MARY HAWORTH

Cinderella-Type Desires To Lasso Mr. Moneybags

Dear Mary Haworth: I believe that the greatest asset a person can possess is sterling character.

Wealthy men, such as John F. Kennedy, and "poor" men, such as Harry S. Truman, can possess this.

However, given a choice between a rich man and a fine poor man, as a prospective husband, naturally I would take the man with both character and wealth. Every day I see evidence that money is a very wonderful blessing if properly used by those who already have the intangible quality of character.

I am just beginning to realize that my parents' philosophy isn't entirely mercenary when they say (as they often do) that "it's just as easy to fall in love with a rich man as with a poor man."

If one of the Rockefeller sons can marry his family's former maid, then certainly some other wealthy man can cross his social pedigree with a person such as Marilyn Monroe. I'd like to associate only with wealthy men so that I'll have a good chance of falling in love with and marrying one of them.

I am an attractive, intelligent, high-principled, well dressed 21-year-old woman. I have a job in the civil service and I go to college at night. I've met many fine men at work, at church, in class and through friends, but none of them are wealthy.

I'd be most grateful if you could advise me just how to go about meeting, fine, eligible, wealthy young men.

P.S. Please understand, if I had to choose between a man of character and a man of wealth, I would choose the man of character. But I'd like to marry a man with both assets. I.R.

Dear I.R.: The old fashioned theory, probably still valid today, was that when, as and if the man of wealth and character married the poor but principled working girl, it was because he first loved her, not that she went out and roped him in (as per your dream).

As to why the rich young man loved the poor young maiden, rather than girls of his own background, the theory was that he lost his heart, forthwith and forever, to the outsider, because he glimpsed in her a kind of treasury of grace, plus an independence of sorts, that he'd been looking for, unconsciously at least, in the garden of femininity, and hadn't found before.

It is true, of course, that each generation records some outstanding departures from this poetic pattern of Cinderella romance.

Such exceptions to the rule of why rich man married poor girl usually have to do with intriguing, amoral, femme fatale types who set out to capture wealth by any means available, of which sex piracy is one, and who make their first big haul by marrying some Mr. Moneybags who has a natural affinity for callous cronies.

So much for preface. As to how you might go about meeting fine, eligible, wealthy young men, the fact is, you'd either have to turn back the clock to your grandparents' era, and get launched all over again, by being born into a socially top drawer circle. Or you'd have to capture the spotlight in your own right, as a star of enchanting quality, and have the rich young men queueing up to meet you.

In short, it's no use trying, in a poor girl's shoes, from an obscure place at the bottom of the ladder, to lassoo a bonafide Prince Charming at the top of the heap.

For example, some years ago, an enterprising unknown girl from the midwest corn belt crossed the Atlantic with the avowed intent of storming the heart of the then bachelor Prince Rainer of Monaco, who got the word, via the press, and politely grounded her hopes.

Later, as history shows, the Prince took the initiative in marrying another American girl whose independent pursuit of her acting career had led incidentally to the casual meeting that sparked his interest. M.H.

Standards Of Mixed Gladioli Decorate Indian River Church

Gladioli in varying hues decorated the altar at St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church, Indian River for the August marriage of Reta Thelma Irene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Cameron, Indian River, and Jacques Joseph Legendre, Drummondville, P.Q.

Rev. L.P. Callaghan performed the ceremony and celebrated the nuptial Mass.

The wedding music was in charge of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Hubert Gillis, who accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Thomas Turner, as she sang Panis Angelicus during the ceremony, and Ave Maria during the signing of the register.

Kenneth MacLellan acted as altar boy.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was gowned in a street length dress of embroidered satin in traditional white, fashioned with fitted bodice with three quarter length sleeves and full skirt. Her tiered veil fell waist length from a crown of pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of Shasta daisies and yellow roses entwined with ivy.

Anne Cameron of Montreal who was bridesmaid for her aunt, was wearing a sleeveless yellow gown of chiffon over taffeta, designed with a fitted bodice and full skirt. Her headdress was a band of matching net covered with silver sequins, and she carried a bouquet of 'mums in autumn shades.

The best man was Pierre Legendre, brother of the groom. Angus Cameron and Ray Cameron ushered the guests to pews marked with large bows of white satin ribbon.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Cameron chose a jacket dress in brown crepe, matching feather cloche and a corsage of yellow roses.

Mrs. Legendre, the groom's mother, was gowned in light blue with which she wore a black velvet and osprey hat and a mink stole.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception and buffet luncheon was held at the Kensington Elementary School auditorium. A three-tier wedding cake, lighted tapers, bouquets of sweet peas, and an edging of gladioli, blossoms and fern decorated the bride's table.

Grace was offered by Father Callaghan who also proposed the toast to the bride to which the groom responded.

The guest book was circulated by nieces of the bride.

For a honeymoon trip to Montreal and Drummondville, the bride wore a yellow linen dress topped with a matching mohair jacket, off-white straw hat and other accessories in black patent leather. Her corsage was of rust colored mums.

Out-of-the-province guests were: Mrs. Phil Legendre, Sylvia Legendre, Pierre Legendre and Claudette Naullette, all of Drummondville, P.Q.; Mr. and Mrs. J.R. Cameron and family, Chateauguay, P.Q.; Mr. and Mrs. John Cameron, Halifax.

The groom is with the RCAF, Summerside, and the bride is an employee of the same station.

MR. AND MRS. GORDON BERNARD

Gladioli And Mixed Flowers Adorn Breadalbane Church

Breadalbane Presbyterian Church was the scene of an August wedding when Florence Jean, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Kennedy, Breadalbane, was united in marriage to Gordon Stewart, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bernard, French River.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Lawrence Blakie.

The wedding music was played by Dianne Taylor who also accompanied guest soloist Marilyn Weeks as she sang "The Wedding Prayer", and "I'll Walk Beside You" during the signing of the register.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a traditional floor length gown, of nylon organza over layers of nylon netting and taffeta. Appliques of swiss netting and seed pearls enchanced the gently scooped neckline and spanned the slender front panel of the skirt.

Rosettes of self material were scattered over the bouffant skirt. The fitted bodice featured lily point sleeves. A small tiara of seed pearls held her four tier elbow length veil.

Her cascade bouquet was of red roses. She wore a cultured pearl necklace gift of the groom.

The matron of honor was Margaret Kennedy sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Donalda Halliwell, cousin of the bride, and Mrs. William Kennedy, sister - in - law of the bride.

All attendants wore identical sheath dresses of rosebud pink organza over taffeta, with three tier over skirts held in place with two self roses. They wore matching shoes and wedding ring headdress and carried nosegays of white and pink carnations.

The flower girl, Dianne MacLeod friend of the bride, wore a three tier white organza with a pink sash. She carried a pink basket of mixed flowers.

Allyn Harding, Norboro, was best man. Ushers were Keith Kennedy, brother of the bride, And Allan Bernard, cousin of the groom.

The church was decorated for the occasion with gladioli and mixed flowers. Guest pews were marked with white and pink satin bows and pink and white carnations.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held for 90 guests at Svend's Inn, Kensington.

The bride's table was centered with a three tier wedding cake, topped with a miniature bride and groom. The toast to the bride was proposed by Rev. Lawrence Blakie and responded to by the groom.

Telegrams of congratulations and best wishes were read by the groom. The guest book was circulated by Mrs. Reagh Clark.

The bride's mother received wearing a beige sheath of silk shantung with a lace bodice and chocolate brown accessories. Her corsage was of tangerine carnations. The mother of the groom wore a two piece dress of Nile green with antique tan accessories. Her corsage was of pink carnations.

For a honeymoon trip to New England States and Central Canada the bride chose a suit of teal blue bouclé with white accessories and a corsage of blue and white carnations.

The newlyweds will reside at Summerside where the bride is a member of the office staff at R. T. Holman Ltd, and the groom is on the teaching staff at the Prince County Vocational High School.

MR. AND MRS. RAYMOND MACKINNON

Two Ring Ceremony Held At Pentecostal Tabernacle

A pretty wedding took place recently at the Bethel Pentecostal Tabernacle, Belmont Street, Summerside when Margaret Joyce oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred MacLeod of Central Lot 16, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony with Raymond Floyd, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley MacKinnon Summerside.

Rev. A. W. Reynolds performed the double ring ceremony, Mrs. A. W. Reynolds provided the wedding music and accompanied Wayne Ball as he sang "O Perfect Love".

The church was decorated with large baskets of mixed flowers and fern. Tiny pink floral sprays marked the guests pews.

The bride given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length gown of nylon organza over layers of nylon netting and taffeta appliques of swiss lace enhanced a gentle scooped neckline. Streamers fell from a rosette placed at the back of the waist and the slim sleeves tapered to a lily point over the hand.

Her headdress of corded satin was trimmed with pearls and held her elbow length tiered bouffant veil. She carried a cascade of red American beauty roses and pom pom mums.

Lilly Louise MacLeod as her sister's bridesmaid was gowned in a street length dress of pink nylon over taffeta featuring a bouffant skirt and bell sleeves. The pink nylon rose-centered headdress held a tiered bouffant veil; she carried a miniature colonial bouquet of deep pink carnations and white chrysanthemums.

Little Pamela Dawn Reynolds was flower girl in a mint green dress of nylon over taffeta with lace overlay. Her basket held pink and white chrysanthemums with pink streamers and her headdress was made of matching flowers.

The best man was Cst. Kenneth Lynn RCMP, Montague, P.E.I. The ushers were Clarence MacLeod, brother of the bride and Kenneth MacKinnon brother of the groom.

For the reception at Birch Hill Lodge of approximately 75 guests the bride's mother received wearing a two - piece dark turquoise silk crepe dress with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations. The groom's mother wore a powder blue two - piece silk dress with white accessories and wore a corsage of pink carnations. Miss June Hutchinson, cousin of the bride was in charge of the guest book.

For a motor trip to points of interest in N.S. and N.B. the bride chose a two - piece light blue suit with white accessories and wore a corsage of pink carnations. The young couple will reside in Summerside.

ELLEN'S DIARY

Mist Of Fog Drift Lies Along The Autumn Hills

There were raindrops on the faces of the pansies we gathered this morning, and a mist of gray fog drift lay along the Autumn's hills... But when company came to visit with us, we talked indoors of summer and its flowerings, and the witchery of this season in city and town and country-side, when the sun lends his smile to the scenes

One, a visitor from an eastern State of the U.S. 'on my second trip to the Island .. both made this year!" enjoyed too her own summer. One of her delights was to rise early to walk barefoot through the cool dew when "before I breakfast and go to work, I come to see the flowers." A brown eyed, attractive lady, we found it entertaining to attend her, in mind, on that round, to see the design of her tailored garden, to learn too something of such plants as bayberry and others, we had not actually heretofore known.

He, the husband, on his first visit to the Island — and what ideal goodwill ambassadors the pair were! — "admiahs" to hunt and fish. He finds a nice relaxation with her and the family including the several grandchildren in spending holidays "up at the cottage in the mountains" where without benefit of electricity "we all have a ma'vellous time!" Lights come from — for safety — wall lamps, "one in every room," heat from an old - fashioned wood stove, the water from a dug well.

"By means— of a windlass?" "No" he replied to our querry. "We get it by the hand over hand method, by way of a pail and a rope!"

"I believe I'd have a windlass" James nodded... James would also have there in that rural spot in the mountains, if possible, a cow and calf, as he would say "for company." A sow too — "It wouldn't take much to keep her through the summer if a person were ambitious" he would declare. "There'd be the milk and discards from the table. There'd be rakings of grass from the lawn, and weeds from the garden" he would plan. Chickens? We are not so sure about those, since to our farmers in general, fowls are pesky birds 'always getting into things and underfoot in the barns." A ewe perhaps we should have, so to keep with us "the feel of the springtime." And certainly a horse if there chanced to be a patch of land to plow there as that "little ranch."

"We're having corn for supper" Peter chanted to Alex, meeting him in the yard to welcome him, homing from school ... It belonged with the season. As did a sight of the number of rowans in a fencerow town rd the rear of this farm, we saw the other afternoon when a-prowling, in an exciting picture, now that these are, in perfect clusters of berries, profusely bright - fruited.

And what of the hurricane the weathermen are keeping an eye on at present? "We must close all the doors" James said toward dusk... Maybe, the thought has been with us all day, the showers and mists and fogs of today have been our share of it. But whether or not wild winds are on the way, it is as well to be prepared. We must go now to lower the open window in the far spareroom of this old house. there is the low gable of the west.

Until tomorrow — Diary — Good - night.....

TALLULAH'S NEW FILM

Tallulah Bankhead's first film in a decade shows her as a madwoman with homicidal tendencies in "Fanatic" being filmed in England.

Proctocol Kept Quebec Flag From Square

OTTAWA (CP)—Works Minister Deschatelets told the Commons that his department rejected for reasons of protocol and tradition a request by officers of the Royal 22nd Regiment to fly Quebec's fleur-de lis flags at Confederation Square.

He said no slight was intended to the regiment nor to the people of Quebec.

Protocol experts in the government had advised the works department only the Red Ensign and flags of other countries have ever been flown around the war memorial in Confederation Square.

Foreign flags are used to honor visiting chiefs of state and heads of government.

Mr. Deschatelets said the officers of the French - speaking regiment were told they could march with a fleur-de-lis flag. But their request to alternate Quebec flags with the Red Ensigns at Confederation Square had been denied.

When he referred to "the Canadian flag," the minister was asked by Paul Martineau (PC —Pontiac - Temiscamingue) which flag he meant. "The Red Ensign," replied Mr. Deschatelets amid laughter.

Couple Feted At Kensington

KENSINGTON — Mayor Everett Champion and his wife the former Olive Woodside, were feted last week at their Kensington home by a group of more than 100 friends, relatives and neighbors.

Seated with the couple who were celebrating their silver wedding anniversary, were Mr. and Mrs. Verdun Paynter, their attendants of 25 years ago.

Chairman for the presentation of gifts was Deputy Mayor Robert Carruthers. Corsages were pinned on the celebrants by Linda Montgomery and Pamela Hogg.

On behalf of the community a silver tea service was presented by Mrs. Allison Bernard while Mrs. Linwood Toombs read the address. Other gifts were presented by relatives and friends.

Speakers included Rev. L. M. Murray, Rev. Alexander MacKay and Verdun Paynter. The remarks of the latter, in original verse, were humorous recollections of the wedding day of the celebrants.

Featured during the evening were piano selections by Mrs. Ensor Waite, and community singing of old songs and hymns. Refreshments were served.

Guests attended from Summerside, Charlottetown as well as Kensington and vicinity.
