The judges in the 3-minute trotting race at Moncton, July 1, have given their decision on the protest entered against the Island horse Harry, who was awarded first place. The protest was filed on the grounds that the horse had at the time a record of 2:50, and that he was trotting under a false name. Both charges have been sustained, and the horse has thereby lost money and place.

The Prospectus of St. Dunstan's College has been received. It is a neatly printed volume, from the press of Mr. John Coombs, and contains a large amount of interesting information bearing upon matters in connection with the institution. From it we learn that the College is in a very prosperous condition, and that the attendance last term was very large. We wish St. Dunstan's continued success.

A SAILOR belonging to the schooner Swan, now at the Railway wharf, narrowly escaped drowning this afternoon. He jumped out of a boat in order to have a bath, and as the water was much deeper than he thought and he was unable to swim, he immediately sank. After he had sank the third time he was fortunately discovered by two men who were in another boat, and who, on his reappearance, rescued him.

We learn that the members of the 82nd Battalion intend holding a mammoth excursion in the steamer St. Lawrence on Tuesday, the 9th August next. The steamer will leave her wharf in this city at 7 a. m., and will touch at Georgetown, Souris and, if possible, East Point, returning same evening. Music and the other attractions usual on such occasions will be provided. Further particulars in advertisement which will appear on Monday.

From a correspondent at Souris we learn that there are about fifty sail of seiners between Souris and East Point. Mackerel are reported very plentiful but wild, and but few catches were made last week. The schooner Lorraine yesterday landed some 230 barrels of mackerel, caught between the first and second chaps last week. She will at once refit and proceed on her second trip. There has been nothing doing in boat fishing the past few days.

The crew of an American fisherman hailed the steamer St. Lawrence as she was coming up the Straits from Pictou an evening or two ago. They wanted some late papers, being no doubt anxious to ascertain whether any more of their craft had fallen a prey to the "Canadian Navy" for foaching inside the three-mile limit. The steamer did not slacken speed, but a response was given by the passengers and crew in the form of a volley of Chronicles and Heralds, which they fired at the dory, most of which fell short of the mark into the sea, but were soon picked up by the fishermen.

FISHERY TROUBLES.

RECENT SEIZURES.

American Opinions.

The Boston Globe of the 26th inst., reports that "there is not so much excitement over the revival of the Canadian persecution of the American fishing fleet as there has been in the past. The owners have succumbed to the inevitable."

William M. Gaffney, agent of the Colonel J. H. French, says that the skipper of that vessel was cautioned and forbidden to go inside the limit for fish. The Colonel J. H. French has been absent two months, and at last accounts had only six barrels of mackerel.

Sylvanus Smith, one of the leading outfitters of this city, on being interviewed, expressed himself as follows:—

"I don't see if any of our vessels get caught fishing within the three-mile limit but what they are liable to the penalty of the law, just the same as if they had committed any other misdemeanor. A man caught breaking the law should be subject to the penalty. In the case of the French and the Argonaut, if they were beyond the three-mile limit at the time their boats and seines were seized, I don't believe they can be held, though the boats and seines taken within the limit would be seizable. If the vessels were within the three-mile limit at the time and got out beyond it to seek and escape, it would be a nice point to determine whether they could be seized or not. As far as I know, the Canadian government has shown no disposition to be overbearing or unreasonable this season, or to countenance any acts or procedures which were not right. I don't think there has been any disposition on their part to make the same petty annoyances as last year. As long as our vessels observe the law everything will be all right. If our vessels break the law and get caught in the act they will have to suffer the penalty, that is all. Five or six of my vessels are down there, and as far as I know they have been used courteously. Last year it was not so, but this year the Canadian officials are pursuing a different course in their dealings with the fishermen."

David S. Tarr, of the firm of James G. Tarr & Brother, and the owners of the Argonaut, were seen at the firm's office on Main street. He said:—

"It was his opinion that every vessel's captain sailing from Gloucester was held to strictly observe the laws of the Canadian Provinces in every way. Indeed, he knew that such was the case. Our vessels were told to take everything necessary to perform their voyages. It does not seem probable that men who promised on their honor and were pledged to keep without the three mile limit before they left home, would invite seizure when the cutter was so near as to observe every movement, and they were sure to be taken. My opinion is that they set their seines without the three miles and the tide, which sets in very strong with a force of three or four miles an hour, in the vicinity of East Point, carried the boats and gear within line. If such was the case, of course they would have no control over the matter, and were pursuing their business with no intention of poaching, and are entirely blameless. It is quite possible that the temptation to fish within the limit was too great, and they may have exceeded their authority and instructions and stolen fish. We don't know about that, however, without further advice."

To a Globe representative, Hon. Fitz. J. Babson related the following:—

"The seizure of the seines and boats of the two American schooners for actual fishing inside of the three miles is certainly within the provisions of the treaty of 1818. If they were within the limits, that is a matter of proof. In most cases of seizures for alleged illegal fishing, the actual distance from the shore has not been made a matter of measurement by triangulation and otherwise, but the opinions of the captors that the offence was committed within the three-mile limit has been sufficient to convict. As the officers and crew of the cutters have a moiety of one half the captured property it is manifestly for their interests to make a large interpretation of three miles, and the United States government should at least demand some form of measurement other than opinions before it allows the confiscation of the property of its citizens on the high seas. The treaty of 1818 had for its sole end and object the prevention of actual fishing inside of the three mile limit, and Americans must respect that prohibition, but the waiving of her colonial policy by Great Britain in that treaty; by which American fishing vessels were granted the right of using the colonial waters and ports for shelter and procuring wood and water and the repair of damages, is a very different question, and it is at this point that the real controversy exists. The case of the Hogdon and hundreds of other American vessels show that it is the evident intention of the Canadian government, by the construction and enforcement of peculiar customs laws, to so limit and abridge these treaty rights that American vessels shall not avail themselves of their privileges, but, on the contrary, shall be so harassed by petty exactions and regulations which are made the basis of heavy penalties, that they will be driven to avoid rather than enjoy their rights under the treaty of 1818. The government of the United States has continually failed to put citizens in Canadian waters under the treaty of 1818, while Canadian laws and officials have multiplied their suppressive acts until no American vessel is safe inside of their waters. A Canadian vessel entering an American port is allowed 24 hours to report, which is done to the boarding officer who visits the vessel, and 48 hours at which to enter at the custom house. In case the vessel is in for shelter, and departs before the expiration of this time, no entry is required. An American vessel in a Canadian port is required to go to the custom house immediately on arrival. Now, the evident intention of the treaty of 1818, made at a time when there were few custom houses in the Provinces, was to allow American fishing vessels to run in under the land for shelter and run out again under the weather determined, with no thought as the weather determined, with no thought or idea of being held to a technical observance of custom law, and they have to run in and out until the abrogation of the Washington Treaty, when these laws were invoked to harass our vessels and aid in forcing the United States to accept Canada's terms of reciprocity, and the question at issue is, shall the colonial laws of Canada be allowed to subvert and destroy the treaty rights of American citizens in her waters, or will the United States proclaim to her citizens what their rights are under the treaty of 1818, and how far the government will protect them in those rights? Anything less than this will be unworthy the power of the country."

HOT WATER.

THIS IS THE DAISY.

THE Cheapest and Best Hot Water Boiler in the market. Only one year since it was patented, and one hundred (100) already in use, giving perfect satisfaction. It can't help it, because the principle upon which it is constructed is as nearly perfect as possible.

Since taking up this branch of business, we have completed several very important contracts, notably our new Dominion Building here, and also the one at Summerside, as well as a number of private residences.

As it is inconvenient to publish many Testimonials in a newspaper advertisement, we have selected two, which we feel will convince our friends that we are the right parties to do this kind of work.

In a very short time we will again be visited by Jack Frost, and those who contemplate making their homes comfortable, with less labor and less cost than by any other means, would do well to send for us to give them estimates at once.

MCKINNON & McLEAN.

TESTIMONIALS.

MESSRS. MCKINNON & McLEAN,—

GENTLEMEN,—With reference to the Heating Apparatus put into my house by you last fall, I would respectfully state that it has given very great satisfaction.

My house, as you are aware, stands in an isolated and exposed situation, yet during the coldest weather the heat could be regulated to any desirable temperature. My experience leads me to believe that the hot water system of heating, as put in by you, is superior to all other forms of heating I have seen, in its saving of fuel and labor, simplicity of working, cleanliness, and safety from fire, and I hereby recommend it as being the most healthful, comfortable, safe and economical in use. I further wish to express my satisfaction with the manner in which the work was done by you.

Yours truly, SAMUEL PROWSE.
