

THE DAILY EXAMINER.

MARCH 5, 1894.

LORD ROSEBERY.

This statesman is the choice of Queen Victoria for one of the most important of earthly positions—the Premiership of Great Britain. Personally, perhaps, Her Majesty might prefer the Marquis of Salisbury. But it is necessary that the Premier shall have a majority at his back, and Lord Rosebery's party is in the majority. Whether or not Lord Rosebery shall be able to form a Ministry which will be supported by the majority—that is to say, whether or not the majority will take Lord Rosebery for Leader—remains to be seen. The Queen has probably taken pains to assure herself that Lord Rosebery is, at all events, the statesman most likely to be acceptable to the majority of the majority. His Lordship was born in the year 1847. He is, therefore, forty-seven years of age and in the prime of life and vigor. That he is a man of exceptional great ability, both natural and acquired, is undoubted by anyone. He has been Secretary for Foreign Affairs in two of Gladstone's administrations, and has thus won a world wide reputation. It is certain that there is not in the Liberal party of Great Britain a man who commands more fully the confidence of the people of the British Empire throughout the world. He is a strong advocate of Imperial Federation, and among the Liberal proposals to which he stands pledged are Home Rule and Reform of the House of Lords. Lord Rosebery is a ready and humorous speaker and has won distinction in literature as well as in politics.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

—We trust that Mr. Pottinger, while in this Province, will give his attention to the felt want of new passenger cars for the P. E. Island Railway. The little old cars are away behind the times, and would not be tolerated upon the Mainland. —The Editor of the Patriot has found out that Canada, in 1892, sold 551 horses and mules to the United States. This is mistaken however when he says that this was "in the face of a duty of $10 per head." These were mostly young cattle removed across the border for breeding purposes on which the United States duty is only $2 a head.

NEWS NOTES.

There are three cases of smallpox in Sing Sing prison among the convicts. The patients have been isolated. For eight months of the fiscal year in the United States the expenditure has exceeded the revenue by $48,000,000. The defalcations and embezzlements in the United States for 1893 amounted to $19,229,972 in the case of $100 and upwards. The sum of less than $1,000 are not included in this amount. A Huntington, Va., special says: The situation in the mining regions of Kanawha is very grave. One thousand five hundred or more armed miners are swarming on the outskirts of Wyand's property. A house-to-house census shows 48,698 idle men and 3,998 idle women and girls in the city of Brooklyn, N. Y. Twenty thousand of these need assistance. Trade is beginning to revive in the United States, and facts like the above indicate how important to the general welfare it is that it should continue to improve. A special from Greenport, L. I., says: Late reports from Gardner's Island confirm the news of the collapse of the light house during the gale on Monday night. Frank Miller, the 16 year old son of keeper Jonathan Miller, is buried beneath the fall of stone and timbers. He was the only person in the structure at the time of its collapse. "Advices from San Salvador report that one of the parties striving for mastery in the state had shot sixty of the other who had been taken prisoner. In and near by Honduras the property of the late Government's adherents is being confiscated and forced loans are being levied to pay the allowances of the regular troops. These little occurrences help to show that though Brazil's revolution is monopolizing most of the world's attention, the other republics of Latin America continue to do the old kind of business in the old way at the old stand.

New York is now by far the largest city in America, and Brooklyn, which has half the population of New York is the fourth city on the hemisphere. There are, according to the Statesman's Year Book figures, four cities in the world that are larger than Brooklyn. New York and Brooklyn, though separate municipalities, are essentially one city. It is proposed to unite the two into one municipality to be completed, New York, or whatever the name of the city may be, will be the second city in the world. On the basis of this last local enumeration the population of the communities proposed to be united is 2,967,792. The national census gives a more modest result than the local count for the same year and places the population in 1890 at some 2,500,000. The census population for New York is 1,525,296 and of Brooklyn 896,340. The metropolis of the world is not likely to be evasive of this new rival. The population of London within the registration limits is 4,213,062. Paris, which is now the second city in the world, has almost as large a population as greater New York. The return of 1892 gives Paris 2,417,960 people. There is a large drop to Canton, with its 1,600,000. The capital of the German empire has 1,578,790 population and is the city next greater than the present New York. Of the twelve cities in the world reported to have a population exceeding one million, seven are national capitals. These in the order of magnitude are London, Paris, Berlin, Tokio, Vienna, St. Petersburg and Pekin. Three others, New York, Chicago and Philadelphia are in the United States, and the remaining two, Canton and Singapore, are in China.

A SAD ACCIDENT.—A sad and perhaps fatal accident from fire happened on Friday evening last in the home of a family named Cassford. The mother on that evening, about five o'clock, went out to the laundry, leaving two twins, four years old, and a baby, ten months old, amusing themselves near the fire. When out only a few minutes, the cries of neighbors recalled her to the home. A sad sight met her eyes. The baby was on the floor rolling and screaming with pain, and enveloped in flames. The mother as quickly as possible extinguished the flames and sent immediately for Dr. Kelly. All the clothing, with the exception of an under garment, was burned, the thighs charred to the knees, and the face on the left leg burned to the bone. The doctor did all he possibly could for the little sufferer, but the case is very critical. The cause of the accident is unknown, but it is supposed that it was in some way caused by the children lighting splinters. To-day the little sufferer is reported better and taking a little nourishment, but is not considered out of danger.

Shaw, Scoble Johnston, Daniel McGregor, John McCormack, Duncan S. McLaren, Edward Reeves, John McLeod, Allan Shaw. Cardigan Bridge, March 3, 1894.

A SUGGESTION.

Sir,—After waiting a period of about two months for the authorities to move in the matter, I would respectfully suggest the propriety of having the snow-banks on Bayfield St., broken so that the snow-bound inhabitants of that thoroughfare might be able to reach other parts of the town.

LITERARY NOTES.

The Delinquent for April is the second of the "Great Spring Numbers," and has many special features in addition to the unusually fine display of attractive styles. Prominence is given to bicycling in an illustrated article which describes how to ride, and what to wear, and also in a full page of figures in Bicycling Costume and an original piece of music entitled "The Cyclists' March." Mothers of families will be glad of the very suggestive paper on Filing Out the Family for Spring and Summer, and both mothers and daughters will be interested in the opening chapter of a series treating of the relationship between the two. Some new dishes are given under the head of "Dainty Cookery." The paper on How to Live Wisely opens a subject that should commend itself to all housekeepers, and the chapter on The Etiquette of the Dinner Table treats of the most refined observances of the good board. The contribution on The Uses of Crepe and Tulle gives further instruction in the making of many useful and ornamental articles. Around the Tea Table frequent and instructive entertainment, and further entertainment is provided in an Easy Party and Literary Clarinet. The latest literature is discussed in Among the Newest Books, and Flower Culture for the Month tells what work should be done in preparing the Garden for the Spring and Summer. The illustrated articles on Netting, Tatting, Knitting, Crocheting, etc. are as fascinating as usual to the lover of fancy work. The subscription price to The Delinquent is $1 a year. Single copies, 15 cents. Address orders to The Delinquent Publishing Co. (Ld.), 33 Richmond Street West, Toronto, Ont.

BOSTON, March 1.—The smouldering fire of rivalry and hostility between the American Federation of Labor and the Knights of Labor in this city has broken out anew, and threatens to involve these two organizations in a struggle that will extend over the country. This time the Knights are to be the aggressors. By a bit of stratagem they have spoiled a settlement between the largest federation union in the city and the clothing manufacturers. About six years ago the Union of Workers' of the American Federation of Labor, composed of 1800 garment workers, placed a boycott on the products of the shops of the clothing manufacturers of the city for not using the union label. Both parties have recently shown an anxiety for a settlement and made concessions. A settlement seemed imminent when the manufacturers suddenly broke off all negotiations. It appears that the Knights of Labor people went to the manufacturers and succeeded in inducing them to cease all recognition of the Federation people and to recognize them. They represented, it is alleged, that the Knights of Labor were in the city were in the ranks of their organization already, and if the manufacturers did settle with the Federation, they, the Knights, would consider it a discrimination against themselves and act accordingly. The manufacturers took their side of the case and refused to treat further with the union. The federation people denominated the action of the knights as an unprovoked and unprovoked and gross outrage. The purpose of the knights is, they claim, to break up their union and force the clothing operators into the Knights of Labor. The affair has created much excitement in labor circles.

He wanted More. In enclosing an order for three bottles of Dr. Manning's German Remedy, E. W. Brennan writes to The Hawker Medicine Co.: When in Summerside, P. E. I., I received from your Mr. Chestnut a bottle of Dr. Manning's German Remedy, and great benefit from it. I cannot speak too highly of your remedy, for I believe it is a good one. Dr. Manning's German Remedy is a positive cure for Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sprain, Strains, Bruises, Colic, Chills, Cramps and all pains and aches, either internal or external. An invaluable household remedy. Sold everywhere. Price 50 cents.

SPECIAL SERVICE.—There will be a special service this evening in the Second Methodist Church, commencing at half-past seven. THE MAIL.—Crossing both ways at the Capes today. The mail arrived in the city at 2:15 this afternoon. The Boston Traveller, of a late date, in its "News of the Provinces" says: "Claretiers is said to have in Joe Gillis the best barber in the Maritime Provinces. He worked for several years at Young's Hotel, Verne's, and other first-class establishments in Boston, and also in New York. All visitors to the city seek out 'Joe's' establishment.

The public is becoming a little sceptical about waterproof goods, whether for men or women. Claims have been made which were never substantiated. And at the best they had a water-proof look about them which was too often deceiving. It is the distinguishing merit of Priestley's Oranvets that they are precisely like the same goods not waterproof. They are absolutely rain proof and yet porous, though there is nothing to show the rain-repelling quality. Priestley's trade mark. The varnished boot will always be found in these goods.

VICE AND POVERTY.

The honest and deserving poor will be with us. They deserve the most delicate and considerate treatment at our hands. Their needs, which should be promptly supplied, would not tax us in considering the extent either the time or resources of the benevolently inclined.

Unfortunately for the "deserving" poor, and the community generally, the large majority of the poor are not deserving. Personal experience in attempting to relieve want has forced the writer to the unpleasant conclusion that at least two-thirds of the poverty in the city is the fault, and not the misfortune of the poor.

If the improvidence, thriftlessness and intemperance of the community could be corrected, more than two-thirds of the want that calls for relief is diminishing day by day, and the public world disappear. It is found that when work is plentiful and wages are being regularly earned and received, luxuries are indulged in, every holiday is enjoyed, and the poor are content with an increase of wages, is not looked upon with favor.

Then, the more serious shortcoming of intemperance is the lane of too many wage-earners. Pay is diminished day too frequently. There are men in this city to-day with families in want, and looking to the public and charitable societies for the bare necessities of life, who, as regularly as they receive their wages, spend a portion of it on intoxicants, whilst the tobacco habit is responsible for the waste of a portion of the workman's wages.

The work of correction is slow, though not hopeless. If the time means spent in relieving want were spent in removing the causes that lead to it, vice would be greatly diminished and want correspondingly reduced.

Prohibition will wipe out the saloon, and with its disappearance the great fountain head of vice, poverty and crime will be dried up.

WORKING GIRLS AS WIVES.

(Jessie M. Burgeon in Donahoe's for March.)

The most and happiest wife in this and the next generation will be the self-supporting woman. It is so evident that arguments and proofs seem superfluous. From a severely practical standpoint, a woman who has made her own living knows the value of money, has had experience in making it go as far as possible, has seen all the white outs of small extravagances and subsequent scrimping that make trouble in many new homes. A dollar to her represents a day's working work, not a few coaxing words addressed to papa. She knows what kind of home it is pleasant to come to after a tiring day's work, and what sort of breakfast is the best foundation for eight hours' sleep.

She has been used so long to look after herself that it is almost heaven to have someone ask if she had her rubbers on this morning, and the trifling attentions will be repaid by a devotion to socks and buttons which the masculine mind will enjoy while it may not entirely understand. No matter how glucky and successful she may be, the woman who never has been for years very tired, mentally and physically, with the weight of responsibility she has carried. If one week has been brought to a close successfully, in comparative comfort, and with no debt incurred, she can only draw a very shallow breath before the next commences. It may be very selfish, but isn't it delicious to feel that someone else, whose shoulders are stronger, has taken the morning load from you, and carries it easily, too? What can be more delightful, after years of rushing down town immediately after breakfast, or shutting one's self up in a study or office on the first morning, than to draw a comfortable, happy breath at the table, and then set about domestic duties? The sheltered feeling is indescribable, and one that cannot be appreciated by any woman who has not fought her own battles.

Men as a general thing are good natured and pleasant enough to women when they meet in a business way, but however kind they may be, the woman never can feel that she is at her best outside her home. Do you think a self-reliant, plucky bread-winner, who is after all the more a woman for all her bare march abroad with men, is more likely to feel that morning load from you, and carries it easily, too? What can be more delightful, after years of rushing down town immediately after breakfast, or shutting one's self up in a study or office on the first morning, than to draw a comfortable, happy breath at the table, and then set about domestic duties? The sheltered feeling is indescribable, and one that cannot be appreciated by any woman who has not fought her own battles.

SOME OF SAM SLICK'S SAYINGS.

"When I see a child, said the Clock-maker, I always feel as though I were a father; for I have always found that the road to a woman's heart lies through her child." "Encourage the timid ones, be gentle and steady with the fractious, but rather the sulky ones like blazes." "A candidate is a most particular polite man, a noddin here, and a bowin there, and a shakin hands all round. Nothing moves a man's manners like an election."

"Undivided, unremitted attention paid to one thing, is ninety-nine cases out of a hundred, will ensure success; but two things would hardly saying about 'two many irons.'"

"Presents of money injure both the giver and receiver, and destroy the equilibrium of friendship and self-respect." "Be honest, be consistent, be temperate; be rather the advocate of internal improvement than political change; of rational reform, but not of extravagant. Neither flatter the mob nor flatter the government; support what is right, oppose what is wrong; what you think, speak; try to satisfy yourself, and not others; and if you are not popular, you will at least be respected; popularity lasts but a day, respect will descend as a heritage to your children."

"The poor are everywhere more liberal, more dignified and more hospitable according to their means, than the rich are." "I wonder if folks will ever learn that politicians are the seed, mentioned in Scripture, that fell by the roadside, and the four winds scattered them about. They don't benefit the farmer, but they feed their hungry birds,—the party leaders."

"An American citizen never steals, he only gains the advantage."

"Some sayings and delicacies are often found united, in short, that in manners, as in 'None hates' like him that has once been a friend."

"Don't marry too poor a girl, for they are apt to think there is no end to their husband's purse; nor too rich a girl, for they are apt to remind you of it unpleasantly sometimes; nor too glibly a girl, for they neglect their families; nor too demure a girl, for they are most apt to give you the dodge, roe off and leave you; nor one of a different set, for it breeds discord; nor a weak-minded one, for children take all their talents from their mother."

"Of all the seventeen sayings, I like common sense about as well as any on 'em, sater all; now, don't you, squire?"

The Modern Way.

Comments itself to the well formed, to do pleasantly and effectively what was formerly done in the crudest manner and disagreeably as well. The cleanser the system and break up colds, headaches and fevers without unpleasant after effects, use the delightful liquid laxative remedy, Syrup of Figs.

THOUGHT IT WAS A FAKE.

A Letter from a Prominent Kingston Man—A Story of Deep Interest to Every Body—Told in His Own Words—Dodd's Kidney Pills Again.

"I would consider it a favor if you would allow me to add my testimonial to the many hundreds you no doubt have in praise of the wonderful cures effected by your Dodd's Kidney Pills."

"I have been a great sufferer from kidney trouble and catarrh for the last 15 years, and have paid out hundreds of dollars for treatment, but to no effect. Seeing your pills advertised I thought it was a fake to catch the poor unfortunate and took no notice of it. But when I saw the testimonial of Dr. Rose, a well-known physician of good standing and whose reputation I am well acquainted with, I inquired of my druggist if there were any in our vicinity who had been cured by them. He named over several remarkable cures in Kingston and amongst others a lady whom I knew. I consulted her husband and he verified the statement. I at once procured six boxes which I found gave me relief I had not felt in years. I took six more boxes and I am now able to kick the hat off a man's head with the leg I could hardly drag along, and my back feels as strong as a board."

"I would consider I was doing wrong to the public if I were not to allow my name to appear in testimony of the worth of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and further, I will be happy at any time to answer any one who wishes to write me with regard to the above."

Sincerely yours, J. H. BRICKWOOD, Fishery Inspector, Kingston, Jan. 4th.

MONDAY MAR 5 94. TO-DAY the Universal Exhibition of Fine Arts opens at Antwerp, Belgium. The United States was officially invited to participate by the Belgian Government in November last. All the European countries are represented, and this is probably the most complete collection of the masterpieces of European and American art ever known, even in these days of World's Fairs and universal exhibitions. We claim the biggest exhibition of first-class values in this city, and our customers are fully convinced of the same fact from their present proposition to increase their wardrobe before the spring rush begins. We are offering bargains to-day that will please you in Worsteds Suits, Tweed Suits, Spring and Fall Overcoatings, Foreign and Domestic Pantings, and an endless variety to select from. We want your trade and your money, and we are going to have it if possible without stealing it. Our importations are large this year, in order to meet the wants of our many kind patrons.
