Pretty Autumn Wedding Is Held At Saint Bee's

St. Bee's Anglican Church was the scene of a pretty wedding on September 1 at 11 a.m. when Rev. G.M. Hutchinson officiated in Communion and "Now, O Father, Mindful of Thy Love" and at the signing of the register, "Gracious Spirit Holy Ghost".

The church was decorated with baskets of white poms and mixed gladioli. The guest pews were marked with white satin bows, small bells and yellow baby mums.

The bride given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length gown of white lace and net over satin with fitted bodice, round neckline patterned with mother of pearls and sequins, and long sleeves tapering to points. The bouffant skirt had alternate rows of lace and net.

Her face veil of nylon net fell in a long train at the back from a tiara of seed pearls and sequins. She wore white brocade slippers and her only jewelry were pearl ear-rings. She carried a cascade of red roses and stephanotis and a white prayer book.

Mrs. Sam Joseph, Sydney, the bride's sister, was matron of honor and wore a pink lace and net ballerina gown with matching jacket, pink accessories and carried a cascade of white poms with blue carnations centre. Her headress was of pink lace and chiffon bonnet.

Miss Jean Haddad, sister of the bride, and Miss Gladys Kays, sister of the groom, were bridesmaids. Miss Haddad wore a blue lace and net ballerina length gown with matching jacket and accessories. Her headress was of matching bonnet of blue lace and chiffon. She carried a bouquet of white poms with pink carnation centre.

Miss Kays wore a blue nylon net, ballerina length gown with matching jacket and accessories. Her headress was a matching bonnet of blue lace and chiffon. She carried a bouquet of white poms with blue carnation centre. Miss Catherine Shama, niece of the groom, was a junior bridesmaid and she wore a turquoise ballerina length gown with matching accessories. Her headress was of matching bonnet of turquoise lace and chiffon. She carried a bouquet of white poms centered with yellow carnations.

The flower girls were Sara Joseph and Margaret Haddad, nieces of the bride. They wore street length dresses of pink lace and net, pink hats and mitts and carried baskets of pink snapdragons and yellow and white poms.

George Kays, brother of the groom, was best man. The ushers were John Haddad and Emanuel Kays, brothers of the bride and groom.

A reception for 150 guests was held in St. Paul's Hall with the St. Bee's Women's Auxiliary catering to a turkey supper.

The parents of the bride and groom received with the bridal party. Mrs. Haddad wore a navy blue lace dress with white accessories and wore a corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Kays wore a light blue lace dress with white accessories and wore a corsage of pink roses.

The bride's table was covered with a white linen tablecloth centered with a three-tier wedding cake swathed at the base with tulle and pink ribbons and flanked by silver holders and white candles.

The toast to the bride was proposed by Rev. G.M. Hutchinson and responded to by the groom. Telegrams of congratulations read by the best man.

The couple left for Ottawa and Montreal. For going away the bride wore navy blue with white accessories and carried a beige chemise coat. Her corsage was pink sweetheart roses and white poms.

Mr. and Mrs. Kays will reside in Charlottetown.

Miss Julie Haddad sister of the bride looked after the guest book. Guests were present from Charlottetown, Montreal, Sydney, Pictou, Truro, Halifax, Bridgewater, Springhill, Kentville, Windsor, Mulgrave, New Glasgow and Berwick.

Upon Mr. and Mrs. Kays return from their honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Elias Kays held a reception for the newlyweds at the Kays home, Upper Queen Street.

HAPPENINGS

Thirteen debutantes made their curtsy recently to Western society at a ball held in Edmonton. Some excerpts from the Edmonton Journal are the following:

"And each young charmer, poised and lovely, held her own moment of stardom when she was presented to the Lieutenant-Governor. She made her curtsy, took three steps aside and curtsied again to His Honor's daughter, Mrs. Mary Mooney". They were presented by Mrs. Christopher Vokes.

Another comment is: "Their bouffant white gowns created an effect of Old World charm". There is a very fine picture of Miss Carol Lee Archibald dropping a low curtsy before the Hon. Dr. J.J. Bowlen.

Mrs. Mary Mooney in an imported satin gown encrusted with pearls and brilliant trimmings, pictured with two of the debutantes. The steps of the presentation made to the Governor and Mrs. Mooney were to the accompaniment of the music "A Pretty Girl Is Like A Melody".

At the end of the evening to the last strains of the good-night waltz the debutantes curtsied facing the dais. The escorts bowed and the 500 guests applauded the charming conclusion of the ceremony.

The Canadian Club of Prince Edward Island is holding its first meeting of the season at the Charlottetown Hotel at 6:30 p.m. on Monday, October 6th.

The speaker will be the Hon. Henry D. Hicks, leader of the opposition and former premier of the province of Nova Scotia. Mr. Hicks subject will be "Atlantic Provinces' Outlook—Economic and Otherwise."

Miss Jean Tweedy, daughter of the Hon. Mr. Justice George J. Tweedy and Mrs. Tweedy sails October 3rd on the Homeric from Southampton. She and three nursing friends have been touring Great Britain and the continent since early in June.

Shirley Verna Stewart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Angus Stewart, Beaches Road, has won several medals in Highland dancing competitions this season.

She won one medal at Pugwash for the Highland Fling, July 1; two medals at Sydney for the Sword Dance and Seann Triubhas, July 19; three silver medals at Rothesay, N.B. for Highland Fling, Sword Dance and Seann Triubhas, July 26; two gold and one silver medal at New Glasgow for Highland Fling, Sword Dance and Seann Triubhas, Sept. 12; and two gold medals at New Glasgow for Highland Fling and Seann Triubhas, Sept. 13.

The Stewart family were former residents of Prince Edward Island.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Batt, of Kent St., left Thursday evening for Amherst, N.S., where they will attend the convention of the Refrigeration Service Engineers Society. Mr. Batt is the Maritime president of the R.S.E.S. A dance and supper will be held on Saturday evening.

Mr. Edwin Clow, employee of the Amalgamated Dairy, Summerside, left Friday morning for Amherst, N.S., where he will attend the Refrigeration Service Engineers Society convention, which is being held in that city.

Harvard Memorial Church Has A Beautiful Wedding

Harvard Memorial Church in Cambridge was decorated with gladioli and chrysanthemums recently for the marriage of Miss Miriam Elaine Hamm and Mr. Maynard William Swanson. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Piemen C. Hamm of Arlington, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl W. Swanson of Holden and Harwichport. The Rev. Royden C. Richardson performed the 7:30 ceremony, and a reception followed at the Hotel Commander, Cambridge.

Escorted by her father, the bride wore a gown of Schiffler brodered silk organza with a full skirt caught up at the hemline with bows ending in a court train. Her elbow-length veil of French illusion fell from a half-crown. She carried a cascade of white chrysanthemums, stephanotis and lily. The maid of honor was Miss Mary Jane Rawlings of Waltham who wore a sheath of gold taffeta with a balloon style over skirt and a hat of gold velvet leaves. She carried a colonial bouquet of chrysanthemums shaded from rust to yellow. Wearing similarly styled gowns of jade green taffeta, the bridesmaids wore Miss Myrna Short of Arlington.

Mr. Charles O. Swanson, 2d, of Holden was best man for his brother. The ushers were Mr. E. Terry Durant of Charlottesville Va., Mr. Benjamin J. Johnson of Bridgton, Me., Mr. Paul E. Jones of Cambridge, Mr. Frederick F. Marston, Jr. of Hartford, Conn., Mr. Richmond M. Keeney of Washington, D.C. and Mr. Thomas F. Nelson of Milwaukee, Wis.

The bride was graduated cum laude from Bates College and is a member of Phi Beta Kappa. She also attended Radcliffe College, Graduate School of Arts and Sciences. The bridegroom prepared at Worcester Academy for Amherst College, where he was a member of Phi Beta Kappa. He also attended the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration and is now a Ph.D. candidate at Harvard Graduate School of Arts and Sciences.

After a wedding trip to Quebec City, Murray Bay and Harwichport, the couple will live in Cambridge.

Mrs. Swanson is a granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Hammond Johnston, Charlottetown.

Mr. and Mrs. Kays will reside in Charlottetown.

Miss Julie Haddad sister of the bride looked after the guest book. Guests were present from Charlottetown, Montreal, Sydney, Pictou, Truro, Halifax, Bridgewater, Springhill, Kentville, Windsor, Mulgrave, New Glasgow and Berwick.

ELLEN'S DIARY

Ellen Holds The Light And Memories Crowd In

We took the old lantern down from its hook this evening, and once more came to "hold light" for James. And not for him alone as it happened, for this was a chore in which all our farmers are interested: emptying the full sacks of the day's threshing to an unlighted granary of the farms.

Nor was it at all necessary that we in our "retirement" be present. But the night, silvered by moonlight, heavens star-spangled, invited one to come abroad and enjoy it. Besides, the sight of the lantern trimmed and ready, tempted one sorely.

So many times in the season of harvest, we have come to the granary-of-home which reminded us now takes care of other shelterings, but once was given over entirely to sheaves. There we would come to "hold light" while a late load was being saved, in the event of an approaching shower, or it might be to leave a field all cleared of its stocks.

The scene comes back to us now, held in the lantern's bright glow. James, younger than I (though not less interested now) on his knees at the stowing, placing the sheaves in exact position by one.

We can hear yet their rustles and whispers—and the thud of a horse's hoof, as one of the team changed position slightly in the wagon below that eave's door, whence entered the sheaves, tossed in by a hired lad perhaps or other co-worker of season.

Or maybe it was the old mare who waited patiently there in those young years, an odd clink of harness reminding us, so faintly like it all appeared in the lantern-light, the sheaves were nothing given to us from the night-blue of the heavens beyond.

And sometimes we recall when the stars of those years rose to heights, we could look out from our position near the high door, upon an entrancing scene, of hushed and serene moonlit fields and the dark velvet of the mystic woodlands. And always it seemed crickets wove their melody especially for us there in happy hopeful tones.

"There are some people" James observed once with a chuckle in the circle of lantern-light tonight, "who just can't seem to learn! You may teach them for a lifetime, telling them over and over... But do you remember!"

"If you can't see what I do—if you aren't giving light exactly on my work" he laughed, his words of those years returning "then you may as well be holding that lantern out in the middle of 'that thar' field' for all the good it's doing me!"

"And that's so!" James nodded. "And one farmer came in from the rested truck with one sack of corn and tossed it on the growing heap in the granary, and another and another, followed suit."

And outside the wide-open barn doors in the moonlight of this perfect autumn night, a company of ewes and maturing lambs stood against a stubbled slope, regarding the activity with eyes that shone as might have the black cat's there. Over the fields a dog barked, and from a range of woodlands westward, an owl hooted mournfully.

"I shouldn't be surprised" one of the farmers hearing offered, "if there's come an end shortly to this fine spell of weather."

Today however was sunny and lovely. It was a delightful day for folks to continue any preferred work of the season.

Until tomorrow — — — Diary, Good-night.
