A highclass bowling team composed of Messrs. Clarence Coffin Sr., Freddie Clark, Merton Jardine, Hamilton Douglas and Alonzo Birt, dubbed the Aces because of their consistent highclass bowling, hail from the thriving Village of Mt. Stewart. They entered the bowling league in the neighbouring village of Morell, there they met with outstanding success, reaching the finals and bowling out of the picture only in the very last game of the final series. As their playing successes mounted so did their vanity, thus came the open challenge to all bowlers within hearing of their powerful voices. The clear cut echoes of the clarion call did not fall on deaf ears, among those hearing the rumblings was that master of the giant wooden marbles Mr. Earle Jay. He quickly gathered a team from the village and Pisquid, composed of Mr. Jay, Clarence Coffin Jr., Arthur Coffin, Joe Romard and Willard Coffin, accepted the challenge and the battle was set at the alleys at the Y. M. C. A., Charlottetown. We would like to continue the story in the same jocular vein but alas that is impossible. The Aces were defeated and the end of this story is best written in the words of the Aces themselves who remembering the words of Napoleon "Able was I ere I saw Elba" say "champs were we ere we met Earl and his gang."

An overflow crowd gathered at the home of Mr. Joseph S. MacKay and Miss Thelma MacKay, Savage Harbour on Tuesday night and were rewarded with one of the best night's fun of the season. Despite the good time enjoyed by all, however, play was keen and tight with winners emerging only after the hardest of fights right down to the last trick. Some six tables, all nine handers, got away to a flying start shortly after eight o'clock and except for a brief intermission while sumptuous lunch was served to all, continued until midnight. There were many winners during the night's play, but all those who won did not take their prizes home, many fell to the challenge of Dick Doyle to bet their winnings with the result Richard went home groaning under the weight of his trophies.

The large crowds continue to patronize the card games held in Mt. Stewart Memorial Hall held under the auspices of the Ladies' Auxiliary. Mrs. Lillian Clark of Mt. Stewart took top honors among the ladies, while Mr. Merton Jardine a better card player than bowler apparently held high the banner of victory among the sterner sex. Mr. Joseph Rooney got away to a bad break at the opening shuffle but despite strong opposition grabbed the consolation prize as the bugle sounded to end play. A delicious lunch was served by the ladies of the Auxiliary.

The lamb derby continues at Savage Harbour with the farm of Mr. and Mrs. John Pigot holding a commanding lead as the finish line shows in the distance. 33 young rollicking fuz-balls are now guests at the Pigot farm with other new strangers expected daily.

The many friends of Mrs. Josie Douglas, Savage Harbour will be sorry to learn that her condition is reported as not being so favorable. A host of friends join in the hope that more cheerful tidings of her condition are in the offing and that very very soon she will have fully regained her full measure of health.
