Racy Literature.

Two boarding-school misses, in such a susceptible frame of soul that the smallest beauty in earth or sky could not escape them, were riding out, one smiling May morning, when one of them spied a mossy granite block by the roadside, on which was inscribed "1. M. from Harlem."

"O, siss, dear, exclaimed the elder, "do look at that epitaph. Isn't it beautiful; So simple and yet so touching—'I'm from Harlem.'"

"Are you a Christian, papa?"

"I hope so, my child."

"Then don't you think that whiskey is your greatest enemy?"

"Perhaps it is, but why do you ask?"

"Because you love whiskey."

"Well, that is according to Scripture, for the Bible commands us to love our enemies."

The child had no more to say.

WANTED IMMEDIATELY—A hat from off the head of a river; a quill from the tail of a coat; a hinge from the gate of time; a collar from the neck of a bottle; a peice of the ends of the earth; an arrow shot from a rainbow; an egg laid by a tailor's goose; a brand from the fire of love; sympathy from the heart of a stone; a box of matrimonial matches.

A DREAM INTERPRETED.—A German prince, in a dream, saw three rats—one fat, another lean, and a third blind. He sent for a Bohemian gipsy to interpret the dream.

"The fat rat, she answered, "is your prime minister, the lean rat is your people, and the blind rat is yourself."

The friends of a celebrated wit expressed some surprise that, at his age, and with his fondness for the bottle, he should have thought it necessary to marry.

"A wife was necessary," he said. "My acquaintances began to say that I drank too much for a single man."

A gentleman at the opera, the other night, in sounding the praises of a new opera-glass which he had just purchased, said,—

"Why, bless your soul, it brings the ladies on the opposite side of the house so near that I can smell the musk on their pocket-handkerchiefs, and hear the beating of their dear little hearts."

"Sam, I feel as if I'd like to hab my name handed down to posterity."

"Ah, nigger, de hangman will hand you down from de gallows into de claws ob de dessectionists, if you don't alter your ways."

A miller, in giving a testimonial to the proprietor of a powder for destroying vermin, astounds us with the assertion: A fortnight since I was full of rats, and now I don't think I have one."

A miserly bailiff in England came into possession of a baronetcy, and desiring an appropriate "coat-of-arms," adopted one representing a tin plate, over which was placed a fork, signifying "fork over the tin."

An intoxicated man who was suffering the natural consequences of his indiscretion, was asked what he was doing, when he replied,—

"inveloping my internal resources."

A Quaker, once hearing a person tell how much he felt for another who was suffering and needed assistance, drily asked him,—

"Friend, has thou felt in thy pocket for him?"

During a medical examination a student was asked the question.—

"When does mortification ensue?"

"When you pop the question and are answered no."

A thrifty wife wonders why the men can't manage to do something useful? Might they not as well amuse themselves in smoking hams as smoking cigars?

Passions, like wild horses, when properly trained and disciplined, are capable of being applied to the noblest purposes; but when allowed to have their own way, they become dangerous in the extreme.

"Mr. Jones, I understand you said I sold you a barrel of cider that had water in it." "No, no," was the reply," I only said that you sold me a barrel of water with a little cider in it.

CONTRARIES.—People say they shell peas when when they unshell them; that they skin a calf when they unskin it; that they weed their gardens when they are weedy enough already.

"Have you ever broken a horse?" inquired a horse jockey.

"No, not exactly," replied Simons, "but I have broken three or four waggons."

The age of a young lady is now expressed according to the present style of hoop-skirts, by saying that "eighteen springs have passed over her head."

A WOMAN who dresses too grandly, or too absurdly, or too shabbily, has some mental oddity, or insanity, or meaness which develops itself outwardly in her garments.

THE BEST MATCHES.—It was told Lord Chesterfield that Mr. M——, a termagant and scold, was married to a gamester, on which his lordship said, "That cards and brimstone make the best matches,"

A correspondent writes to ask if the brow of a hill ever becomes wrinkled?—The only information we can give him on that point is, that we have often seen it furrowed.

WHY is a regiment of soldiers like a paper of pins?—Because they are all in rows with their heads up.

"Well, Bridget, if I engage you, I shall want you to stay at home whenever I wish to go out."

"Well, ma'am, I have no objections," said Bridget, "providin' you do the same when I wish to go out"

It is a very easy thing for a man to be wise for other people.

Agricultural.

HARVESTING CARROTS.

Mr. Ware, of Marblehead, stated to the Board of Agriculture the method of harvesting carrots as practised here, as follows:

Our method is to top them, either with a hoe or shovel, (we generally use a shovel,) and then use a sub-soil plough; and so far as my experience goes, it is the only use to which a sub-soil plough can be put to any advantage in our county. Previously to ploughing the tops are raked off the field, so as to be entirely out of the way. We then run the sub-soil plough directly by the side of the row of roots, which lifts them out of the ground about two inches; then with potato diggers, forks and hoes, we go along and rake them out, so as to lift them from the ground and throw them inward, leaving room for the team to go through again. We first turn a back furrow in the centre of the piece, and go round that back furrow, drawing the carrots into the centre, and leaving a space for the horse or ox to travel, without treading upon the carrots. That leaves them spread all over the surface of the ground. We do that in the forenoon; in the afternoon we pick them up, throw them into the carts, and put them into the cellar. That gives about half a day's time for the carrots to dry, and in picking them from the ground and throwing them into baskets, the dirt is mostly shaken off, so that, if the weather is suitable—and dry weather ought to be chosen for the harvesting of roots—they will go into the cellar dry, which, in my opinion, is very important.—Mass. State Agricultural Report.

ROOT-PRUNING.—At which time in the year should fruit-trees be pruned at the root, to make them produce fruit, in place of rank growth of foliage, the trees being principally pear-trees? The work may be done in autumn, after the trees have shed their leaves, or early in spring, before the leaves have begun to swell their buds. Should prefer autumn. Dig a trench around the tree, a sufficient distance from the tree, and cut off all the roots with a sharp spade or knife; and then fill in with some well-decayed manure mixed with loam, and fill up the trench again. By this process, the luxuriance of the tree is checked and fruit-buds are formed. It is a good method to practise, especially in small gardens.—Am. Jour. of Horticulture.

LIME.—It is not difficult to conduct an experiment, in the most satisfactory manner, in the use of lime as a fertilizer. All that is requisite is to harrow it into the ground soon after it is sown. If the crops where lime was applied appear no better and the yield of grain is no heavier than where no lime was sowed, it is safe to conclude that lime, as a fertilizer, will be of little or no value on that land. An application of lime on some soils augments its productiveness in a most wonderful manner; while on other kinds of ground neither a heavy application nor a light dressing will produce any difference in the yield of grain or of grass.

If an accurate fit, a stylish cut, and superior workmanship can ensure custom, he flatters himself he shall not be without patronage from the tasty and discerning. Every trade requires brains, and none more so than the art of cutting and making up a garment to fit every variety of the human form; but some people seem to imagine that it requires no more judgment to cut a coat than to hew a log,—an erroneous idea, the effects of which are seen in the tasteless and ill-fitting garments we every day behold in the streets. There is no earthly reason to prevent us Provincialists from being as elegantly and fashionably dressed as the Americans, and the subscriber will use his best endeavors to reach a "consummation so devoutly to be wished."

New Triumphs of Roger's Medicines.

Run your eye over them and tell your afflicted neighbor about it.

PUGWASH, May 29, 1863

Messrs. Rogers & Co,

Gentlemen—I think it a duty I owe to you and the public, to state the following facts, as well for the benefit of humanity as in justice to yourself—although it should have been done long before this; but better late than never.

About four or five years ago I had a cancer in my breast, which had been coming on for a long time before but at last it became very painful, with sharp and severe pains darting through it at certain times. I applied to several doctors who advised that it should be cut out; and being afraid to submit to the operation, and hearing that you had cured many cancers, I, as you know, applied to you and submitted to your treatment, and used your medicine, and in a few months was thoroughly cured, and have been in perfect health ever since. I wish this to be made public for the benefit of others.

Yours with much gratitude,
ELIZABETH RYAN.

We know of no worse case—judging from the description given by letter—than a son of W. B. Weldon, Esq., of Kouchibouguac, N. B. He was reduced to a mere skeleton. He suffered most intense pain for many months His leg was ulcerated, and the bone diseased a large ulcer on his chin and face. Medicine and skill utterly failed, until all hope of saving his life was gone. Mr. Weldon's was a sorrowful house, no doubt, until our wonderful medicine dispelled the gloom. The lad is now nearly well, smart, cheerful and happy The parents too look more cheerful, and happy, and have lighter hearts, we judge by the cheering tone of their letters. It is refreshing to us to be thus the instruments of good to afflicted humanity. What care we for the slanders of the unprincipled! Our motto is onward. Our business to save human life, and cause the suffering to rejoice; and to make money you will add. Yes certainly we respond, and do you not think we deserve some of the large sum annually sent to brother Jonathan for useless articles.

Mr. Thomas Faulkner, of East River, Pictou N. S., is cured of a sore leg of nineteen years standing. The best physicians in the Province, after exhausting their skill, recommended amputation as the only remedy. His health was very much reduced, but is now completely restored

Mrs. Hannah Balmain, of Wickham, N. B., after using our medicine for over one year, for an ulcerated cancer of the breast, writes under date of Oct. 15, 1865, as follows:—

"My breast is doing well; there is but one small lump on it now. It only discharges from on ulcer: the rest are all healed up I have not enjoyed such good health for several years, as I do now.
