THE DAILY EXAMINER
 JULY 6, 1900
FARMER OR DOCTOR - WHICH?
 THE GUARDIAN opposes a preference for farmers in the election of members for the Provincial Legislature. But its argument is vague and general, and implies that farmers are not fit to represent farmers' interests.
 The Guardian takes no account of the difference between the duties of a representative in the Dominion Parliament and a representative in the Provincial Legislature. It says that the election of farmers "would have shut out the printer, Joseph Howe, from representing the farmers of Haunts County. It would have excluded 'Dr. Tupper' from being the representative of the farmers of Cumberland. It would have prevented Editor Sir Mackenzie Bowell from being the champion for so many years of the farmers of North Hastings. Who would think it desirable to exclude Sir Louis Davies, Professor Foster, Hon. Dr. Montague, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Sir Adolphe Caron, or Hon. Hugh John McDonald from their present representative positions because they are not farmers? Would it have been to the advantage of the country to have excluded Sir John Macdonald from public life because he was a lawyer, or Alexander Macenzie from representing the farmers of Lambton because he was a stone mason?" We admit, at once, that the training of farmers is not consistent with the training of statesmen such as are required for the right representation of all the widespread and diversified interests of an immense territory like Canada,—though we refuse to admit that there are not farmers in this and other parts of Canada capable of acquiring the knowledge and ability required of representatives of this great Dominion. But the representation of the interests of little Prince Edward Island, with its charter in the British North America Act, and its conditions in the Terms of Confederation, is another and a very different thing. This province is, from a political point of view, but one big million acre farm; and it seems to us in the highest degree unreasonable that farmers, possessing the advantages of our free schools and colleges, should not aspire to the control of its Legislature. Farmers have taken control of the Legislature of the agricultural kingdom of Denmark, and have passed laws in the interests of farmers,—the result being that Denmark, has attained to a very advanced condition of prosperity. To say that the farmers of Prince Edward Island are not capable of similar achievements in the politics of their own province is to say that which is not true.
 Two or three lawyers and traders on either side are needed in the Provincial Legislature,—but doctors not at all, except upon such occasions as the present, to keep alive a government that ought to die! In point of fact the interests of the doctors, as a class, lie outside the Legislature; and outside the Legislature Dr. Douglass ought to be kept at the present juncture. He is in the field as the upholder of a government which rests upon Pineau and the purchase of support; he is in the field as the representative and apologist of a clique which has all but overwhelmed this Province in debt, notwithstanding the fact that it gained office by promising to make ends meet.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.
 —The price of bread has been advanced 2 cents per loaf in Montreal.
 —The Manitoba Liquor Bill passed its third reading on the third instant.
 —It is announced from Washington that Admiral Dewey is to command the United States fleet in Chinese waters.
 —The London Times St. Petersburg correspondent says that on June 30, the grand staff of the Russian army estimates the Chinese army to number 1,752,000 men. He also says that 900,000 Mausers have been imported within the last three years.
 —The Montreal Star says truly that "the sharp grief and keen sense of loss which has fallen on Cumberland County, through the lamentable death of Hon. Arthur R. Dickey, will be felt throughout Canada. Mr. Dickey's character was of a noble order. His was a statesman's mind rather than that of a politician. In the pursuit of his profession the sombre gown of the lawyer never cloaked the genial counsellor, friend and conciliator. Mr. Dickey hated strife, and his pursuit of business enterprises rather than that of his legal profession of late afforded proof that his tastes bent rather to non contentions occupations. Nevertheless there are few of his profession who have a sounder grasp of the law and its just application than had Hon. Arthur R. Dickey. In his private life the deceased was esteemed as a Christian gentleman, a genial associate,—one to whom the community might always look with confidence, representing truly as he did a high type of serene and unostentatious rectitude."

THE DOBELL LINE.—The steamer Tiber, of the Dobell Line, will be due at Charlottetown on Monday afternoon. She goes from here to Halifax.
INQUEST.—The inquest on the body of the infant found on Wednesday morning was continued last night before Dr. Conroy, coroner and a jury. Two witnesses were examined, but there was nothing new developed. The jury arrived at the conclusion that the child came to its death by foul means.
POLICE COURT.—This morning Ernest Prunty was sentenced to two months imprisonment for beating his grandmother and grandfather with the leg of a stove and the leg of a chair. The assault was committed on Wednesday night, after the old couple had gone to bed. Prunty, who is about twenty years of age, was drunk when he committed the assault. Mrs. Prunty showed evidence of the beating she received, her face and body being considerably bruised. The Magistrate, in passing sentence, commented severely upon Prunty's conduct.
A COMING ATTRACTION.—"The Wooing of Mrs. Van Coit" will soon be seen at the Opera House. It is a play of the intensely laughable kind—farical in its idea, and yet shorn of every element of the so-called farce comedy. It is a play that is said to create laughter by legitimate methods. Its characters are bright, breezy unctious everyday beings—its action is a perfect whirl of complications, and it will be interpreted by a company that is promised, is not only imbued with the spirit of merriment of the play, but is one competent to fully exemplify the author's every idea of a laugh in every line.
A FAREWELL.—A very pleasant evening was spent at the home of Mr. G. S. Robertson on the 29th ult. Its object was to bid farewell to our school teacher, Mr. Donald Campbell, who has made for himself so many friends during his stay as an instructor. The gathering was attended by the youth and beauty of North and West River. A bountiful supper was provided by the hostess for the guests. After partaking of the delicacies an address was read by Mr. Freeman Kennedy, which contained many words of praise and gratitude for the interest Mr. Campbell has taken in the school. Mr. Campbell was also presented with a souvenir in the shape of a gold cross, which was handed to him by Miss Jennima Stewart. Afterwards he gave a short speech which benefited the occasion. The company dispersed after singing God Save Our Queen.—One who was present.
