False Face

By E. C. Buley

"Why do I call you Henry Smith?" Lepine asked, repeating College Boy's indignant question. "Because that is your name. It will be on your identity card, and on your passport, and it is essential that you shall become so accustomed to the use of it, that any other name will surprise you." To the facial operations—and there were many of them—the Boy subjected himself with grim endurance. He had calculated upon them; though he had not realized the nerve strain which resulted from being called upon to face a fresh ordeal, as soon as he healed. But the bawled desire to see with his own eyes just how the creator of his new face was remoulding him, ate into the Boy's mind like a canker.

In the room where he slept, in the room where he had his meals, in the room where he received daily instruction, and in the room where he performed his physical exercises, there was no substance which provided even a dim reflection. No glass, no polished surfaces, dulled knives and spoons. When he protested, as he did almost daily towards the end of his treatment, Lepine would remind him that his was an imperative condition of their compact.

His physical exercises provided the welcome relief, which, as the Boy honestly believed, saved him from insanity. He always wore a mask of light papier mache, with slits for the eyes and for breathing; but he was allowed and encouraged to give full play to the vigorous muscles of his fine body.

His fencing master found him wonderfully apt, considering that he had not even known how to hold a foil; and the fencing comblined with the course in dancing and comportment to change the physical aspect of the Boy, in a subtle manner. He had formerly walked with something of a swagger and a swing; the aggressive gait of a strong fellow, a little over-conscious of his strength. But now he moved with the restrained elegance one only sees among men trained to drawing-rooms and salons. He acquired little gestures, not usual in an American city, but a part of polite conversation among the civilized sections of a Latin country.

His speech, and his method of singing, were transformed just as thoroughly. For hours every day he worked with a gramophone, learning to speak English with an English accent; and French with a Parisian accent. In the French language, and it was a rule of the establishment that all conversation with him must be conducted in French.

"But you will never sing like an Englishman, my friend," Lepine complained. "I hardly expected so difficult a thing of you, I confess. Music, and the words that are allied with music mean too much to you. Certainly, you no longer sing like a white negro, as you did when first I heard you. Indeed, you sing well, rather too well for Henry Smith, the English gentleman."

FAMED WOODSMAN

Daniel Boone, the famous American backwoodsman and pioneer, died in 1820 at the age of 86.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear Mother, MRS. FRANKLIN HICKOX who was killed December 11th, 1951. Remembering Mother, we will hide our tears, For she was gallant in so many ways; Her courage rose above all doubts and fears. And she could smile while walking through dark days.

In fancy, we can see her loving smile, And hear her voice, so gentle and so sweet; Now she has left us for a little while. We must be brave, heart breaking loss to meet.

Her flowers live in window boxes green, Her work box holds unfinished knitting there. But our beloved lies in sleep serene, She's found another country, passing fair.

Remembering Mother, we shall feel her near. Death cannot separate hearts that are dear. Always Remembered by Her Family.

IN MEMORIAM

L./CPL. STANFORD W. CARR Killed in Italy, December 11th, 1944.

At the going down of the sun, and in the morning we shall remember him. Lovingly Remembered by His Sister, Mrs. Lorne Dunning.

IN MEMORIAM

In fond and loving memory of our Husband and Daddy, L./Cpl. Stanford W. Carr, killed in Italy on December 11-12, 1944.

How joyful is the hope that lingers, When loved one's cross death's sea. That we, when all life, toils are ended, With them shall ever be.

Asleep in God's beautiful Garden. Sheltered from all sorrow and pain. Some day when our life's journey is over, We shall meet our loved one, and ever remain. Fondly Remembered by His Wife and Son.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear son and brother, L./Cpl. Stanford W. Carr, who was killed in action in Italy, December 11th, 1944.

His life is a beautiful memory. His death is our silent grief. He sleeps in God's beautiful garden in the sunshine of perfect peace. So leave him in God's keeping. The rough road safely o'er. And our dear son we loved so well. Has only gone before. Sadly Missed by Mother and Dad, Brothers and Sisters.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of my dear mother, Mrs. Fidele Peters, who passed away December 11, 1951.

A year ago we had to part With one we loved with all our heart. A kindly smile, a heart of gold. No better mother this world did hold. Lovingly remembered by son John and family.

IN MEMORIAM

In fond and loving memory of Mrs. Fidele Peters, who departed this life December 11th, 1951.

Today brings back sad memories. Of a loved one gone to rest, And those who think of her today Are the ones who loved her best. A loving mother, true and kind. No friend on earth like her we find. For all of us she did her best. But God gave her eternal rest. Lovingly Remembered by Husband, Son Amos, Kaye and Marilyn.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our Mother and Grandmother, Mrs. Franklin Hickox, who was killed December 11th, 1951.

Just beyond the sunset, When we that way have trod, We'll see her face, and clasp her hand. In the beautiful hills of God. Remembered by Eldon, Pheobe and Grandchildren.
