting students together more than anything else. Drop in some time.

If any of this work appeals to you, or any of the work listed below interests you, come to our first meeting of the semester Monday, January 16, in room 401, Main at 7:00 pm. Or just take a gander at the new renovations.

Of course there is always this weekly thing of putting out a paper. Gives one some great experience, it does. For instance, just look at the back issues of the paper. It is slowly improving. This is due to experience we are getting. We learn how to do something better with each issue. We even utilize this knowledge once in a while. What do we learn to do?

Writing: This is of course essential to a paper. It involves reporting, which we hope to get more done of especially in the field of investigative reporting. We have some very good topics for any political scientists on campus. Anyone interested in finding out about things political, apolitical or otherwise, we'd love to see them.

Lay-out: The psychological implications are alone staggering. Lay-out is the design of the way the articles are set up on the ge. What's this about psychological implications. Well, if we don't put certain things in certain places (such as pictures) people will not read them. A page must be set up so the reader can read the page at a glance. This is an art form that is challenging and extremely satisfying. Any one who wants to be able to put articles down so that the reader will have to read them, come see us or Generalissimo Idi Amin Dada.

Paste-up; Paste-up is the actual process of sticking copy (stories, pictures, etc.) to the layout sheets. If this is done improperly it destroys the work of lay-out. Paste-up people are responsible for many of the little things in the paper such as the line and page number at the top of the page. It's a job you can stick to (please don't give up on me now for one lousy pun). To get started, show up on 4th floor
