THE GOLDEN NORTHWEST.

(Continued from 1st page) men, and he had the place properly fitted up so that the public could be served without either waiting all day or tipping an official to get the mail.

What is wanted here as governor or commissioner is not a surveyor, but a clear-headed business man who understands something of the principles of government, and the duties of a government.

When I read of the Atlin Lake finds, of the Yukon River finds, and of others, I do think Ogilvie's prediction of its being a country of immense possibilities are quite correct, and thus for many years to come it will pour its golden stream into the lap of Canada.

Instead of encouraging the mine, as the government of every other country did and does, ours throws every possible obstacle in his way, attempts to force him at every turn, and eventually drives him in disgust from the territory.

They never build a bridge, cut a trail, or made a single public improvement to help in the development of the country.

I often felt like writing a letter to the press describing the country, my own experience, and the character of the government, but one gets little opportunity for doing such.

SAM A. NICHOLSON.
