

Hall Happenings

The UPEI Semi-formal dance was held in Saturday, March 3rd, in the ballroom of the Charlottetown Hotel. Approximately fifty couples (that's 100 people, for any Engine-ears reading this article.... Can Engine-ears read!?) had a great time dancing to the music of "Sights and Sounds". Some highlights of the evening's festivities included Greg "The Shoe-and-Sockless Cro-Mag" Campbell's impersonation of Michael Jackson (or was it his pet monkey Bubbles?). Mary Yule, however, won the night's talent contest with her vivid portrayal of a drunk falling off a chair. Thanks, Mary.

Also making an appearance, not to mention an impression, was The Backwards Baseball Cap Gang (namely, Travis, Andrew, and Ron), who crashed the festivities on a wild "Goose" chase.

Hotel security would like to thank you boys for giving them a chance to exercise their authority. Speaking of security, "Osifer Spicoli" was on duty Saturday night, busily preventing hotel security from evicting the occupants of rooms 319 and 321. It seems some of the patrons were celebrating a little too robustly. Besides the fact that one of the Second-Floor Bernardine girls could not remember who her date was, and the fact that K. Wells didn't get any sleep at all (we won't disclose the reason), an excellent time was had by all. Before moving on to other news, we would like to thank all the people who made this event a success, especially Heather Riehl, who spent hours organizing the Co-Ed.

In other news, the Marian Hall chapter of the CSA (Dave Higgins and Andrew van Wart) were busy conducting structural tests to determine the breaking point of beer bottles. Their work was "rewarded" by a visit from an appreciative R.A., Scott "Kermit" Gallant. Scott "Oh, Man!!" Harper has been victimized daily by the "room rearrangements" of a very helpful 2nd-Floor delegation; also, on a certain Sunday past, Scott attempted to devour 53 chicken nuggets in an effort to smash the record set by Marian Hall alumnus Mark "Puffy" Ronahan. Unfortunately, he was "stalled" (as in "toilet") at 52-1/2 nuggets. Nice try, Scott.

The Pit Bulls are now primed for the upcoming IHL playoffs, winning both games last week. GM "Slinkster" named a sidelined Mike "Goose" Goss interim coach in an attempt to reorganize the Pit Bull hockey squad. The coaching change, along with some other minor adjustments, paid off as Goose led an understaffed (but overtalented) team to a sweep of the opposition last week. Blanchard bowed to the Big Dogs once again, by a score of 8-7; on Wednesday, the Outlaws got blown out 8-1. Backstopped by Kevin "Hack 'em Till They Fall" Sark in his debut appearance, the Pit Bulls skated to victory once again. Ron "Some Of Us Drink" Downey and Andrew "Some Of Us Go To Class... Sometimes" van Wart were instrumental in the win. Knuckleheads, beware... you're next!!

See Ya Next Week....

P.S. We would like to thank Brady "The Socialite" McVarish for his fashionably-late arrival at the Semi-Formal.
