Anglican WA Is Facing Its Greatest Challenge

Mrs. John Robertson, Dominion president of the Women's Auxiliary, Anglican Church of Canada, was guest speaker yesterday at the concluding session of the P.E.I. Diocesan Board of Women's Auxiliary annual meeting, held in St. Paul's Church Hall.

"The Women's Auxiliary faces its greatest challenge in history," Mrs. Robertson told some 150 members yesterday. "The church has to be different if it is to maintain its place in the world of 1963."

She said when the auxiliary first began, organizations for women were few and unpopular; their primary interest was missionary work. Today the Women's Auxiliary must "help all women to fill an obligation to help in Christian service."

She said the organzation must consider the individual woman in her specific situation. Mrs. Robertson also dealt with the ways in which the auxiliary aids groups and projects financially.

The Island auxiliary, observing its 66th anniversary, is the oldest in the Maritimes, she said.

The annual meeting opened Thursday afternoon at St. Peter's Cathedral Hall with reports from the executive and various committees and Thursday's session concluded with service in the cathedral.

Yesterday's agenda included the celebration of Communion at St. Paul's Church, a report on the refugee project by Mrs. H. K.S. Hemming and election of officers, along with the guest speaker's address.

Members gathered at the home of Mrs. G.G. Wood, diocesan president, last evening, to meet the Dominion president.

N.Y. Market Called Bonanza For Canada

By ALAN DONNELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — The huge New York buying market still is producing export bonanzas for Canadian manufacturers willing to dig for business.

But Bruce Rankin, Canadian trade commissioner there, is shaking his head over the number of firms who are hardly trying for New York sales.

"It's almost a chronic disease with Canadian businessmen," he said during an interview Wednesday at the trade department's export promotion conference.

A case in point was the National Samples Show in Toronto last month when some 700 foreign buyers, including 100 from New York, were flown in to see the wares of 400 manufacturers of consumer goods.

Mr. Rankin said exhibitors were urged weeks ahead to be prepared to quote laid - down prices in the buyer's market, including tariffs, freight and insurance. Yet two-thirds of the New York buyers had said afterwards that exhibitors weren't prepared with this vital information.

Another problem was that of Canadian firms with a saleable product but not large enough to take on orders for the big New York market—a market which in some cases branches across the United States. Too many Canadian companies, especially among small family firms, were too timid, unenterprising or satisfied with their present lot to make the effort and investment needed to meet a larger market.

On the other side of the coin were the many Canadian firms who have made good in the New York market.

Mr. Rankin said that in the last two years his office has staged special shows in New York for about 50 Canadian firms. The first of these was a Montreal handbag manufacturer.

"I guess that fellow now has a market worth $300,000 to $400,000 a year in the U.S.," Mr. Rankin said.

Another was a maker of well-designed office furniture who developed annual sales of around $500,000.

Some 1,370 businessmen have registered at the three-week conference now in its second week, and 12,150 individual half-hour interviews have been scheduled.
