Southern King's Does Well At School Sports

The Southern King's area may well feel proud of the exhibition which its young skaters put on at the Forum in Charlottetown last night at the Provincial Ice Sports Meet. This area won a total of 52 points to defeat its nearest competitors who had 31 points. To complete the total of 52 points, Murray Harbour garnered 22, Montague 17 and Georgetown 13. Prince Street School and West Kent School were tied at 31 points, Queen Square next with 30 points and Kensington with 25 points.

However, because of present regulations which are based on school performance for boys and girls, the two cups were won by Queen Square and West Kent. Because of this fact, and because area meets for outside schools are held tends to place these schools at a disadvantage, since only the number one winner may enter the area meet thereby eliminating representation in many classes to the schools taking part in the area meet, whereas each city school has its full representation in each class. Governing officials are contemplating running the meet next year on the area basis, and if the desire is to reduce the number of entries, it might be that the city schools hold an area meet, and the number one winners of this area contest with the number one winners of the other areas.

Improved Telephone Services For Geo'Town

The Georgetown Town Council has received an official communication from the Island Telephone Company, that the telephone pole line into Georgetown is to be re-built this spring and that three more circuits will be run to serve the subscribers in the Town.

The Company states that this work will involve a considerable outlay but that it will add greatly to the convenience of the telephone subscribers. This is indeed welcome news to the residents of Georgetown who have been long-suffering in the field of telephone communication.

The Mayor and Council have been keenly aware of the need for an improved telephone service and they have been in constant communication with the company in this regard.

The current announcement by the Company shows that the untiring efforts of the Mayor and Council have at last been rewarded.

REVIEWS REPORT

lost over two hundred small feeder pigs in a very short time. No one knows what killed these pigs. "We have found swine mange at our Test Station. Apparently, this parasite has been unknown in Island hogs before this outbreak. How serious is it? How prevalent is it? I do not know. Nobody knows. Too many pigs in Canada die immediately before and after weaning. Too many sows farrow with no milk and kill their litters. I believe that the fox breeders established that this was caused by faulty feeding. We do not know the cause in swine.

Swine Quality

"We have the best bacon type hogs in North America and perhaps in the world. Our grade A hogs have again gone over the 50 per cent mark. This is an increase from 30 per cent some years ago. The all-Canada average of grade A remains and has remained stagnant at 31 per cent for about ten years. This improvement in Island market hogs means thousands of extra dollars in the pockets of our swine producers.

"This improvement has been brought about by a definite policy of supervised breeding. It is the result of close co-operation between the breeders and the Department of Agriculture. It has been developed like a well cared for tree but like a tree it can be cut down in a very short time if there is a break in the cultural chain which fostered it. "I am sure we are all opening to suggestions which will bring about further improvement in quality, but I would not like to assume the responsibility of suggesting any changes which might later prove to be responsible for the breakdown of our present policy. We must be very careful not to make some changes which might make our new Test Station an empty monument of our past glory.

Advanced Registry

"In 1950, Island Yorkshires made an amazing record. Out of 308 sows qualified in all Canada, we had 268 of them. There were 37 Canadian sows which qualified with a score of 90 or over. We had 33 of these.

"Advanced Registry results show that Island pigs reach market weight earlier than those in central and western Canada. Out of a total of 263 Island sows qualifying, we had 209 the test group of which reached market weight when under 200 days old. Fifty-four Island test groups took over 200 days. In the rest of Canada, there were 133 which took less than 200 days and 174 which took over 200 days. This is definite proof that our sows are outstanding for early maturity.

"To maintain our present high standard, we must continue to select our key breeding stock from high scoring sows. We must practice rigid culling to eliminate the defects which still plague us. We must select for stronger bone without sacrificing quality.

"I am satisfied that the application of Advanced Registry testing in this Province is largely responsible for the amazing improvement in our market hogs. I believe that we could have further improvement in our market hogs if all our commercial swine producers would select their brood sows from high scoring dams.

ducers would select their brood sows from high scoring dams.

"At the 1950 Royal Winter Fair, we exhibited almost exclusively in the market classes with about an equal number of animals shown in the live classes and the dressed classes. In the live bacon hog sections, our exhibits were placed at the bottom of each class. When our exhibits in the dressed classes were judged, we made almost a clean sweep of all the top prizes.

In many cases, the hogs shown alive were litter mates to those shown dressed. The judge of these carcasses stated that they were the best lot of carcasses ever shown at the Royal. It is a fact, accepted by all live stock men, that there is no room for error when carcasses are judged on the rail.

"The most coveted swine awards at the Royal are the Brethrou Trophy and the Todd Trophy. The former was won by William Lund, Tracadie, and the latter by Stirling Willis, Kingston. This is the second consecutive year that the Brethrou Trophy came to the province. Last year, it was won by Willard Proud, Kingston.

"Our experience at the 1950 Royal Show emphasizes the opinion which we have held for some time, that there are two different standards for Yorkshire hogs in Canada. One standard calls for a type of hog favored by many breeders outside the Maritime provinces, and which will win when shown alive.

The other standard is the P.E. Island standard which gets nowhere alive, but which seems to take on very desirable qualities as soon as slaughtered. Our percentage of grade A hogs and our results in Advanced Registry proves conclusively which standard is correct.

"If we send an exhibit to the 1951 Royal Show, the stock will be selected from litters born in late April and early May. I am asking all breeders to develop such litters in order to have them at marketable weight the first week in November. This will give us a large number from which to make our selections. Breeders with such April-May farrowed litters should notify our office as early as possible. These litters need not all be from registered stock. There are some classes for non-registered pigs.

Breeding Policy

Mr. Clay dealt at some length with breeding policy. "Practically all the scrub animals on our farms today he said, are the result of mixing unrelated registered ancestry. I believe that almost every animal taken into this province during the past hundred years has been pure-bred or registered. Yet, these specially selected importations never seem to give us any permanent improvement. We fail to recognize that while the first generation from such new blood may be quite satisfactory, we may find serious recessive defects appearing in the bulk of the second generation. This unfavorable result is simply the well-established law of segregation exerting itself.

"In other parts of Canada outside the Maritimes, the swine breeders have been searching the world for new Yorkshire blood. They have been exerting all their efforts to improve their stock by continually introducing unrelated stock into their herds. After all these years of breeding, these breeders now find that their market hogs are no better, and in some areas worse, than they were years ago.

"In this Province, we have made amazing improvement and we have attained this level of perfection by avoiding out-crossing. Without fear of contradiction, I claim that no area in Canada has ever made such improvement in any class of stock in such a short time.
