in billions of relay contacts for new long distance dialing

INCO SCHOLARSHIPS
Available For High School Graduates

To help capable and deserving high school and preparatory school graduates get a university education, Inco has established 100 four year scholarships in Canadian colleges and universities. Twenty-five scholarships will be awarded for the academic year 1957-1958 and twenty-five for each succeeding year so that all 100 scholarships will be in effect by September, 1960. For complete information, write for free brochure on THE INCO SCHOLARSHIP PROGRAMME.

Have you noticed how much faster your long distance telephone calls are going through these days? That's because operators can now dial the number you call in many cities directly through a new automatic long distance switching system.

In a few more years, after additional equipment has been installed, you will be able to dial from your own telephone directly to almost any city in North America.

Inco Palladium has helped make this remarkable development possible. Each time you place a long distance call, thousands of palladium contacts go to work to route the call to its destination. Some of these tiny contacts must operate more than a million times a year. All of them are built for a service life of one billion operations and are expected to last, on the average, about 40 years.

Much of the palladium used to make these billions of contacts is Inco Palladium from nickel ore, mined by Inco workmen right here in Canada. Palladium is one of 14 different elements produced by Inco from the Sudbury ores.

In the communications field and other important Canadian industries manufacturing chemical, electrical, dental and medical products, and jewellery, Inco Palladium is used and contributes to the growth and development of Canada's economy.
