

THE DAILY EXAMINER. MAY 2, 1883.

"The Crown can do no Wrong."

This is all very well—in theory. In the conflicts of parties, and interests in the State, the theory may, also, be practically useful as a safeguard against anarchy.

With respect to the particular case in which this vicious principle was asserted, there can be no doubt that a desire to make political capital out of the unfortunate accident which gave rise to it, impelled sundry persons to make exaggerated statements concerning the state of the railway at that time.

A gentleman who occasionally visits Canada says that when five years ago "the Canadian North-West was practically unknown."

"There are plenty of Conservatives in this country," says the Times, "as disinterested and as open-minded, as keen to see the necessity for change, and as willing to bring it about, as any Liberal."

—Sir Leonard Tilley informed a deputation who lately waited upon him that no change would be made in the rules respecting Mutual Insurance Companies.

—The Monetary Times says:—"The old Latin adage, festina lente, or make haste slowly, conveys sound advice upon the present financial position."

The Mackenzie-Rappley Light was on exhibition at the Diamond Bookstore last evening. It attracted considerable attention for its brilliancy. It is a complete departure from the prevailing mode of gas lighting.

The Indian Department has instructed the Assistant Indian Commissioner at Winnipeg to remove 3,000 Indians from Fort Walsh to Qu'Appelle reserve.

Horrible Tragedy.

"SHOT THROUGH THE HEART."

A horrible tragic event occurred at Petitediac, on the 30th ult. The Moncton Transcript reports it as follows:—"Several weeks ago a man named Stewart had a horse removed from his barn by Constable Steeves, of Elgin, who levied on it for taxes. It is said that there were two horses in the barn, but only one was owned by Stewart. Steeves, it appears, was not aware of this. After dark, Steeves entered Stewart's place, and took one of the horses, which, it is alleged, is the property of some other person. Steeves took the animal to his own barn and advertised it for sale.

Both Dryden and Steeves are respectively connected and are well-to-do farmers. Lucius Steeves is a man about 55 years of age and of a shrewd and determined disposition. He lives in Elgin. Dryden was about 30 years of age and living with his family at Turtle Creek where Stewart (for whom he was serving a warrant) also resides.
