The ladies prize was won by Mrs. Cecil Buchanan while Bob Crawford walked off with the men's prize. Consolation prizes were awarded to Mrs. Pius Henneberry and Alex MacDougall. Cakes were won by Miss Sally Johnston, Mrs. Reg. Henneberry and Peter MacLeod. The door prize was won by Mrs. Hazel Murphy.

A delicious lunch brought the evening to a close.

Mr. Garnett Ford, Milton, is a patient in the Prince Edward Island Hospital where he is receiving treatment.

Household Hint

Make your own color card for matching fabrics to a newly painted color scheme by dipping a white blotter in the paint; blotter will dry the same color as the walls.

ELLEN'S DIARY

Star And Moon Light Path Toward Firelight Of Home

"Give me a firelight gleaming, And a door to which to come.."

We shed snowboots, scarf and jacket, put a stick on the fire this evening and "bressed de Lawd" for the shelter of "that dear hut" that is home.

We had been looking in at a calf new-come to the pole-barn, which is set to the rear of the other buildings, and then rather aimlessly with James, we had strolled up the rise of field to look out on the farmlands about. What perfect walking one has when the frost-grip which has been relaxed by the sun of day, firms again the drifts! From there, the lights of farmsteads and machines on the various roads, jewell the night brightly, and for us was the starshine and moonlight to attend our steps. "This March is not much like last year's, Ellen" James commented. "Remember all the snow! Given a few days like those we've been having and the fields will be bare. But they're better covered. And they will be" he nodded. "Yes it's too early yet for the spring."

Cars went out the road: youngsters and older, rink-bound, as were ours in the little truck, which suddenly came to life at lane's end and faced away too. Eastward was the glow of the city lights on the sky. The passing traffic on the highway was similiarly marked.

"It won't be too long before we have the moon of the haying" we chuckled. "That's what bothers me, Ellen. Once the spring comes in, there'll be no stopping the days. They'll fly!"

The rooftops of home-caught against the slope, we could see. And below, catch a glimpse here and there of the dark of the stream between its white banks.

"We'll hear the frogs soon we offered.

"We hope not in April" James said. "Let's not have a cold spring! But there's no mistake" he smiled "this has been one lovely March week!"

March has lengthened the days. Now the sunrise comes earlier. And the evening loiters pleasantly beyond the hilltops, waiting there until the last banners of orange, and flame, and purple, flung across the west, have faded to amber and coral and lilac behind and above the firry treetops, before it opens the spillways for twilight's flood to escape to shadow the valley below. And presently a first star burns steadily high above the mill.

And our home — but what is it? C.E. Flynn includes much in "The Name".

"Give me a field to wander
Give me a path to go,
Give me a sky to ponder.
Give me a star to know,
Give me a tree availing
For shelter in storm and gloom,
Give me a roof unfailing;
And I will call it 'Home.'

Give me a spot to treasure,
Give me a bloom to tend,
Give me a joy to measure
With a loved one, or a friend;
Give me a firelight gleaming,'
And a door to which to come.
And a peaceful couch for dreaming:
And I will call it 'Home'."

Until Monday — Diary—Good-night.

MARY HAWORTH

Spinster Forms Problems Attachment To Psychiatrist

Dear Mary Haworth: I am a spinster, 46. My IQ is 127. I am an organist; also I am employed in the government service.

Five years ago I was hospitalized during a six months' period of nervous illness. The senior physician who attended me had been my father's doctor for 18 years, until father's death five years earlier.

This psychiatrist, in practice 33 years (he is now 59) offered to see me in private consultation after I left the hospital. I accepted his offer gratefully. I have been seeing him all this time and have grown to love him.

He is married, with two children— one married, the other in college. He assures me that his only purpose in seeing me is to help me; but then he asserts that he is dissatisfied with his home life of 31 years. He says he enjoys being with me.

I was reared in a Christian home and have prayed to God for help. But when the answer comes, weakness defeats me. The despair that presently fills my heart is not good. Yet when I think of closing my life to him the prospect breaks my spirit. Can you assist me in finding the right approach to solving the problem? Thank you—R.Y.

Dear R.Y.: You are asking me to help you find, within yourself, the strength to act decisively in solving an emotional conflict having to do with your supposed love of the doctor.

What you don't quite realize is that the attachment isn't love so much as it is infantile dependency. Or, rather, a past habit of such dependency, that you've begun to resent furiously, on the unconscious level, because it stands in the way of your attaining a satisfactory, fulfilled life as a woman. Or, in any case, having a good try towards that healthy goal.

As of now, you are pressing, unconsciously, towards a forward step. You are close to having a flash of dynamic insight, or a breakthrough to clear understanding, as regards the dead-end nature and the outworn usefulness of your sentimental alliance with the doctor.

In praying God's help, getting a sense of guidance (to quit the client relationship, no doubt), then backing away from that prospect in panic, with the despairing feeling that you'd be lost without this ersatz companionship, you are hovering on the threshold of new growth as a person.

Figuratively you are in the situation of a child long since old enough to swim for himself, if he will make the essential consistent learning effort to wade in and acquire the necessary skill—but who continues to hang back, clinging unhappily to nurse's hand, thus isolated from real growth experience suited to his wants and needs.

"Do the thing and you shall have the power," folk wisdom tells us (meaning the power to master the techniques of success in the task undertaken).

"Nothing ventured, nothing gained," a proverb says. And in Scriptures we read that "faith without works is dead." Faith, which is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen, even faith cannot bring us to victory, out of seeming defeat unless we bestir ourselves to act in accordance with guidance given us.

For help in finding the right approach to solving your problem, read "The Christian's Secret of a Happy Life" (Revell) by Hannah Whitall Smith. And don't be put off by the title, if it doesn't appeal to you. It is a powerful, logical discourse on the A-B-C's of walking in God's light and profiting thereby.

Mrs. Howard Addresses York UCW Service

Mrs. Hazen Howard, Cornwall, was guest speaker for the recent inaugural service of York United Church Women.

Reminding the members of the faithfulness of the WMS and the Evening Auxiliary in the past, she urged all United Church Women to catch a vision of the great work that is still to be done, and to go on to greater service in the master's work.

Mrs. Reuben Watts and Mrs. Elmer Brown were leaders in the special service issued by the interim board of women. The UCW choir, accompanied by Mrs. Lloyd Vessey as organist sang the special anthem "God Who Touches Earth With Beauty".

Mrs. Laken Lewis and Mrs. Frank Lewis received the offering. Rev. G.D. Elliott conducted the dedication service of the executive and passed out membership cards to 41 chartered members.

The hymn "Lead On O King Eternal" and benediction by Rev. G. D. Elliott closed the service.

Stanley Bridge UCW Members Host Service

KENSINGTON — The World Day of Prayer Service was held in Stanley Bridge United Church with the president of the Stanley Bridge United Church Women. Mrs. Elmer Fyfe taking the leading part in the service. The organist was Mrs. Lorne MacEwen.

The offering was received by Mrs. John Fyfe and Miss Olga Woolner. The leader for St. John's Presbyterian Church, New London, was Mrs. Oscar MacKay; leader for the Clifton United Church was Mrs. Harold Mayhew. Prayer for "Her Majesty" was given by Mrs. Ray MacLeod of the United Church, for "Our Own Country," Mrs. James M. Campbell, for "Families," Mrs. Morton Adams.

The theme address which was entitled "God's Love for the Whole World" was given by Mrs. George P. MacLeod.

Guest soloists were Miss Jean MacKay, Miss Margaret Ruth MacEwen, and Mrs. Ray Douglas, who sang "Lord teach us to Pray". Mrs. Louis MacLeod was accompanist.

The service closed with the benediction by the leader.

Presbyterian WMS Hold Regular Meeting

KENSINGTON — The regular monthly meeting of St. John's Presbyterian Woman's Missionary Society was held at the home of Mrs. Murray MacKay, New London, on Thursday evening.

The leader for the devotional period was Mrs. Daniel Morrison. Exposition was entitled "Called by a New Name, Sons". The season of prayer was given by Mrs. George P. MacLeod, Mrs. Armel MacKinnon and Mrs. Roy Brown.

The minutes of the February meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. Leigh MacEwen.

Bible questions were prepared by Mrs. Wallie Freguson, and Mrs. Angus Green had charge of the study book.

Offering amounted to $11.00.

Leader for next meeting will be Mrs. Stanley Brown, with Mrs. Oliver Bernard, Mrs. Don MacEwen and Mrs. Leigh MacEwen in charge of the season of prayer. The new sick committee appointed were, Mrs. Cranford MacKay, Mrs. Mont MacEwen, Mrs. Oscar MacKay, Mrs. Wallie Ferguson and Mrs. Ralph Wigmore.

Mrs. Ken MacKay invited the members to her home for the April meeting. Meeting closed with the Lord's Prayer.

Lunch was served by the hostess assisted by the program and lunch committees Mrs. Mont MacEwen, Mrs. Francis Murray, Mrs. Wilbur MacKay and Mrs. Dan Morrison.

SHOW MODEL

Mrs. David Boswell is one of the many lovely models who may be seen at the Parade of Spring Fashions '62 to be held at the Charlottetown Hotel on the 9th, 10th, and 11th of April.

IDA BAILEY ALLEN

First-Class Luncheon Is Served By Trainees

BY IDA BAILEY ALLEN

ALTHOUGH the stationary mock-up plane was in the big BOAC building at the London Airport, we felt as though ready to take off after being welcomed by the young Asian trainees, the men in uniform, the women in the beautiful kimono or costume of their native country.

The plane had two divisions, one for first - class passengers consisting, in this case, of our party; the other for second-class passengers, a role played by part of the trainees.

FAST TO LEARN

"Considering that most of these trainees have been eating with chopsticks all their lives," remarked the Chef, "it is amazing how fast they are learning the eating habits and table customs of the West.

"However," he chuckled, "it is good that Instructor Victor Partridge is watching the trainee stewards and stewardesses with his eagle eyes and ears! They need correction—how to arrange the tray-table for dining without banging; which hand to use when serving a food; how to make every move count; how to fill a cup of coffee or tea; how to pronounce the English names of the foods!"

REGULAR FIRST-CLASS LUNCHEON MENU

CHICKEN LIVER ROLLS

½ pound chicken livers, scalded
½ teaspoon seasoned salt
1 tablespoon minced fresh parsley or dill
8 strips lean bacon

Cut chicken livers in half; remove sinews.

Dust with seasoned salt and minced parsley or dill. Wrap in bacon strips; secure with pick.

Bake 15 minutes in hot oven 400 degrees F., or until bacon is done.

FISH PUFFS

1½ cups stiff, well-seasoned hot mashed potato
1 tablespoon butter
¾ cup minced tuna, salmon or other fish
¼ teaspoon each Tabasco and powdered onion
1 egg, well-beaten
1 egg yolk, beaten

Into mashed potato beat butter, fish, Tabasco and powdered onion, egg and egg yolk.

Drop by teaspoonfuls (or a pastry-tube) onto oiled pastry sheet.

Bake 15 minutes in hot oven, 400 degrees F., or until puffy and brown.

Garnish with parsley.

ANCHOVY PASTRY BOATS

12 miniature oval boats baked from rich pastry
2-3 cup mashed hard-cooked egg salad
12 anchovy fillets
36 capers
Lettuce and cherry tomatoes

Fill "boats" with egg salad; top each with anchovy fillet and 3 capers.

Garnish with lettuce and cherry tomatoes.

BACON-CHICKEN PATE

1 (2-oz.) can chicken pate
2½ tablespoons broth
4 crumbled slices crisp bacon
1 teaspoon frozen chives
4 quartered butter-sauteed mush rooms
¼ teaspoon Tabasco
1 tablespoon butter

Combine ingredients in blender. Buzz 2 minutes at medium speed or until smooth.

Chill in mold. Turn out; slice and serve on romaine.

Garnish with small black and pimiento-stuffed olives.

CHEF REPORTS ON FROZEN FOODS IN ENGLAND

The use of frozen foods in England is growing with the increasing use of year-round refrigeration and with the increasing numbers of women working outside the home, seeking ways to save time.

The frozen items include several that might be introduced into the United States, such as roast beef and Yorkshire pudding fish 'n' chips; kidney and mushroom pies; Cornish pasties: haddock and Dover sole with cheese sauce; black currant pies.

YMCA Auxiliary Spring Tea Has Flowers And Shamrocks

Charlottetown YMCA was the scene of a delightful spring tea on Saturday, March 10. An annual event, the tea was sponsored by the Ladies Auxiliary of the YMCA.

The tea table was adorned with a bouquet of spring flowers, tapers in silver holders and a shamrock-covered cloth. The ladies appeared in their spring outfits and gay hats, adding to the warm season atmosphere.

Pouring were Mrs. J. W. Burgess, past president, Mrs. H. B. Wells, president, Mrs. John Evans, wife of the YMCA secretary, and Mrs. Lorne MacLellan, wife of a YMCA board member.

Mrs. Walter Bearisto, Mrs. Everett Bell, Mrs. J. A. MacMillan and Mrs. Nora Irvine were ushers, and Mrs. Fred G. Osborne, Miss Lida Webster and Mrs. John Gordon replenished.

Servers were Miss E. Sutherland, Mrs. D. Douglas, Miss Edna Gordon, Mrs. Rankin MacLaine, Mrs. William MacLean, Mrs. Ramsay Auld, Mrs. V. Sealy, Mrs. Blois Andrews, Mrs. B. Jewell, Miss Karen Willis, Miss Judy Allen, Miss Marjorie Bearisto, and Miss Sandra Rodd.

Mrs. William Davies, Mrs. G. Hooper and Mrs. M. Large were in charge of the kitchen, Mrs. Merritt Forsythe in charge of tickets, and Mrs. W. Hunter the variety table.

Jerry's Flower Shop donated the bouquet of flowers.

WOMEN'S ORGANIZATIONS

Emerald WI Hears Debate At Education Week Meet

Senior pupils of Emerald School presented a debate in connection with Education Week for the March meeting of Emerald Women's Institute held at the home of the president, Miss Muriel Clark.

Mrs. Alex Douglas, teacher, acted as chairman as the debaters argued the topic "Resolved that country life is more pleas ant than city life". Billy Trainor, Joan Mayne and Suzanne Clark upheld the affirmative, while Barry Mayne, Isabell Clark and Sharleen Lambe took the negative.

Leah Mayne was critic. Judges Mrs. G.C Green, Mrs. Reginald Smith and Mrs. Loyola Deighan decided to award the decision to the negative.

The meeting opened with the Institute Ode followed by the Mary Stewart Collect in unison. Eight members answered roll call with an Irish joke. Four visitors were present.

It was decided to make a con tribution to the library Correspondence and the minutes of the last meeting were read.

Several thank you letters for Valentine boxes were received from sick and shut-ins.

Mrs. Reginald Smith was appointed to the sick committee for the month of April. Mrs. Herman Mayne reported she had received books for canvassing the district for the Red Cross.

The members decided to hold their meeting at the home of Mrs. G.C. Green. Mrs. Herman Mayne is to present a program on agriculture.

The institute realized a considerable sum from auction sale of remnants with Elsie Mayne as auctioneer. Leah Mayne was the winner in the contest "know your nations".

The hostess served lunch following adjournment of the meeting.

KELVIN GROVE WI

KENSINGTON — The president, Mrs. Crawford Picketts, presided at the February meeting of Kelvin Grove Women's Institute, held at the home of Mrs. Gerald Millar on Monday evening, February 5.

Prior to the meeting the members listened to the radio Farm Forum Institute Night program. A discussion followed and the questionaire was filled in.

The meeting opened with the Institute Ode, and roll call by the secretary, Mrs. Robert Hogg, was answered by 13 members with a valentine or a verse. Three visitors attended.

A motion was passed that each member pay a lunch fee of ten cents a month whether present or not. Five dollars was voted to be sent to the music Festival Association. Mrs. Crawford Picketts and Mrs. Douglas Webster volunteered to collect for the Red Cross.

The sick committee, Mrs Morris Smith and Mrs. Leaman Caseley reported that three boxes of fruit had been sent to the sick. The sum of $12.45 was passed in from proceeds of a card party at the Home of Mrs. Douglas Webster.

A paper on Home Economics from the convenor, Mrs. Robert Schurman was read by Mrs. Douglas Webster, who was in charge of the program.

Mrs. Erskine MacMurdo invited the members to her home for the March meeting with the following on lunch committee; Mrs. Percy MacMurdo, Mrs. Sterling Millar, Mrs. Erskine MacMurdo and Mrs. Leaman Caseley.
