

THE DAILY EXAMINER.

DECEMBER 24, 1892.

Christmas!

CHRISTMAS once more! A Happy Christmas to all our readers! How much does the world owe to the fact that Jesus Christ was born 1892 years ago? In a short ministry—less than four years—He established a movement and created a force which are now the main conditions of civilization. Certainly, our civilization is defective. We have not cultivated the full manhood which was Christ's ideal. He is still, in His principles and in His conduct, far ahead of the sin and practice of the nineteenth century. With Him, civilization and religion are one. Religion was merely the tone of mind in which He performed the duties of citizen and of reformer. It was not a thing apart. He identified Religion with Life, and Life with Service. His highest dignity was to be useful. He stated the claims of man on man, and showed in His life the measure and meaning of those claims. He established the connection between Righteousness and Eternal Life. The hold, the increasing hold, which an intelligent Christianity is taking upon the world to-day is owing to the conviction that this connection between Righteousness and Life is established. In this light, we do well to pause and think of the obligations we are under to the Christ of Nazareth and to observe the Christmas festival in the spirit of His life.

Mr. Palmer's Charges.

We have no disposition to bandy words with the Guardian about a matter which is beside the mark. Of course Senator Howland had a right to prefer the Guardian and break his promise to THE EXAMINER. Certainly the Guardian gave publicity to Mr. Palmer's "interview" against him, and THE EXAMINER did not. We have made no complaint about the matter. We have treated the case upon its merits, expressing no opinion as to the points in dispute, but merely pointing out wherein both parties are evidently in the wrong. Contrary to the Guardian, we shall assume that Senator Howland is innocent of the charges preferred by Mr. Palmer. If a Parliamentary investigation is demanded by any one who doubts the Senator's innocence, we have no doubt that Parliament will be ready to grant it and the Senator to meet it.

Lighting the Christmas Tree.

A Christmas tree is only a shadow of itself if it be not lighted, so it is best to have it dark, writes Elizabeth Robinson Scovell in the Christmas number of the Ladies' Home Journal. If proper precautions are taken, there is little danger of fire. In the future, when electricity becomes a little cheaper, incandescent lights will make the tree a blaze of glory, and there will be no fear of a catastrophe. While we have to depend upon tapers, care must be exercised in placing them, and one person should be deputed to watch that nothing inflammable swings within reach of the light. There should be a wet sponge at hand tied to a long stick, a pail of water and an old blanket or rug, to smother the flames should anything catch and the fire spread. The damp sponge will extinguish sparks without trouble. If there is a carpet it is best to have a large, old rag spread under the tree for fear of accident. The tree should be dressed with plenty of tinsel and many glittering ornaments. Gilded walnuts and silvered chestnuts are effective; they can be done with gold and silver paint. The floor under the tree should be covered with white cotton flannel pushed into folds to represent snow. The more substantial presents should be grouped around the base, and nothing heavy enough to weigh down the branches be put on them, as it spoils the symmetry of the tree. If it is decided that lights must be excluded, the tree should be trimmed with festoons of popcorn and red berries. If they can be obtained, clusters of mountain-ash berries, strings of the red seed-vessels of the sweetbrier, or even of cranberries, are effective. The red and white should be used separately, not strung on the same thread. Tufts of cotton sprinkled with crystal powder represent snow on the branches. There should be a good deal of white to atone for the absence of the sparkling lights.

HAMILTON March 21st, 1892.

Dr. L. A. Smith & Co., 538 Bloor St., Toronto:
Gents.—Please ship us per G.T.R. freight prepaid, three (3) gross more of your Anti-Dandruff. This makes six gross, or 864 bottles, purchased from you since January 16th, 1892, a little more than two months. The large demand is due to the merits of the preparation, as our customers to whom we have sold it testify. We find it not only removes the dandruff and scurf, but it is an elegant hair-dressing for the hair. Clean to use and has an agreeable odor. It is one of the best preparations we know of to promote the growth of the hair and prevent its falling out. Wishing you continued success and an extended sale, We remain, Yours truly, J. A. B. & Co., J. A. B.

Christmas Day.

Hail, blessed Day! to Christians dear; Bringing thy wondrous story Of how the Son of God came here, Down from His throne of glory.

Hail, blessed Day! proclaiming peace And joy to all creation, That biddest strife and envy cease, That teldest of salvation.

Hail, blessed Day! let joy bells ring! Let praises never falter; Let all their thankful offerings bring Unto God's holy Altar.

Hail, blessed Day! when first to earth Angels of glorious splendor Proclaimed the Royal Saviour's birth, His highest praise did render.

With joy the lowly shepherd band, And he who loved to meet Him; See how with rapture awe they stand, As reverently they greet Him.

There lies the world's Creator blest, The glorious King of Heaven, To whom all homage is addressed, All adoration given.

Hail, Heavenly Child! like those of yore, We, too, to come before Thee, Our inmost longings to outpour, To worship and adore Thee.

Hail, Heavenly Child! Incarnate Love! Fairer than all God's creatures; That Love which sent Thee from above We see in Thy pure features.

Hail, blest Redeemer, Heavenly Child! Lo, now Thou art our Brother By taking Manhood undefiled Of Thy sweet Virgin-Mother.

Hail, Heavenly Child! with us abide; Oh, never from us sever! Oh, let the joys of Christmastide Abide with us forever.

W. E. ENMAN.

The Golden Christmas-Tide.

Under the far blue Syrian sky Was born the Conqueror of Death, Who bore credentials from on high, In Bethlehem and Nazareth. Then came the new and better times; One lone star, signalled far and wide; And now we ring melodious chimes, To mark the holy Christmas-tide.

Come young and old, from every side; Come rosy maid and gentle swain, It is the holy Christmas-tide That joyously we meet again.

The holly hangs upon the door; It is no time for work or woe; Now jollity commands the floor, And joy comes with the mistletoe.

Bring in the Yule-log's ancient flame, The souse'd boar's head, a rich repast! Let us have a hearty Christmas feast; Let us have a hearty Christmas feast; Let us have a hearty Christmas feast; Let us have a hearty Christmas feast.

And now the fuming wassail bowl Shall bring us comfort and delight; This is the season of the soul, From golden morn to starry night. Naught care we for the piercing cold, The drifft snow or raging blast; For Christmas never shall grow old, From cones new or centuries past.

Then welcome, merry Christmas-tide; Another hour before we go, The rosy girl close at our side We'll kiss beneath the mistletoe. Deep, mellow bells salute the air With benison sent far and wide; Good-will and joy go every where Upon the golden Christmas-tide.

Joel Benton, in The Ladies' Home Journal.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Our Railway Management.

Sir,—We have only one train per day running west. While the discharging of the employees and other trouble is placed on the Dominion Government, there is no question about who is to blame in reference to the comfort and accommodation of this train west. The writer was sending his children to the country for Christmas. On arriving at the station, he found the waiting rooms crowded with passengers, and when the train was pulled into the station a grand rush was made for the one (only) first-class car attached, which before the train stopped was full, leaving enough to fill another on the platform. This first-class car was as cold as a barn, and worth the life of a full-grown person (and children would have to do the best they could) to ride in it. The filth and dirt, as well as the smell of the whole train, was almost unbearable. And about the time the train should start, some of the officials woke up to the fact that another first-class car was wanted, which, after some time, was put on. Not an ounce of fire had been in it, and it was as cold as out-doors. This is only one sample of our railway management.

TROUBLE OVER CARDS.

A Fatal Stabbing Affray at Mahone Bay.

William Mader Arrested for Murder

HALIFAX, Dec. 24.

After a tea-meeting at Mahone Bay on Thursday evening, a party went in to Chas. Zwickler's house to have a game of cards. On looking for the cards, it was found that William Mader, who had left the house, had taken them away with him. Dennis Hyson (son of Capt. Hyson, of the Mahone Bay packet) and others started to follow Mader and get the cards. They caught up with him a half mile away, near Abram Slaughenwhite's house, and demanded the cards. Mader refused to give them up. William Wynacht, who had come up with Hyson, then sprang upon Mader and tried to take the cards from him. Hyson-standers parted them. Young Hyson and Mader then had a struggle. Hyson kicked at Mader twice and the second time Hyson exclaimed "I am stabbed." In a second or two he added "I am dying." He fell in the road and died in three minutes. It would appear that the second time Hyson kicked at Mader, the latter drew a knife and stabbed him in the leg as he kicked out, severing the arteries, so that he died immediately. The affair has created an intense excitement in the community. Mader has been arrested.

Dr. McGlynn's Case Settled.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.

The following statement was furnished last night by the Papal representative, Mgr. Satolli: "To end many contradictory telegrams sent out, it is thought expedient to state that at 9 p. m., Dr. McGlynn was declared free from ecclesiastical censure and restored to the exercise of his priestly functions, after having satisfied the Pope's legation on all the points in his case. The return of Dr. McGlynn to his New York Church must be settled by Archbishop Corrigan."
