

Garrison Juniors Dump Royals In Exciting Game

Orin Carver's Garrison Juniors defeated Parkdale Royals 6-4 in an exciting game at the Sports Arena last evening. The Juniors, trailing 4-1 at the end of the first frame, scored five unanswered goals in the succeeding two periods, to nose out their opponents.

The Royals struck fast in the first period and in the first four minutes of play grabbed a 3-1 lead. A Carver scoring once and Willie Dunn firing a pair. B. MacMillan counted the only marker for the Juniors in this frame. Late in the period Whitlock slipped one past goalie Ward to give the Royals a 3-goal bulge.

Billy Mulligan and George Trainor scored for Juniors in the middle stanza but that still left them trailing the Royals by one goal.

The first half of the final frame was scoreless but the Juniors broke through for three quick goals, MacMillan scoring at the 12:59 mark. Vince Mulligan fired a pair, the first one at 13:44 and the second one 20 seconds later.

Ward, net-minder for the Juniors made some terrific saves, especially in the third period when the Royals were buzzing around the Juniors' cage like bees, trying hard to overcome their younger rivals, and firing rubber from all angles.

Referees Moe Goodwin and Lawlor called a total of five penalties.

Moore Would Kill Robinson, Says Basilio
SPORT-MOORE WOULD CHICAGO (AP)—Former mid-dleweight champion Carmen Basilio asserted Thursday 160-pound Sugar Ray Robinson would "get killed" if he tried for the light heavyweight crown of Archie Moore.

Basilio, here for a testimonial luncheon, said he doubted there is any credence to reports Robinson will fight Moore before he defends his middleweight title.

HUNTERS CORNER

Wildlife Food Shortage Is Relieved By Big Thaw

The timely January thaw relieved the food shortage our wildlife, with specific reference to our Hungarian partridge, have been faced with since early in December. Our Huns were getting by with nothing to spare and just getting by is not good enough. All that was needed to give our Hun population a serious set-back was a series of snow storms followed by freezing rain. The depth of snow in December was not a factor as Huns can burrow into snow like so many rats. The trouble this winter was that the ground underneath was incased in a coating of ice and they couldn't get at the green grass and clover in the stubble fields. When the real freeze-up came the ground was covered with slushy snow and 90 per cent of green matter was sealed off.

GREEN FEED

Huns, and pheasants too for that matter, require a lot of green feed during the winter. It is rich in food value and does not require so much grit for grinding purposes. During periods like the one just passed Huns and pheasants repair to grain stacks and barns and fill up on grain. If sufficient grit is not available they become cropbound and die. This happened during the disastrous winter of 1933-34. The snow that year fell on November 3rd. A short thaw turned it into slush and then it froze solid leaving the ground sealed off.

This condition held all winter and snow storm succeeded snow storm. There was several feet of snow on the level interspersed with layers of hard crust. I have picked up dead Huns by the score whose crops were filled to the bursting point with wheat, oats and barley and their bodies nothing but skin and bone. We managed to save approximately 15 per cent of our Huns and its nothing short of a miracle we accomplished that.

In this age of built up highways and gravel fills, with bulldozers and snow ploughs working steadily after each snow storm the securing of grit is not such a problem as it was 25 years ago. Nevertheless this columnist keeps his fingers crossed. The Stage was all set for trouble. If, instead of a thaw, we had a series of snow and sleet storms it would have been an entirely different picture. It is quite possible the Huns, and pheasants too for that matter, would have been halted abruptly in their upward climb.

The question is being asked: "Were we prepared for just such a contingency?" A general answer is "No." The Game Association throws money around, like a bunch of Sailors on shore leave after a year on the briny, on a "brain storm" or series of brain storms, and yet when the chips are down its our farmers who save the birds. A number of Feed Shelters constructed at strategic points stock piled with gravel and sand, and feed when necessary, would be islands of refuge for our Huns and pheasants in times of stress. They would have to be equipped with well constructed brush shelters as a protection against predators. Compelling birds to feed in the open is all the same ringing a dinner

'Y' Are Hosts To Trotters
Charlottetown Trotters will continue to keep their winning streak intact when they face Y.M.C.A. tonight at the 'Y' gym. This is a regular Island Basketball League battle and the 'Y' needs the win badly to get back in the thick of things. Trotters were easy victors over the Saints in their last outing but the 'Y' lost a heart-breaking 51-50 decision to P.W.C. Welshmen. Tonight's game gets underway at 8 o'clock.

SPORT ECHOES

BY NORMAN MACDONALD

We remember in geometry if A was greater than B, and if B was greater than C, C greater than D, and D greater than E, then it stood to reason that A was greater than E. In a similar way, when it comes to hockey, if a player is better than A who is better than B, and B is better than C, then it stands to reason that the player is better than C.

Now take Mount Allison University hockey team as a general enunciation. They were holding their own pretty well in that New Brunswick Senior League. The S.D.U. boys were beaten 7-4 by them, but it was tough scratchin' all the way. Then the Saints add a couple of good hockey players who couldn't play intercollegiate hockey making those Saints stronger by more than somewhat. The Saints play the Navy, and what happens? Navy wins 11-1.

Before that the Navy visited Civic Stadium and crossed sticks as they say in Squamscutt, with our Aces. Result: Aces win 15-0. Where does that put Windy's Warriors? According to the exact science of geometry, a couple of notches ahead of the Whitby Dunlops.

The trouble is you can't solve a problem like this by geometry. Q. E. D. is just a punch-drunk numbskull when you ask him what's what in a hockey problem. In geometry if one line is greater than another, it stays greater, come hades or a flood tide. In hockey lines tend to change. Take our "Kid Line" for example. They started the year modestly enough, but right now they're the longest distance between two points. Geometrically speaking, they've been produced, and now they're the production line of the Aces. We suspect that some such thing has happened those sailor boys from the banks and shoals of the Hillsborough. They couldn't beat the Saints 11-1 looking and acting like the team that played in Summerside some weeks ago. Looks to us as if the Tars stuck an S in front of their name. To put it simply, they've been rejuvenated.

Because of all this, we are making a prediction. As you all know, it's not often we take out the old crystal ball for a look-see, but when we do, lads—well, we picked the Dodgers to win in seven, and they went and did it, we picked the Winnipeg Blue Bombers to beat Hamilton, and you saw what happened. We could go on, but we think it might be mistaken for boasting, and besides we can't remember any more such instances.

Well, here we go again to make it number 3 right on the button. Charlottetown Navy will give the Summerside Aces the best game of the season at Civic Stadium tonight. The result will be in doubt virtually all the way through the game. We'd tell you who is going to win, but there's a grease spot on that particular part of the crystal, and we're fresh out of liquid detergent. But it will be closer than dog days in Timbuktu.

Before closing, we must say a word about Lippy Gaudet's son and heir who plays on me Ace kid line. The young fellow played the game of his life against the Royals in Charlottetown Tuesday night. In the first period he crashed against the boards and was taken to the hospital for observation. They must have impregnated or indoctrinated or incultured—that is that word, Doc?—him with monkey glands. He came back to score three goals and bring his game total to four. A truly great performance.

By PIUS CALLAGHAN

TUESDAY NIGHT after the second period of the Royals - Aces battle, we were asked our opinion of the league that is in operation, with Summerside and Charlottetown teams competing. At that time Royals were doing a splendid job of holding the Aces to a 4-4 situation. We weren't predicting a Royals' victory but we were shouting out loud that Aces were engaged in their toughest game of the year. Somebody must have sent the word to the Stoemen's dressing room. They came out for the third period and before we had time to really know what was happening, those Aces had fired seven goals into the locals' cage.

AT THE SAME TIME as our conversation about Royals and Aces, we made mention of the great improvement of the Saint Dunstan's team. We had seen them humbled by the Royals earlier this month but at that time the collegians had no practice and it wasn't fair to start condemning them so early. Last Friday the Saints had played Mount Allison and we were amazed at the fine showing they had come up with. At one stage, the Red and White had a 3-0 edge on the Mounties and the Garnet and Gold had a tough evening's work grabbing a 7-4 decision.

On the strength of that performance, we predicted that the college boys would be good competitors in this league and we looked for them to give Navy Tars a rough time of it Wednesday night in the college's new rink.

WE HAD the feeling we were fair prophets when the Saints wasted no time in grabbing the lead. Only forty-three seconds had elapsed when Garth Harris slapped one by Frankie Roper. Batsie were in front 1-0 and it could be that the collegians would be tough to head. If others had the same idea that we entertained, Navy Tars didn't subscribe to my such line of reasoning. Less than three minutes later they tied the score and went on from there to make shambles out of the rest of the contest.

AND SO, if we had any ideas of a tighter league, those ideas were surely knocked right out of our minds on Tuesday and Wednesday nights. There still doesn't appear to be any team in this league capable of handling the Aces and there doesn't seem to be any great chance of some of the teams providing good competition.

We hope we are wrong and that somebody does get tough with the westerners. Navy Tars insist that they will give the men of Windy Steele a real battle yet. All we have to say to this is that if any team in the league has a chance of upsetting the Aces, Lorne Hennessey's Tars are the only ones we would put our money on.

SURE, SAINT DUNSTAN'S looked bad on Wednesday but you must admit that the Navy looked mighty good. They were slating both ways, at a merry clip and their defence was giving Frankie Roper the greatest kind of protection.

Hennessey has these Tars passing that rubber. He has them doing all the things that go to win hockey games and he has put in them a confidence that means plenty to a team once they take to the ice.

The Tars are at Civic Stadium tonight. Last time they were there it was 15-0 slaughter but it's pretty safe to predict that there'll be no such goings-on tonight. If they can take a full team to the western capital, Summerside fans should see the best hockey this league has offered this season.

If any team is going to attempt to skate with those Aces, this is the outfit. They may not be able to stop Summerside tonight but we feel they should at least convince the Aces that they are the ones to watch from here in.

Next Tuesday the Aces are back in Charlottetown and their opponents on that occasion will be Hennessey's Tars. This is the one that folks should keep their eyes on. Every Tar will tell you that Aces will bow in this one.

We'll wait and see.

LOS ANGELES DODGERS who had such a horrible season last year in their new home, are certainly hopeful of better things in 1959.
A youth movement is underway in the Los Angeles camp and Dodgers' officials are beaming when some of these youngsters' names are mentioned.
There's a trio that the management is exceptionally high on. They are all outfield hopefuls for this coming season. Their names are Ron Fairly, Frank Howard and Don Miles.
Manager Walter Alston is especially high on Fairly, a 5 foot 10 inch left handed hitter who weighs 175 pounds.
"Ron played 15 games for the Dodgers last season and I didn't see him make a single mistake," Alston said. "He has real baseball instinct, plenty of poise and lots of confidence. I like everything about him."
Fairly is 20 years of age and is a student at the University of Southern California. Last year he hit .297 and 13 home runs in 51 games with Des Moines of the Western League. In 18 games for St. Paul of the American Association he batted .298. With the Dodgers, his average was .283.
Howard was the talk of the Three I league with the Green Bay Bluejays. Howard batted .333, drove in 119 runs and hit 37 homers.
Miles, who like Howard is 22, is a left handed hitter who collected 22 homers with Victoria of the Texas league and St. Paul. Eighteen of the homers were at Victoria where he batted .325.
The Dodgers may well wish these young players turn out to be real big league material. There certainly is no denying that they surely can use them.
