THE MILLION COPIES OF THE NEW TESTAMENT FOR CHINA.--- The Rev. J. A. James states that he is receiving numerous letters of assistance are coming in fast. One gentleman writes, "I shall subscribe 500 copies at least." Another says, "I shall subscribe for 1000 copies for myself, and anothe 1000 copies for my wife." The Earl of Gainsborough has sent a subscribtion of $100. A member of the Society of Friends suggests that, from calculations he has made, it will require a ship of more than 200 tons to carry out the million copies to China; and that the duty upon the paper would amount to neaaly $ 15,000, which, however, he thinks might, by application to the Chancellor of the Exchequer, be remitted in the way of drawback. The British and Foreign Bible Society have, we observe, passed a resolution, stating that "the Committee, relying upon the sympathy of the British public in this desirable object, are prepared to take upon themselves all the measures necessary for printing, with the least practicable delay, one million copies of the Chinese New Testament."

CHLOROFORM IN CHOLERA.—H. B. Evans narrates to the London Times a case of Asiatic cholera cured by the administration of chloroform. He advises it for several reasons. In the first place, relatives are spared the otherwise awful necessity of witnessing the painful contortions of the afflicted one, and, again, by its inhalation a new principle is introduced into the blood. The spasm, vomiting, and purging are allayed, the medicines given before its exhibition have time to become absorbed, and exercise that desirable influence on the disease, which the constant vomiting would preclude.

NEW CURE FOR CHOLERA.—A new mode of treating cholera is to give a table spoonful of powdered mustard in a tumbler of cold water as an emetic. After it has produced vomiting a wine glass of brandy, with ten grains of Cayenne pepper (powdered capsicum) stirred up in it, is given. If the patient survives such a dose, he must be proof against any disease.

The Boston Bee says there never was a larger or better crop of potatoes than there is this year.

HASZARD'S GAZETTE.

Wednesday, November 9, 1853.

The last Royal Gazette is quite destitute of interest, but this is accounted for by the fact of the Editor suffering under severe illness, we will therefore say nothing more at present on the subject of Mr. Whelan's resignation of his seat at the Council Board, save than to express our full and firm belief that the acting editor of the Gazette states nothing but the truth when he says. "We affirm without fear of contradiction that his Excellency knew nothing of the proceedings of that meeting until after Mr. Whelans resgnation took place, and that resignation therefore could not have been dependant upon the few words he was allowed to utter at the one sided meeting." It needs but a little reflection on the matter, and taking the whole circumstances of the case into consideration, to see how completely Sir Alexander was deceived, and unconsciously made the victim of Coles and Whelan. Before the meeting broke up and Whelan had left the Court house, there is not the shadow of a doubt, but that, Coles was informed by one of those who had been placed as spies on the part of the Government, to give information as to what was from time to time going on, of the expressions made use of by Whelan. Coles saw in an instant, that unless something decisive was effected, some coup de etat attempted, the whole party was compromised. One of two things must be done, either Whelan must be got rid of, or "The members of the Government or Mr. Whelan's 'colleagues'"—we will not quarrel for a word—must endorse or adopt his expressions. The last alternative was notf or a moment to be thought of, and it followed that the other must be had recourse to. But how? Turn him out, repudiate him and his sentiments, both at the same time? no, that would be too much. Mr. Whelan is a member of the House and must be conciliated. Now let it be remembered that Mr. Lord was present when Whelan defied the public opinion in the manner charged. Can there be a doubt that directly the meeting was over, Lord sought Coles and that either Whelan joined them or was immediately sent for? And what followed? Coles with his usual determination and knowing that he was in his power so long as he held the lucrative situation of Queen's printer, announced to Whelan that it was necessary for him to resign—mark—before the thing came to Sir Alexanders ears, for said George, if His Excellency is told the story of your attending the meeting, which, after the decision of Council this morning you had no right to do, and is also told by some officious fellow, of the expressions you made use of, he will insist upon striking your name out of the list of Executive Councellors, and we shall not be able to save you, for depend upon it both Hensley and Rice will join the Governor, so now sit down, and write your resignation; tell the Governor what you like, but write it and I will take it or send it to him, and in order that it shall appear that there was no question about it in council and that it was all your own doing I will take care that your name is put into the Commission of the Peace for Queen's County, this will quiet suspicion and be letting you off easily, much more so than you deserve, for to say the least of it Master Whelan you behaved like a——jackass and as if the——blunder we committed about that unfortunate Fairy Queen, was not sufficient to give the Islander and Haszard's Gazette matter of abuse for the next three months, you must be putting in your——jaw——however there's no time to be lost better resign while you have time to do it or before to-morrow morning you'll be kicked out. We will leave it to our readers to say whether this is not something like a true version of the story.

It is not our wish to take any advantage of Mr. Whelans indispositon, but we would thank him at his first leisure when convalescent, to tell us how or why it was that the time of his resignation should have happened to be just after the expressions made use of, at the public meeting, and before they came to the Lieut. Governor's knowledge? And why, and at whose suggestion it was—if not as stated above—that his name was insertedin the commission of the Peace?

CORRESPONDENCE.

To THE EDITOR OF HASZARD'S GAZETTE.

Sir,—Allow me to say a few remarks in reference to the appeal of Lieut. Hancock, at the Micmac Meeting of last week. If by "dark and degraded state of the Micmac tribe" he means their poverty, migratory habits, and social inferiority, I say the Catholic Church is not responsible for this; She has no lands at her disposal to bestow on them, nor funds to establish schools; and, indeed, schools without permanent habitations, would be useless, as they could not attend them. The attempt to cast reproach on the Catholic Church, is as unjust as it is ungenerous; and the reproach, if reproach there be, must fall some where else. If by "dark and degraded state," he means their religious state, I say again, that he is an incompetent and prejudiced Judge in this matter, and can have but a very imperfect and incorrect knowledge of their religious state and practice. Whatever was done for the Indians, was done by the Catholic Church, and it comes with a very bad grace from those who have done nothing, except holding meetings and drafting resolutions, in Charlottetown, to reproach her for not having done more. It would appear more gentlemanly, if not more christian, in Lieut. Hancock, to have withheld his dark and uncalled for insinuations, especially, as this could not further the object of the meeting. The Catholic Church converted the Indians, instructed them, and attended to their spiritual wants, long before the Gulnare, with her unsent missionaries hove in sight, and will again, after some favorable breeze shall have wafted herself and crew to other shores. The Indian has been taught to believe, that his poverty and raggedness will not exclude him from the kingdom of heaven, and that a black coat and white cravat are not essentially necessary to attain salvation. We would be happy to do all in our power for the amelioration of their social condition, but see nothing as yet attempted, but desperate efforts,—proselytism,—such, for instance, as the contemplated religious trading establishment at Hantsport. At all events, the pious Merchants will be doing sure business, with prospect of gain, and indemnification against loss, unless,—O terrible thought!—these degraded Indians will fly the place as a plague spot, and leave the pious Merchants' Village and all, to langnish without a trade.

Yours, &c.,
JAMES McDONALD.

St. Marys, Nov. 2d, 1853.

"RECEIVER SOMETIMES AS BAD AS THE THIEF."

TO THE EDITOR OF HASZARD'S GAZETTE.

Sir,—Among the various modes of attaining a livelihood in the present day, there is none in my estimation, so dangerous as that of buying up old iron, as the business is by some carried on, it matters not how worthless the vender or how valuable the article, it is greedily caught at for a few pence, and never seen more but shipped to some foreign market. By this means, the rising generation of the lower class are systematically trained to thieving and not many premises however well protected is safe from petty peculation; indeed articles worth many pounds, have been bought for a few shillings, from the most destitute creatures, which the purchaser must have known, could not have honestly belonged to them. Why do not these men go fairly to the Merchant, Ship-builder, Blacksmith &c., and purchase at a fair price, all his waste scrap Iron? Then it would be an honorable transaction. Men with pious and philanthropic views may spend their labour and money in attempting to spread religious and moral education, among these young scions of vice and wickedness, but in vain, while such a temptation, bounty is offered, leading them into the worst of vice. I therefore fear, that the motto at the head of my letter is, in some cases, but too applicable.

NEW BRUNWICK RAILWAYS.—We have received some most encouraging accounts of the progress of the Shediac Railway. Large bodies of men are employed at different points along the line in filling up and grading, and the line is now clearly traced, or distinctly marked out throughout its whole extent. At Shediac a few rails have already been laid down, for the convenience of the contractors in transporting their materials, a large quantity of which has been received there. A thousand additional laborers are expected to arrive from England early in the spring, when the works will de pushed forward with redoubled vigor. The contractors are evidently in earnest, and disposed to accomplish their engagements with us to the letter. The "Courier" in noticing some recent letters of Mr. Jackson's, which have found their way into the public prints, says;

"The Railway from Shediac to St. John, and from St. John to Fredricton, must and shall be constructed as fast as men and money can do them. The line from Miramichi to Shediac must be built, whether on one scheme or the other, and we much mistake the spirit and energy of our friends in Maine if they allow us to be long before them at the border."

Passengers,

In the Packet Isabella, on Sunday last,—Mr. and Mrs. Walker, Mr. Barker, Capt. Ford, Mr. Horner, and two in the steerage.

Ship News.
