SUDDEN DEATH - As will be seen in another column of today's Guardian, the sudden death took place of Mr. Stewart Beal at his home, 333 Metcalfe Avenue, Westmount, P.Q. He suffered a heart attack on the morning of Feb. 8th and passed away before medical aid could reach him. Mr. Beal was a veteran of World War I in which he was severely gassed. In recent years he had not enjoyed good health, due mainly to this gassing and arthritis from which he suffered greatly. Mr. and Mrs. Beal were frequent visitors to the Island in former years and both will be kindly remembered by friends in Charlottetown. Surviving members of the family are his wife, the former Nellie R. Bell, this city, and one son, Rev. Robert Stewart Beal. The Guardian extends sincere sympathy to the bereaved family.

ROAD REPORT - Driving should not be too dangerous today, it was learned last night from Mr. Clifford Sherren of the Provincial Department of Public Works. The highways are practically all clear with only a little ice on the odd hill, he reported. Gravelled highways, chopped up yesterday, will likely be rough today.

25 AT SHORT COURSE - About 25 farm people are attending the Short Course in progress at the Vocational School in Charlottetown which opened last Monday reports Mr. Stewart Wright in the weekly agricultural report. He notes that the instruction being given this winter on animal first aid is successful from the standpoint of instruction being given, but rather disappointing from the number of farmers who are participating. Emphasis during the next two weeks will be placed on Farm Mechanics with instruction also being given on soils and fertilizers, grasslands, the importance of soil analysis and other kindred subjects. The fourth week of the course will be devoted entirely to forestry and its importance in the economic welfare of the Province.

6 Canada's gross national production, which now amounts to $17,000,000,000, may rise to about $20,000,000,000 in 1951.

Other Speakers

Others joining the Throne-Speech debate included J. W. Murphy (PC-Lambton West), D. A. Riley (C-Saint John's East), Victor Quetch (SC-Acadia) and Ross Thacher (COF-Moose Jaw).

Mr. Murphy urged the Government to reimpose controls which would roll prices back to the point where the dollar was worth more than 50 cents.

Mr. Quetch, charging that Government policy invites industry to raise prices, suggested Mr. Howe's statement was a good case for over-all controls since the new defence program has created conditions which make them necessary.

The Social Credit group would support a C. F. non-confidence motion calling for the reappointment of a control system. It would do so on the understanding that the Government would be held responsible for all factors affecting prices, including wages.

As things now stood, industry would look at Mr. Howe's statement that controls might be imposed later and would decide to increase prices while that was possible. Immediate controls would be imposed later and would be adjusted to fair levels and would have the support of almost every section of the people.

Mr. Riley urged the Government to use its mammoth defence program to encourage development of light industry in the Maritimes. The Maritimes were ready to produce whatever the Government wanted and were "disappointed" that so few defence orders had been placed in the Maritime region thus far.

Brilliant Piano Concert At P.W.C. Hall

John Knight, (above), 27-year-old Canadian concert pianist thrilled a packed auditorium at the P. W. C. Hall last evening when he appeared as a member of the Community Concert series.

With a friendly half-smile on his face, this slight young man won the audience first with his personality, and then again as he presented a program of piano music which has seldom if ever equaled in this city.

As Mr. Knight played, his audience was held completely enthralled by the magnificence of the programme which included three major works from the classics. His music although representative of many and varied composers, became completely his own, and the pictures he painted for his listeners were clearly defined and absolutely sincere.

Mr. Knight was born in Toronto, and at the age of two his mother, a concert pianist herself, realized he had perfect pitch. Commencing his studies at the age of five he made his first public appearance a year later. At the age of nine, it was said "He is a normal boy with an abnormal development in music."

Critics throughout Canada and the United States have foretold a bright future for him, and last evening Mr. Knight more than lived up to his reputation as a pianist of whom we shall hear again and again.

Three encores which Mr. Knight offered after tremendous applause, included Poulenc's "Pastourelle", Guion's "The Harmonica Player" and Brahms' "Waltz in A Flat."

His program was comprised of the following: "Prelude" - Bernardo Pasquini; "The Cuckoo" - Louis-Claude Daquin; "Toccata and Fugue in D minor" - J. S. Bach; "Waltz in B flat major," "Prelude No. 16 in D flat major," "Etude in E minor, Op. 25," and "Folias de Reine" - J. S. Bach; "Sonata quasi fantasia, C sharp minor Opus 7, No. 2" (Moonlight) in four movements - Ludwig van Beethoven; "Fireworks" - Claude Debussy; "The Lover and the Nightingale," "Trique Granados;" "Bridal Suite," "Something Old, Something New, Something Borrowed and Something Blue" - Kenneth Peacock; and "Racocoy March" by Franz Liszt.

Variety Test Results Of PEI Oats For 1950

OTTAWA, Feb. 7 - The 1950 season was unusually favourable for cereal crops, and variety tests of oats at the Charlottetown Experimental Station and at four Illustration Stations gave valuable results, says R. B. MacLaren.

Only traces of rust were observed on susceptible varieties, and no measurable loss of yield could be attributed to rust, or other diseases. This enabled all varieties to stand on their own merits and disease resistant varieties had an opportunity to prove their worth in a season when disease was not a factor.

Thirteen named varieties and four hybrid strains were grown in replicated row plots at the Experimental Station, and also at the Illustration Stations in O'Leary, Rose Valley, Urbanville and Monticello. It is of special interest to note that a sister of Abegweit gave an average yield of 76.1 bushels per acre, almost six bushels higher than Erban, its nearest competitor. Abegweit is slightly later maturing than Erban and is moderately resistant to both crown and stem rust.

Erban placed second in yield with an average of 70.3 bushels per acre. It is medium early maturing, moderately resistant to crown rust and this season proved that it is stronger strawed than most of the varieties commonly grown in this province.

Beaver and Victory followed Erban closely with yields of 68.8 and 67.8 bushels per acre respectively. Like Abegweit, Beaver is moderately resistant to both crown and stem rust and its maturity is similar to that of Erban. Victory matures rather late and it is very susceptible to rust.

Ajax fell considerably below the varieties already mentioned with an average yield of 63.3 bushels per acre. It is early maturing, moderately resistant to stem and crown rusts. The threshed grain is often thin and poor in appearance.

A number of varieties originated in the United States were tested in 1950. These include Fortune, Shelby, Zephyr, Mohawk, Sac, Advance and Andrew. None of these compared favourably in yield with the varieties recommended for this province and it is not likely that they will be introduced here.

Leaders of the Special Names Committee of the annual Y Maintenance drive were highly pleased and encouraged last night with the new donations they received during the day.

Two City firms each made donations of $200. They were the Atlantic Wholesalers and Hyndman and Company Ltd. Carvell Bros. and Prowse Bros. each donated $150 and the Pure Milk Company added another $100 to the increasing fund.

Writes From U. S. Army Training Centre in Texas

Private George W. Campbell, 23-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Windsor Campbell, 143 Euston Street, City, who is serving in the United States Army, has recently written to his parents from Fort Sam Houston, Texas, where he is at present taking a 16-week medical course.

Private Campbell left this Province two years ago to teach in Tufts Medical College, Boston, and last summer enlisted in the American Army. The course which he is taking consists of the following subjects: general chemistry, gastric analysis, blood chemistry, urinalysis, hematology, bacteriology, parasitology, malariaology, serology, clinical aspects of atomic energy, entomology, sanitary chemistry and tissue pathology.

In his letter he tells of leaving Fort Dix and travelling to San Antonio, Texas. "We were driven out to Fort Sam Houston," he says, "which is just outside of town, in time for supper. After supper we were assigned temporary quarters in a wooden barracks much the same as at Fort Dix, except that it was cleaner. We stayed there Friday, Saturday and Sunday during which time we had any and all odd jobs which came up. Sunday, however, we were given a pass and a fellow who had come down from Fort Dix with me took off to do a bit of sight-seeing in San Antonio.

"We first went to see the Alamo, the little old church that was defended by a handful of men against thousands of Mexicans until the few were wiped out. The delay turned the tide though and saved Texas.

"Among the defenders were 'Davy' Crockett, the famous Tennessee boy, and many other heroes of the state. You'll be interested too, to know that a 'Mac' from Scotland was among the group. The Alamo is a very picturesque little place and has palm trees and the historic Spanish mission looks after it.

First From P. E. I.

"I was interested in the number of Canadians who have signed the visitors' book, but as far as I could find I was the first from P. E. I.

"From the Alamo we went to the Cathedral of San Fernando where the heroes of the Alamo are supposed to be buried. From there we went to the grounds of the Old Spanish Kings, which has been kept almost exactly as it was when built. It has all the clothing, utensils, etc., and the outdoor patio and fish pond with the gardens is really lovely.

"I did not get to see the famous Mission of San Juan de Capistrano just on the outskirts of Breckenridge Park, both of which are said to be really beautiful. However at the first chance I'll see them and tell you about it. This whole area is just full of historic spots and beautiful parks and gardens."

"Pte. Campbell then tells of being moved to the area where the sixteen weeks' course is held for advanced students. The course is for dental, pharmaceutical, and medical lab. technicians who both live and work in the building. The new quarters is four storeys high and has the appearance of being Spanish with its stucco walls, outdoor patio and red tiled roof.

The following bequests were received: Estate of the late Margaret E. R. Brace, Summerside, $4,000.00; Estate of the late Mary I. Moore, Summerside, P. E. I., $500.00.

The meeting opened with prayer by the Rev. E. C. Evans.

on Thursday found he had acute appendicitis. By 3 p. m. that day he was on the way to the operating room and received an apical (by request) in order that he might watch the operation.

"It seemed odd," he says "to be taking the same detached interest in someone cutting me up as I have several times experienced before up at the Farnsworth where I had watched other operations. It may sound odd, but I got quite a kick out of it."

Two days later Pte. Campbell was out of bed and able to shave and wash. After two more days he was again on his feet and preparing to go out for a while.

He concludes his interesting letter by stating that in his ward were a good many Korean veterans who had been shot up. He had talked to a number of them and they all said the treatment they were getting was wonderful.

Fine Accommodation

The basement has a 'cleaner' department, game rooms, baggage rooms and maintenance facilities. The first floor is administrative and has most of the labs and lecture rooms. "The labs," he says, "are very good and quite well equipped. Part of the second floor is also occupied by labs, while the rest is dormitories for the students. The entire fourth floor is dormitories and is where I sleep. Every effort is made to keep the place clean, and the asphalt tile floors are highly polished. All in all it is the cream of Army quarters for enlisted men."

The letter goes on to refer to the weather which has turned very cold over the weekend. Pte. Campbell says it would be cold even for P. E. I. He was taken sick the following Wednesday and

Spring Park Rd. Area Flooded

Water lapped at the lower steps of several homes on Spring Park Road near Green Street yesterday morning as the road in that area was flooded from side to side during yesterday morning's wind and rain storm.

The situation was brought under control by the lifting of iron gratings at the head of the culvert near the Spring Park Road area. For a time Government Pond was also close to overflowing its banks in most sections.

Wind gusts rose as high as 60 miles per hour about three o'clock, it was learned from Radio Range at the City airport. The average velocity during the storm was about 30 miles.

Only local damage reported was the lifting of a large section of copper roofing over the Assembly Hall of St. Dunstan's Basilica early in the morning.

Little damage was reported by any of the wire services. The Telegraph Company suffered some mainline damage but the telephone and the Maritime Electric light companies continued normal operations.

Maritime Central Airways did not get a plane away until 11.30 yesterday morning. High winds at Moncton were the reasons given for the cancellation of earlier flights.

All bus trips were operated on schedule, an official from the Island Motor Transport services reported last night.

The temperature declined steadily during the day until it reached nine above at midnight as reported by Radio Range. This was a decline of 49 degrees from 8.30 in the morning according to Mr. Warren Burns, Weather Observer at the Experimental Station who recorded the high for the day as 49 degrees.
