LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

The Dairy Business.

SIR,—I am greatly pleased to learn that your live agriculturists and your public spirited men, of all shades and opinions, are making satisfactory progress towards the promotion of a dairyman's association.
Union is strength, is an old adage, and in no enterprise is there greater need of combination than in the profession of husbandry. Hitherto, nothing more than a bare subsistence was aimed at by the generality of farmers.
To-day, thanks to the influence of nineteenth century civilization, through which the aid of steam, electricity, and the press is worked, we require not only a substantial living for ourselves but each is desirous of providing a surplus for his less fortunate brother. Your Island has aptly been called the "pearl gem of the sea," rendered so through the exertions, the enterprise, and skill of your own people.
Your Longworth's, Haviland's, DesBrisay's, Ferguson's, Macdonald's, are worthy sons of worthy Sires who cannot be satisfied with present attainments in material greatness, in educational advantages, in religious liberty and popular rights. You must continue making strides towards still higher standards of progress, kindling afresh the enthusiasm due to the historic institutions of the country, and manifesting a determination to enjoy to the utmost the manifold blessings so richly bestowed by a kind Providence. In my last I touched upon the fact of the exhaustion of our virgin soils and its evils consequences.
Not less do we of the Maritime Provinces especially feel the loss we are constantly sustaining by the immigration of our young men to foreign countries. In some localities this has become so serious that those who are left, generally the aged, the infirm, and the dependent, are at their wits end to keep up the old farm for the want of laborers. What can we do to stem the tide of this depopulation? It is easier asking the question than producing a remedy. Now, I have carefully examined the classes of our population that preponderate among emigrants, and next to those who are laborers and continue so, we find professional men—for the pulpit, for the bar, for medicine,—leaving this country.
I am inclined to think that whereas professions are overcrowded, excepting at the top of the ladder, some of our men must have thrust upon them a competition not only distasteful but disheartening, fighting their way among the gathered selfishness of the world. Let us impress upon them, and I cannot but think it will prove satisfactory in retaining them to some degree, that we offer them at home those priceless advantages of well-ordered communities; social and religious privileges, simple life and tastes which will give, must give, a charming life and a happy death. Our political, social, commercial life is free from over stimulation, and sufficiently vigorous to make us partake in all the great movements which characterize a true civilization in this nineteenth century. Our resources are varied and simple, if we, but determine more earnestly to further their developments, and so increase them to such an extent as not only to retain our present population, but bring back to their homes the many thousands who have left us. I cannot see any way in which this can be so successfully accomplished as in inspiring our people with a love for the cultivation of the land and the raising of stock. To my mind there is a charm in the improvement of stock, especially if we begin with fine animals. Let us remember above all, that the pastoral life was stamped by the Creator in Paradise with his approval; and in Paradise lost, with the thorns and thistles adged, the glowing promise of a remedial agency is being now fully realized.
A. C. MACDONALD.

Address.

To MR. JOHN P. HOOD, Teacher:

DEAR SIR,—It is with feelings of regret and sorrow we learn that you have decided to sever your connection with the school and community of the Thistle and Shamrock.
During the time that you have had charge of our school, we have entertained but one opinion of your management of the children under your care and tuition; and that has been one of pre-eminent satisfaction, as well as respect for yourself. By your constant kindness, tact and faithfulness you have endeared yourself to the children and merited the esteem and affection of the parents and those interested in the careful training of the youthful mind as well as the material care of those of young and tender years.
In accepting your resignation of the school which your devotion has so attached to you, and whose arduous duties you never slighted or neglected, we, the under-signed take this opportunity of expressing our appreciation of your services so faithfully rendered and it is our earnest wish that every blessing of life may attend you.
Signed,—
JOHN KELLY,
OWEN SHREANAN,
WILLIAM MCKENZIE,
JAMES M. DUFFY,
DONALD MCKENZIE,
JAMES KELLY,
JAMES GREENAN,
and others.

REPLY.

To Owen Hughes, John Kelly, etc.

GENTLEMEN,—Words fail to express how grateful I am to receive your kind address as the token of appreciation in which my services as teacher are held by the people of the Thistle and Shamrock School District.
I must say that I feel flattered by your address, and am only sorry that I cannot remain with you to make up in the future for any neglect in the past. During my stay amongst you I received the greatest kindness from one and all, and it is with feelings of sorrow that I now depart from your midst.

I shall ever remember with pleasure the dutiful loving children, and their success in the future will be one of my dearest wishes.

I think that there is nothing can assist a teacher so much as the encouragement and good will of the District, and in this respect other School Districts might profit by the example of the Thistle and Shamrock.

I am, yours, etc.,
JOHN P. HOOD.

The Markets.

THE market for potatoes in Boston is risky. Fifty-seven cents is the price quoted wholesale. Eggs sell in Boston at from 16 to 16½ cents for Island stock, and it is in moderate demand. There are liberal receipts of shore market in Boston.
They range from $3 to $3.50, and Nova Scotia's sell for $7. Alewives are quoted at $3 to $3.25. The flour market in Montreal is dull. Business is of a light volume and no change can be made in values. Prices quoted are:

Patent	$6 00	to $7 00
Superior Extra	5 45	to 5 50
Extra Superfine	5 00	to 5 05
Fancy	4 60	to 4 70
